FOREWORD

Since the 1965 edition of the EUROPA YEAR BOOK appeared, there has been a further increase in the number of international organisations represented in this book. Of the additions, some, such as the United Nations Conference on Trade and Development, are concerned with the vital need to accelerate the economic development of under-developed countries, either by the provision on reasonable terms of aid for development, or by ensuring that the developing countries receive a larger share of the world's trade. Others are regional groupings, such as the Regional Co-operation for Development, aiming to advance the development of specific areas of the world.

Outline maps have been introduced into the section on International Organisations, showing the geographical distribution of the members of fourteen inter-governmental bodies, and detailed maps now appear on the end-papers of this book.

We are again in the debt of innumerable people and organisations throughout the world, without whose help it would be impossible to revise accurately a book of this length and range, and we tender our thanks to all who have co-operated in the preparation of this edition.

February 1966.

INTERNATIONAL ORGANISATIONS

THE UNITED NATIONS

First Avenue, New York City, New York, U.S.A.

Founded in 1945 to maintain international peace and security and to develop international co-operation in economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER

PREAMBLE

We the peoples of the United Nations determined

TO SAVE succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and

TO REAFFIRM faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

TO ESTABLISH conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and

TO PROMOTE social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends

TO PRACTICE tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and

TO UNITE our strength to maintain international peace and security, and

TO ENSURE, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and

TO EMPLOY international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims

Accordingly, our respective governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organisation to be known as the United Nations.

ORIGIN

The United Nations was a name devised by President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was first used in the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, when representatives of twenty-six nations pledged their governments to continue fighting together against the Axis powers.

The United Nations Charter was drawn up by the representatives of fifty countries at the United Nations Conference on International Organization, which met at San Francisco from April 25th to June 26th, 1945. The representatives deliberated on the basis of proposals worked out by representatives of China, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States at Dumbarton Oaks in August-October 1944. The Charter was signed June 26th, 1945. Poland, not represented at the Conference, signed it later but nevertheless became one of the original fifty-one members.

The United Nations officially came into existence on October 24th, 1945, when the Charter had been ratified by China, France, the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States, and by a majority of other signatories. October 24th is now universally celebrated as United Nations Day.

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

The purposes of the United Nations are:

- To maintain international peace and security;
- To develop friendly relations among nations;
- To co-operate internationally in solving international economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems and in promoting respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms;
- To be a centre for harmonising the actions of nations in attaining these common ends.

The United Nations acts in accordance with these principles:

- It is based on the sovereign equality of all its members.
- All members are to fulfil in good faith their Charter obligations.
- They are to settle their international disputes by peaceful means and without endangering peace, security and justice.
- They are to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against other states.
- They are to give the United Nations every assistance in action it takes in accordance with the Charter, and not to assist states against which preventive or enforcement action is being taken.
- The United Nations is to ensure that states which are not members act in accordance with these principles in so far as it is necessary to maintain international peace and security.

Nothing in the Charter is to authorise the United Nations to intervene in matters which are purely the national concern of any state.

The official languages of the United Nations are Chinese, English, French, Russian and Spanish. Its working languages are English and French. Spanish is also a working language of the General Assembly and of the Economic and Social Council.

Membership of the United Nations is open to all peace-loving nations which accept the obligations of the United Nations Charter and, in the judgment of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

The original members of the United Nations are those countries which signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1st, 1942, or took part in the San Francisco Conference, and which signed and ratified the Charter.

Other countries can be admitted by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Members may be suspended or expelled by the General Assembly on recommendation of the Security Council. They may be suspended if the Security Council is taking enforcement action against them or expelled if they persistently violate the principles of the Charter. The Security Council can restore its rights to a suspended member.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The General Assembly is the main deliberative organ of the United Nations.

MEMBERS

All members of the UN. Each delegation consists of not more than five representatives and five alternates with as many advisers, technical advisers and experts as may be required.

ORGANISATION

President for 20th Session (1965–66): AMINTORE FANFANI (Italy).

Vice-Presidents: Burundi, Central African Republic, Chile, China (Taiwan), France, Guatemala, Kuwait, Laos, Malaysia, Morocco, Paraguay, Poland, Sierra Leone, Spain, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, U.S.A.

The Assembly meets regularly once a year, but special sessions may also be held. It has the power to adopt recommendations only, not binding decisions. Important questions are decided by a two-thirds majority. Each nation has one vote and each vote is equal.

PRINCIPAL COMMITTEES

Main Committees: There are seven committees on which all members have a right to be represented.

General (Steering) Committee: twenty-one members.

Credentials Committee: nine members.

Advisory Committee on Administrative and Budgetary Questions: standing committee of twelve members.

Committee on Contributions: standing committee of ten members.

SUBSIDIARY AND AD HOC COMMITTEES

International Law Commission: f. 1947; twenty-five members; normally meets in Geneva once a year; promotes development of international law and its codification.

Peace Observation Commission: f. 1950; fourteen members, including five permanent members of the Security Council; can be used by the General Assembly or Security Council to observe and report on areas of international tension.

Collective Measures Committee: f. 1950; fourteen members.

Disarmament Commission: all members of the General Assembly.

Disarmament Committee: f. 1961; eighteen members.

Advisory Committee on UN Emergency Force: f. 1956; seven members; deals with UNEF.

Ad hoc Committee of Experts to Examine the Finances of the UN and the Specialised Agencies: f. 1965; fourteen members.

SECURITY COUNCIL

The task of the Security Council is to promote international peace and security in all parts of the world.

MEMBERS

Permanent members:

China (Taiwan)	U.S.S.R.	United Kingdom
France		U.S.A.

The remaining ten members are normally elected by the General Assembly for two-year periods:

Until December 1966: Jordan, Netherlands, New Zealand, Uganda, Uruguay.

Until December 1967: Argentina, Bulgaria, Japan, Mali, Nigeria.

ORGANISATION

The Council is organised to be able to function continuously. The Presidency of the Council is held monthly in turn by the member states in English alphabetical order.

Each member of the Council has one vote. On procedural matters decisions are made by the affirmative vote of any nine members. For decisions on other matters the required nine affirmative votes must include the votes of the five permanent members.

SUBSIDIARY BODY

Military Staff Committee: Consists of the Chiefs of Staff (or their representatives) of the five permanent members of the Security Council and assists the Council on all military questions.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL—ECOSOC

Promotes world co-operation on economic, social, cultural and humanitarian problems.

THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

New York City

Supervises United Nations' Trust Territories through the administering authorities to promote the political, economic, social and educational advancement of the inhabitants towards self-government or independence.

TERRITORIES UNDER TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Nauru (administered by Australia on behalf of Australia, New Zealand and U.K.).

New Guinea (Australia).

Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands (U.S.A.)

MEMBERS OF TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

The Council consists of member states administering Trust Territories, permanent members of the Security Council which do not administer Trust Territories, and enough other non-administering countries elected by the Assembly for three-year terms to ensure that the membership is equally divided between administering and non-administering members.

Administering Countries:

Australia
New Zealand
United Kingdom
United States

Other Countries:

China (Taiwan)
France
U.S.S.R.
Liberia

ORGANISATION

President: (1965) ANDRÉ NAUDY (France).

The Council meets once a year, generally in June. Each member has one vote, and decisions are made by a simple majority of the members present and voting. A new President is elected at the beginning of the Council's regular session each year.

The Council is under the authority of the General Assembly for all its territories except the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands. This has been designated a strategic area, and the supervisory functions of the United Nations are, in its case, exercised by the Trusteeship Council under the authority of the Security Council.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

The Hague, Netherlands

The Court was set up in 1945, and succeeded the Permanent Court of International Justice, which was founded in 1920 under the League of Nations. It is one of the six main organs of the UN. All the members of the UN are parties to the Statute of the Court, and also Switzerland, Liechtenstein and San Marino Parties to the Statute: 120.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(THE MAIN ORGANS)

SUMMARY OF THE STATUTE

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE established by the Charter of the United Nations as the principal judicial organ of the United Nations shall be constituted and shall function in accordance with the provisions of the present Statute.

The Court shall be composed of a body of independent judges, elected regardless of their nationality from among persons of high moral character, who possess the qualifications required in their respective countries for appointment to the highest judicial offices, or are jurisconsults of recognised competence in international law.

The Court shall consist of fifteen members, no two of whom may be nationals of the same state.

The members of the Court shall be elected by the General Assembly and by the Security Council.

The General Assembly and the Security Council shall proceed independently of one another to elect the members of the Court.

Those candidates who obtain an absolute majority of votes in the General Assembly and in the Security Council shall be considered as elected.

The members of the Court shall be elected for nine years and may be re-elected; provided, however, that of the judges elected at the first election, the terms of five judges shall expire at the end of three years and the terms of five more judges shall expire at the end of six years.

The judges whose terms are to expire at the end of the above-mentioned initial periods of three and six years shall be chosen by lot to be drawn by the Secretary-General immediately after the first election has been completed.

No member of the Court may exercise any political or administrative function, or engage in any other occupation of a professional nature.

No member of the Court may act as agent, counsel, or advocate in any case.

No member of the Court can be dismissed unless, in the unanimous opinion of the other members, he has ceased to fulfil the required conditions.

The members of the Court, when engaged on the business of the Court, shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunities.

The Court shall elect its President and Vice-President for three years; they may be re-elected.

The Court shall appoint its Registrar and may provide for the appointment of such other officers as may be necessary.

The President and the Registrar shall reside at the seat of the Court.

The Court shall remain permanently in session, except during the judicial vacations, the dates and duration of which shall be fixed by the Court.

The full Court shall sit except when it is expressly provided otherwise in the present Statute.

A quorum of nine judges shall suffice to constitute the Court.

The Court may from time to time form one or more chambers, composed of three or more judges as the Court may determine, for dealing with particular categories of cases.

The Court shall frame rules for carrying out its functions. In particular, it shall lay down rules of procedure.

Judges of the nationality of each of the parties shall retain their right to sit in the case before the Court.

Each member of the Court shall receive an annual salary.

The President shall receive a special annual allowance.

The Vice-President shall receive a special allowance for every day on which he acts as President.

The expenses of the Court shall be borne by the United Nations in such a manner as shall be decided by the General Assembly.

Only states may be parties in cases before the Court.

The Court shall be open to the states parties to the present Statute.

The conditions under which the Court shall be open to other states shall, subject to the special provisions contained in treaties in force, be laid down by the Security Council, but in no case shall such conditions place the parties in a position of inequality before the Court.

The jurisdiction of the Court comprises all cases which the parties refer to it and all matters specially provided for in the Charter of United Nations or in treaties and conventions in force.

The hearing in Court shall be public, unless the Court shall decide otherwise, or unless the parties demand that the public be not admitted.

The judgment shall be signed by the President and by the Registrar. It shall be read in open court, due notice having been given to the agents.

The decision of the Court has no binding force except between the parties and in respect of that particular case.

The judgment is final and without appeal. In the event of dispute as to the meaning or scope of the judgment, the Court shall construe it upon the request of any party.

Unless otherwise decided by the Court, each party shall bear its own costs.

The Court may give an advisory opinion on any legal question at the request of whatever body may be authorised by or in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations to make such a request.

The Court shall deliver its advisory opinions in open court.

France	Poland
German Federal Republic	Portugal

Switzerland takes part in a consultative capacity

ORGANISATION

COMMISSION

ECE is one of the four regional economic commissions set up by the UN Economic and Social Council. The Commission holds an annual plenary session and brief meetings of subsidiary bodies are convened throughout the year. Specialists seek agreements for later government approval, collect statistics and exchange technical information, both at meetings and through distribution of reports and special papers. ECE itself takes no action affecting governments.

SECRETARIAT

Executive-Secretary: V. VELEBIT (Yugoslavia).

The Secretariat services the meetings of the Commission and its subsidiary bodies and publishes periodic surveys and reviews, including a number of specialised statistical bulletins on coal, timber, steel, housing and building, electric power, gas and transport.

COMMITTEES

Committee on Agricultural Problems. Keeps under review the market conditions, follows developments under the Protocol on the Standardisation of Fruit and Vegetables, examines problems arising from mechanisation of agriculture, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain agricultural products (cereals and citrus fruits). Chair. A. WALLON (France).

Industry and Materials Committee. Concerned with the ways and means of making fuller use of the existing capacity in particular industries, especially in the engineering industry. Supervises the erection of plant and machinery in ECE countries; studies contract practices and automation in industry, drafts general conditions of sale for industrial goods. Chair. R. PAPILLON (France).

Timber Committee. Regularly reviews the market in sawn softwood, small-sized roundwood and hardwood, studies forest working techniques, trains forest workers, compiles statistics, watches trends in the use of wood and its products and of wood waste, and drafts standard clauses for the international sale of certain categories of timber. Chair. O. MYSIK (Czechoslovakia).

Coal Committee. Concentrates on problems of production and trade, makes recommendations on the use of solid fuel. With agreements reached on the international classification of brown coals and lignites, ECE has completed the classification by type of all existing coals. Drafts general conditions of sale for solid fuels. Chair. BOLESŁAW KRUPINSKI (Poland).

Committee on Electric Power. Studies hydro-electric resources, thermal power plants, legal questions, rural electrification and the cost of financing new projects. ECE's relationship with the International Atomic Energy Agency is close. Chair. G. SERBINOWSKI (U.S.S.R.).

Committee on Gas. Deals with the economic and technical aspects of the production, transport and utilisation of gas, natural and manufactured as well as liquefied petroleum gases, and forecasts demand Chair J. LE GUELLEC (France).

Committee on Housing, Building and Planning. Periodically reviews trends and progress, with special reference to industrialisation of construction and building costs. Studies land use and prices, urban renewal and physical planning. Housing problems of less industrialised countries receive special consideration. Chair. H. BERNHARD (Sweden).

Inland Transport Committee. Covers road, rail and inland water transport, customs, contracts, transport of dangerous and perishable goods, equipment, statistics, tariffs, river law, road transport régime and road traffic accidents, construction of vehicles and passenger transport services by road. A number of international agreements are in force following their adoption through ECE. Chair. A. CLARKE (U.K.)

Steel Committee. Annually reviews trends in the European and world markets, changes in price policy, growth of capacity supply factors and future prospects. Also studies long-term economic and technological problems. Chair. Z. NEKRASSOV (U.S.S.R.).

Committee on the Development of Trade. Examines intra-European trade, especially east/west trade. Organises facilities in arbitration, trade fairs and technical shows, standardisation of general conditions of sale of goods, insurance, simplification and standardisation of export documents, payments arrangements, including multi-lateral compensation procedures, and consultations. Chair. J. NYERGES (Hungary).

Conference of European Statisticians. Promotes improvement of national statistics and their international comparability in economic, social and demographic fields; facilitates exchange of information between European countries. Chair. I. ÖHLSSON (Sweden)

BUDGET

ECE's budget is included in the budget of the United Nations.

ORGANISATION

The Commission meets yearly, often in a different country. It operates through numerous working parties, sub-committees, ad hoc conferences, trade promotion meetings and seminars. The chief subsidiary bodies are:

Trade Committee.

Committee on Industry and Natural Resources.

Inland Transport and Communications Committee.

Executive Secretary: U NYUN (Burma).

ACTIVITIES

ECAFE helps members in the planning and carrying out of national development programmes and to promote measures for regional co-operation.

ECAFE compiles and analyses statistics, prepares economic surveys and studies, organises seminars, working parties and study tours, and provides advisory services to member countries.

Principal projects:

LOWER MEKONG VALLEY PROJECT

The Mekong Project aims to develop the water resources of the Lower Mekong Basin, including mainstream and tributaries, in terms of hydro-electric power, irrigation, flood control, drainage, navigation improvement, watershed management, water supply and related problems.

Work is directed by the Mekong Committee, established in 1957 by the four riparian countries: Cambodia, Laos, Thailand, and the Republic of Viet-Nam. Twenty-one other countries, eleven UN Special Agencies, three Foundations and a number of private business organisations are collaborating.

The Plan envisages thirteen mainstream projects and fourteen tributary projects. Construction has begun on five tributary projects and one tug and barge building programme. Resources in November 1965: $93 million, about a third of which is pledged by the riparian countries

ASIAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND PLANNING

The Institute was opened in January 1964. It provides annually two regional courses on economic and social development, a six-month General Course and a three-month Advanced Course in Planning Techniques, both held at Bangkok. It undertakes research to prepare educational materials and case studies on development planning techniques and renders advisory services when requested by governments. The budget for the five years 1964-68 is $3.3 million, of which two-thirds comes from the UN Special Fund while the other $1.1 million has been pledged by 24 governments.

THE ASIAN HIGHWAY

The Asian Highway Project, launched in 1960, envisages a system of routes of 55,000 km. in length, with two priority routes: (1) the northern route connecting Saigon with the Turkish border, 10,931 km. long, of which only 400 km. remain to be built (November 1965); (2) the southern route connecting Indonesia and Singapore with the Iraqi border, 12,364 km. long, of which about 1,360 km. remain to be built (November 1965). The project will eventually bring the Asian world into direct road communications with the countries of the Middle East and Europe, and will contribute to a large extent towards the social, cultural and economic progress of the region.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(REGIONAL ECONOMIC COMMISSIONS)

Work on the project is co-ordinated by the Asian Highway Co-ordinating Committee, composed of Ministers from member countries, which held its first meeting in April 1965.

THE ASIAN DEVELOPMENT BANK

The project to establish an Asian Development Bank was given priority by ECAFE in 1965. The Bank is expected to begin operations in mid-1966, with an initial capital of $1,000 million, $641.6 million of which is to be subscribed by Asian member countries. The functions of the bank will be to promote investment in the region of public and private capital for development purposes; to finance development projects not adequately financed at present, particularly in the smaller or less developed countries; to assist members in the co-ordination of their development policies with a view, in particular, to promoting intra-regional trade. Membership will be open to ECAFE members and associates and to the regional countries and non-regional developed countries, which are members of the UN and its specialised agencies. The headquarters of the Bank are to be at Manila, Philippines.

ORGANISATION

The Commission normally meets every two years in one of the Latin American capitals. The Commission has established two permanent bodies with various sub-committees:

Central American Economic Co-operation Committee:

Central American Trade Sub-Committee.

Central American Sub-Committee on Statistical Co-ordination.

Central American Sub-Committee on Transport.

Central American Sub-Committee on Housing, Building and Planning.

Central American Sub-Committee on Electric Power.

Central American Commission for Industrial Initiatives

Central American Sub-Committee on Agricultural Development.

Trade Committee:

Central Banks' Working Group.

Working Group on the Regional Market.

Working Group on Customs Questions.

Executive Secretary: JOSE ANTONIO MAYOBRE (Venezuela).

Secretariat: Santiago de Chile; branch offices at Mexico City, Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo and Washington, D.C.

The Secretariat is organised into divisions of economic development and research, trade policy, social affairs, agriculture (jointly with FAO), statistics and administration, programmes on integration of industrial development (jointly with the Latin American Institute for Social and Economic Planning and IDB), natural resources and energy and transport (jointly with OAS) and Latin-American Economic Projections

LATIN AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PLANNING

Santiago, Chile

The Institute was founded by ECLA in June 1962, with financial assistance from the United Nations Special Fund, the Inter-American Development Bank and the Chilean Government, and with the co-operation of OAS, FAO, UNESCO, ILO and other international bodies. It operates as an autonomous body under the aegis of ECLA to provide training and advisory services on request to member countries and to undertake research in planning techniques

ACTIVITIES

In the early years the Commission focused its activities on preparing studies and reports, but now concentrates more on the questions of a regional market and Latin American economic integration. At a meeting in Santiago in May 1960 the formation of a Customs Union was discussed.

REGIONAL MARKET

Proposals for the setting up of a Latin American Common Market, drawn up by the Market Group, were discussed in detail at the 8th Session of ECLA at Panama in May 1959. The Latin American Free Trade Association was set up in February 1960. First negotiations on tariffs between government members of the Association were held between September and December 1961. The first stage came into operation January 1962.

RELATIONS WITH LAFTA

The relations of ECLA with the Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA) are defined by the Montevideo Treaty. ECLA assists the organisations of the Association in an advisory capacity and attends meetings of the Executive Committee.

RELATIONS WITH OAS

ECLA has co-ordination arrangements with OAS. In 1961 an agreement was signed setting up an ad hoc Co-ordination Committee of representatives of OAS, ECLA and the Inter-American Development Bank, which meets several times a year to take decisions on matters of common interest.

CENTRAL AMERICAN INTEGRATION

1952 Costa Rica, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras and Nicaragua established the Central American Economic Co-operation Committee (CCE) to:

1. Establish a common market.
2. Integrate industrial development.
3. Co-ordinate their agricultural economies.

1954 Establishment of Central American Advanced School for Public Administration, San José, Costa Rica.

1956 Establishment of Central American Research Institute for Industry (ICAITI) in Guatemala City.

1958 Agreement on the Central American Agreement for Industrial Integration signed.
Multilateral treaty on Central American Free Trade and Economic Integration signed, providing free trade for products representing one-third of inter-Central American trade.
Studies of problems of roads, railways, shipping, air transport, finance, weights and measures, statistical co-ordination and demography.

1959 Draft agreement drawn up for the establishment of a customs union.

Proposals for (1) establishment of a telecommunications centre, (2) juridical unification, (3) common marketing information, (4) central tourist organisation.

1960 General Treaty on Central American Economic Integration signed between El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, forming a customs union.
Secretariat: Guatemala City.

1961 Central American Integration Bank set up
Equalisation of import duties completed for 90 per cent of the items to be subject to the Common tariff.
Central American Uniform Customs Code was drafted.

1962 Costa Rica acceded to General Treaty. Equalisation of import duties extended to 95 per cent of the items to be subject to the Common tariff.
Central American Agreement on Tax Incentives to Industrial Development signed

Opened in 1963 to train senior African officials in techniques of development planning and to serve as a clearing house and documentation centre on all African development questions.

Director: MAMADOU TOURÉ (Mauritania)

ACTIVITIES

The work of the Commission is determined by decisions of its plenary sessions. The seventh session decided on the creation of seven Working Parties, composed of experts, to assist the Secretariat in carrying out action decided on by the Commission's various organs. They are concerned, respectively, with Intra-African trade, Monetary management and Inter-African payments, Industry and Natural Resources, Transport and Telecommunications, Agriculture, Manpower and Training, Economic Integration (composed of the chairmen of the other six Working Parties). Other standing organs of the Commission are the Conference of African Statisticians and the Conference of African Planners

Liaison Offices are maintained at ECA by UNESCO and WHO; in co-operation with ITU, work has begun on a pan-African Telecommunications system. ECA also runs a Joint Agricultural Division in conjunction with FAO. The Commission co-operates with the Organization of African Unity, and other organisations interested in African economic advancement.

An agreement was reached in October 1965 between ten members of the ECA to establish a Common Market for East and Central Africa.

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

The Bank's capital is derived from members' subscriptions to capital shares, and the amount of each subscription is based on relative economic resources. On December 31st, 1965, the total subscribed capital of the Bank was $21,606 million. Of this amount, however, only the sum of about $2,168 million had been paid in, partly in gold or dollars and partly in local currencies. The remainder is subject to call if required to meet the Bank's obligations. Most of the Bank's lendable funds come from its borrowing in world capital markets. As of December 31st, 1965, the Bank's outstanding debt was $2,727 million. The Bank also replenishes its funds through the sale of portions of its loans. These sales, the most part without the Bank guarantee, totalled $1,940 million by December 31st, 1965.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION—IDA

1818 H Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20433

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360.

The International Development Association began operations in November 1960. Affiliated to the World Bank, IDA advances capital on more flexible terms to underdeveloped countries. Members: 95.

ORGANISATION

President and Chairman of Executive Directors: Chairman of the World Bank (ex-officio).

Officers and staff of the World Bank serve concurrently as officers and staff of IDA.

FINANCE

IDA's initial resources were derived from members' subscriptions: the more industrialised nations pay in gold or freely convertible currencies, the less-developed nations pay 10 per cent in the above form and 90 per cent in their own currencies. By July 31st, 1965, IDA initial subscriptions totalled $996,455,000; its supplementary resources amounted to $888 million, including $18 million additional contributions from Sweden, and $125 million transfers from the World Bank. IDA funds available for commitment up to at least June 30th, 1966, total about $1,675 million

IDA may finance a wider range of projects than the World Bank, including projects which are not revenue-producing or directly productive. Projects must have "high development priority". By June 30th, 1965, IDA had extended 77 development credits aggregating $1,087 million to 29 countries

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE CORPORATION—IFC

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360.

Founded as an affiliate of the World Bank to encourage the growth of productive private enterprise in its member countries, particularly in the less-developed areas. Members: 81.

ORGANISATION

Although IFC is affiliated to the World Bank, it is a separate legal entity and its funds, subscribed by member countries, are separate from those of the Bank.

The Executive Directors of the Bank, appointed or elected by at least one government which is a member of IFC, serve as Directors of the International Finance Corporation.

PRINCIPAL OFFICERS

President: GEORGE D. WOODS.

Executive Vice-President: MARTIN M. ROSEN.

FUNCTIONS

1. Invests without government guarantee in sound projects of economic priority, mainly industrial enterprises.

2. Stimulates the international flow of private capital to developing countries

3. Assists the growth of local capital markets by providing financial and technical assistance.

FINANCIAL RECORD

IFC's funds for operations total $174 million.

INTERNATIONAL MONETARY FUND—IMF

19th and H Streets, Washington, D.C. 20431.

Telephone: EXecutive 3-6360

Aims to facilitate the expansion and balanced growth of international trade, to promote exchange stability, to maintain orderly exchange arrangements among members, to avoid competitive exchange depreciation, and to give confidence to members by making the Fund's resources available to them under adequate safeguards. Members: 103.

ORGANISATION

Chairman: PIERRE-PAUL SCHWEITZER (France).

Each of the 103 members is assigned a quota which determines its voting power and the amount of foreign exchange it may purchase from the Fund. Its subscription is equal to its quota and is payable partly in gold and partly in its own currency. The original quotas varied from $500,000 to $4,125 million but all quotas were enlarged by 50 per cent in 1958. Another general quota increase of 25 per cent was approved in 1965

General Arrangements to Borrow: An agreement, approved by the Fund in 1962 and renewed in 1965, whereby 10 industrial countries undertake to lend their currencies to the Fund up to the equivalent of $6,000 million, if these are necessary to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. The Fund made use of these facilities in December, 1964, and May, 1965, to help meet two drawings made on the Fund by Great Britain totalling $2,400 million.

The highest authority of the Fund is exercised by a Board of Governors, one Governor and an alternate representing each member. The Board of Governors normally meets once a year; it delegates many of its powers to a twenty-member Board of Executive Directors

FOOD AND AGRICULTURE ORGANIZATION—FAO

Viale delle Terme di Caracalla, Rome, Italy

Telephone. 5797

FAO was established in 1945 at a conference in Quebec. It exists to help nations raise their standard of living by improving the efficiency of farming, forestry and fisheries. Members: 110 full, 4 associate.

ORGANISATION

CONFERENCE

The Conference, the governing body of FAO, normally meets once every two years to approve the budget and determine policy. Each member nation has one delegation and one vote. The Conference draws up the programme of work, based on an assessment of the economic or technical needs of countries or regions. New members are elected by the Conference. The last Conference was held in Rome in November/December 1965.

COUNCIL

Acts as the governing body between Conference Sessions. The Council normally meets every spring and autumn, and briefly after every Conference Session. It is composed of representatives of 27 member nations, elected by the Conference for three-year terms. The most important standing Committees of the Council are: the Finance and Programme Committees, and the Committee on Commodity Problems, which reviews world trade in agricultural commodities.

SECRETARIAT

Director-General (1963-67). B. R. SEN (India).

Deputy Director-General: ORIS V. WELLS

The Director-General is elected by the Conference. He appoints and controls a staff of about 2,300 international civil servants, many of whom are technical experts, who work in the field in developing countries.

ACTIVITIES

FAO has two main functions to serve its member governments as an international agricultural information clearing house, and to give technical advice in the fields of agriculture, fisheries, forestry, nutrition and home economics. One of the world's best libraries on these subjects is housed in Rome, and FAO publishes many documents in English, French and Spanish on problems in these fields. FAO's administrative work is manifold, and includes projects and research work in many countries and territories. Technicians and experts from many countries attend specialised meetings to discuss problems, to plan investigations and assess their results, and to agree on necessary action. There is thus an international pooling of knowledge and experience, that helps the member nations keep more closely in step with the advances of agricultural knowledge.

FAO has working relations with about 40 inter-governmental organisations, and formal consultative relations with a number of non-governmental organisations.

FAO also co-ordinates a Freedom from Hunger Campaign, intended to widen the consciousness of individuals and governments of the world food problem and the measures needed to solve it.

GENERAL AGREEMENT ON TARIFFS AND TRADE—GATT

Villa le Bocage, Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone 34 60 11, 33 40 00, 33 20 00, 33 10 00

GATT came into force in January 1948. It is an international agreement aiming, primarily by fiscal measures to raise standards of living, to ensure full employment, to develop the world's resources, to expand production and exchange of goods, and to promote economic development. Members: 66 full members, 13 other forms of membership

ORGANISATION

TARIFF CONFERENCES

Held so that members may negotiate to reduce and stabilise tariff levels. There have been five Conferences:

Geneva	1947	Geneva	1956
Annecy	1949	Geneva	1960-61
Torquay	1951

As a result of the tariff negotiating conferences, customs duties have been reduced on tens of thousands of products, traded across the national frontiers. It is estimated that, under GATT, tariffs have been reduced on products accounting for about half the world's trade, and a much wider proportion stabilised.

The Kennedy Round of trade negotiations opened in May 1964. It is concerned with substantial reductions of tariffs on both industrial and agricultural products, with non-tariff trade barriers and with trade problems of developing countries

Chairman (1965): J. A. LACARTE (Uruguay)

Vice-Chairmen (1965): G. BRESSON (Upper Volta). K. L. PRUSS (New Zealand), R. ROTHSCHILD (Belgium)

Members meet usually once a year at Geneva. Tariff negotiations are organised, and consultations between member states, or with non-members, are arranged

COUNCIL OF REPRESENTATIVES

Set up in September 1960 to deal with urgent work arising between the annual Sessions, and to supervise the work of committees and working groups

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: ERIC WYNDHAM WHITE

Deputy Director-General: FINN GUNDELACH

Assistant Director-General for External Relations: ALBERT BALENSI

The Secretariat consists of a number of specialists in trade policy and trade intelligence, and a small administrative staff. It prepares and runs the Sessions, and services the work of the Council and the committees and working groups.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

HISTORY OF GATT

During the second world war the United States, the United Kingdom and other important trading countries discussed the establishment of international organisations to tackle the post-war problems of currency, investment and trade. The International Monetary Fund and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development were established before the end of the war, but the Charter for the International Trade Organisation (ITO) was not completed until March 1948. The first tariff negotiating conference was held at Geneva in 1947, and the resulting concessions were safeguarded under the terms of a multilateral agreement called the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade. It was signed on October 30th, 1947, at Geneva and came into force on January 1st, 1948. Originally the GATT was accepted by twenty-three countries

The GATT was intended as a stop-gap arrangement, pending the entry into force of the ITO (Havana) Charter and the creation of the International Trade Organisation. But, as events have worked out, GATT has stood alone since 1948 as the generally accepted international instrument which lays down rules of conduct for trade on a world-wide basis.

In recent years much of the work undertaken in GATT has been concentrated upon the trade and development problems of developing countries and practical steps have been taken to remove or reduce barriers which impede the expansion of their export trade. In 1965 a new Part IV of the General Agreement, on Trade and Development, was adopted and entered into force on a de facto basis.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE CENTRE

Villa le Bocage, Palais des Nations, Geneva

Established in May 1964 to provide trade information and advisory services to developing countries. These services aim primarily to assist developing countries in expanding their exports, and are available to both members and non-members of GATT.

BUDGET

Payments are based on each member's share of the trade between members. Contributions for 1965 totalled $1,748,250.

INTER-GOVERNMENTAL MARITIME CONSULTATIVE ORGANIZATION—IMCO

22 Berners Street, London, W.1, England

Telephone: LAN 6141.

IMCO was set up in 1959 to facilitate co-operation among governments and to achieve safety and efficient navigation. It seeks to remove restrictions on the movement of international shipping. Members: 60.

ORGANISATION

THE ASSEMBLY

President, 1965-67: JEAN MORIN (France).

The Assembly consists of delegates from all member countries, who each have one vote. Associate members and observers from other governments, the United Nations and UN agencies are also present. Sessions are held regularly every two years. The first took place in London early in 1959, the second in London in April 1961, the third in London in October 1963 and the fourth in Paris in September 1965. The Assembly is responsible for the election of members to the Council and to the Maritime Safety Committee. It considers reports from all subsidiary bodies and decides the action to be taken on them. The Assembly votes the agency's budget and determines the financial policy. An important part of its work is to recommend to members measures designed to promote maritime safety on the high seas.

THE COUNCIL

Chairman: G. BERTRAND (Belgium)

MEMBERS

Australia	Greece	Norway
Belgium	India	Sweden
Canada	Italy	United Kingdom
France	Japan	U.S.A.
German Federal Republic	Madagascar	U.S.S.R.
	Netherlands

The Council is the governing body of the Organization between the biennial sessions of the Assembly. The Council appoints the Secretary-General; transmits reports by the Maritime Safety Committee to the Assembly and reports on the work of the Organization generally; submits budget estimates and financial statements with comments and recommendations to the Assembly. The Council meets as often as necessary, normally twice a year.

THE MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

Chairman: K. J. NEUBERTH WIE (Norway).

MEMBERS

Argentina	Greece	Norway
Canada	Italy	Pakistan
France	Japan	United Kingdom
German Federal Republic	Liberia	U.S.A.
	Netherlands	U.S.S.R.

The Maritime Safety Committee consists of fourteen members elected by the Assembly for a term of four years. The Committee meets at least once a year and submits proposals to the Assembly on matters such as aids to navigation, construction and equipment of vessels, manning from a safety standpoint, rules for the prevention of collisions, transport of dangerous cargoes, maritime safety procedures and requirements, hydrographic information, log-books and navigational records, marine casualty investigation, search and rescue, and any other matters directly affecting maritime safety.

SUB-COMMITTEES

Tonnage Measurement.
International Code of Signals.
Sub-division and Stability Problems.
Fire Protection.
Oil Pollution

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: JEAN ROULLIER (France).

The Secretariat consists of the Secretary-General, the Deputy Secretary-General who is also Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee, and a staff appointed by the Secretary-General. The Secretariat keeps members informed of the activities of the Organization, submits financial statements and budget estimates to the Council and carries out any work assigned to it by the Assembly, the Council, the Maritime Safety Committee and other subsidiary bodies of IMCO.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1948, and Collision Regulations, 1948. IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom.

International Convention for Safety of Life at Sea, 1960, and Collision Regulations, 1960. A Conference held in 1960 revised the 1948 Safety Convention and prepared a new one. The 1960 Safety Convention, administered by IMCO, came into force on May 26th, 1965 and the 1960 Collision Regulations became effective on September 1st, 1965.

International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution of the Sea by Oil, 1954. IMCO has taken over administration from the United Kingdom and an international conference in 1962 adopted certain amendments to the 1954 Convention.

Sub-Committee on Sub-Division and Stability. Set up to examine watertight sub-division of passenger ships, the intact stability of passenger ships, cargo ships and fishing vessels, and the sub-division and damage stability of cargo ships.

Sub-Committee on International Code of Signals. Has revised the 1931 Code of Signals. The revised Code is related essentially to safety of navigation and persons, and is suitable for all forms of signalling. A figure-spelling table for universal use by radiotelephony has also been developed.

Sub-Committee on Tonnage Measurement. Aims to produce a unified system of tonnage measurement.

Sub-Committee on Fire Protection. Set up to deal with fire protection measures in ships, including tankers.

Sub-Committee on Oil Pollution. Set up to keep the problem of oil pollution under constant review.

Working Group on the Carriage of Dangerous Goods by Sea Set up to draft a unified International Code.

International Travel and Transport. A Conference on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic was convened by IMCO in London in March 1965. The Conference approved a Convention drawn up by the IMCO Export Group.

BUDGET

The establishment of IMCO was financed by a loan from the United Nations. Arrangements were made by the first Assembly to place the Organization on a sound financial basis with contributions assessed from member states. The budget for operations during 1966/67 was established at $1,744,492.

CONVENTIONS

PART I—PURPOSES

ARTICLE 1. (a) to provide machinery for co-operation among governments in the field of governmental regulation and practices relating to technical matters of all kinds affecting shipping engaged in international trade, and to encourage the general adoption of the highest practicable standards in matters concerning maritime safety and efficiency of navigation;

(b) to encourage the removal of discriminatory action and unnecessary restrictions by governments affecting shipping engaged in international trade so as to promote the availability of shipping services to the commerce of the world without discrimination; assistance and encouragement given by a government for the development of its national shipping and for purposes of security does not in itself constitute discrimination, provided that such assistance and encouragement is not based on measures designed to restrict the freedom of shipping of all flags to take part in international trade;

(c) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of matters concerning unfair restrictive practices by shipping concerns in accordance with Part II;

(d) to provide for the consideration by the Organization of any matters concerning shipping that may be referred to it by any organ or Specialised Agency of the United Nations;

(e) to provide for the exchange of information among governments on matters under consideration by the Organization.

PART II—FUNCTIONS

ARTICLE 2. The functions of the Organization shall be consultative and advisory.

ARTICLES 3 and 4. Description of functions.

PART III—MEMBERSHIP

ARTICLE 5. Membership in the Organization shall be open to all states.

ARTICLES 6—11. Conditions of membership.

PART IV—ORGANS

ARTICLE 12. The Organization shall consist of an Assembly, a Council, a Maritime Safety Committee, and such subsidiary organs as the Organization may at any time consider necessary; and a Secretariat

PART V—ASSEMBLY

ARTICLE 13. The Assembly shall consist of all the members.

ARTICLES 14—16 Powers and duties of the Assembly.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

PART VI—COUNCIL

ARTICLE 17. The Council shall consist of sixteen members and shall be composed as follows:

- (a) six shall be governments of nations with the largest interest in providing international shipping services;
- (b) six shall be governments of other nations with the largest interest in international seaborne trade;
- (c) two shall be elected by the Assembly from among the governments of nations having substantial interest in providing international shipping services, and
- (d) two shall be elected by the Assembly from among the governments of nations having a substantial interest in international seaborne trade.

ARTICLES 18–27. Powers and duties of the Council.

PART VII—MARITIME SAFETY COMMITTEE

ARTICLE 28. The Maritime Safety Committee shall consist of fourteen members elected by the Assembly from the members, governments of those nations having an important interest in maritime safety, of which not less than eight shall be the largest ship-owning nations, and the remainder shall be elected so as to ensure adequate representation of members, governments of other nations with an important interest in maritime safety, such as nations interested in the supply of large numbers of crews or in the carriage of large numbers of berthed and un-berthed passengers, and of major geographical areas

ARTICLE 29. The Maritime Safety Committee shall have the duty of considering any matter within the scope of the Organization and concerned with aids to navigation, construction and equipment of vessels, manning from a safety standpoint, rules for the prevention of collisions, handling of dangerous cargoes, maritime safety procedures and requirements, hydrographic information, log-books and navigational records, marine casualty investigation, salvage and rescue, and any other matters directly affecting maritime safety.

ARTICLES 30–32. Powers and duties of the Maritime Safety Committee.

PART VIII—SECRETARIAT

ARTICLE 33. The Secretariat shall comprise the Secretary-General, a Secretary of the Maritime Safety Committee and such staff as the Organization may require.

ARTICLES 34–38. Powers and duties of the Secretariat.

INTERNATIONAL ATOMIC ENERGY AGENCY—IAEA

Kaerntnering, Vienna I

Telephone: 52 45 25

Founded in 1957 to enlarge and accelerate the contribution of atomic energy to peace, health and prosperity throughout the world. World membership. 95

ORGANISATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Consists of representatives of all Member States, and meets once a year to decide questions of the programme, budget, membership and policy. It elects twelve members of the Board, and considers and approves reports for submission to the UN and agreements with the UN and other organisations. It appoints the Director-General.

President (1965): KOICHIRO ASAKAI (Japan).

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Meets approximately every third month to supervise the work of the Secretariat. Consists of twenty-five members representing member countries.

Chairman (1965–66): SHINSAKU HOGEN (Japan).

DIRECTOR-GENERAL

Responsible for the execution of policy through five departments: Technical Assistance; Technical Operations; Research and Isotopes; Safeguards and Inspection, Administration.

Director-General: Dr. SIGVARD EKLUND (Sweden)

SCIENTIFIC ADVISORY COMMITTEE

The Committee was set up in 1958 to advise the Board of Governors and the Director-General.

SIR WILLIAM PENNEY (U.K.), Prof. V. S. EMILYANOV (U.S.S.R.), Prof. B. GOLDSCHMIDT (France), Prof. LUIZ CINTRA DO PRADO (Brazil), Prof. W. B. LEWIS (Canada), Prof. I. I. RABI (U.S.A.)

ACTIVITIES

Reactors and Nuclear Power. The Agency has sent missions to study possibilities of nuclear power in Turkey and the Republic of Korea; it has completed a pre-investment study on power, including nuclear power, in the Philippines. In the Philippines, Tunisia and Korea, Agency experts advised on reactor safety and siting. Others took part in several water desalination and power missions to Member States.

Safeguards. The Agency has adopted a revised and extended system of safeguards against the diversion to military purposes of materials and equipment supplied. Some 27 Agency safeguards agreements now cover over 50 reactors in Member States. The Agency had designated 14 of its officials as inspectors, and they have made a score of safeguards inspections.

Health and Safety and Radiation Protection. A special advisory service has been set up at Agency headquarters to give information and advice on radiation protection and the management of radioactive wastes. Special training courses have been organised in radiation protection and Agency experts have visited Member States.

Exchange of Information. The Agency library contains some 110,500 scientific and technical volumes, and there is a collection of about 375 films dealing with atomic energy. Numerous panels and study groups are held, and an average of twelve major scientific meetings are convened annually. A Nuclear Data Unit has been set up to exchange data on neutron physics through computer centres throughout the world.

Regulatory Activities. IAEA has prepared drafts and model regulations as a basis for international rules and uniform practices for transport of radioactive materials, disposal of radioactive wastes, and safety of research reactors and critical assemblies.

Materials and Services. IAEA makes available the services of experts and visiting professors, provides equipment and training courses and sponsors research fellowships. It also has two mobile radioisotope laboratories. Resident regional advisers have been appointed for the Middle East and Far East. In the Agency Budget for 1964-65, $2,804,000 was provided for technical assistance.

Research and Laboratories. The Agency has laboratories at Seibersdorf, Austria (physics, chemistry, agriculture) and Vienna (medical physics, hydrology). They are intended for such activities as standardisation of radioactive sources, the establishment and study of international standards for measurement techniques, the calibration of equipment and its adaptation for use in various countries, and measurements and analyses in connection with the Agency's safeguards programme. Standardised samples of radionuclides for calibration purposes have been despatched to laboratories in member states in increasing variety and numbers. A marine biological research project is being carried out in collaboration with the Principality and the Oceanographic Institute of Monaco.

Training. During 1965, the IAEA has provided some 220 fellowships and about 30 visiting professors. It organised nine international and regional training courses.

Theoretical Physics Centre. At Trieste, the IAEA International Centre for Theoretical Physics completed its first year of operation. Twenty-seven fellows attended, from twenty countries, and the senior staff consisted of about twenty-five physicists. Two major seminars were held.

Agriculture. Co-ordinated international programmes are being carried out on the fertilizer uptake by plants, particularly rice and maize, elimination of insect pests through the sterile male techniques; plant breeding and mutations induced by radioisotopes, disease control; irradiation of food products.

Medicine. Work on nuclear medicine is mostly in collaboration with WHO and deals with the diagnostic and research applications of radionuclides, toxicology of radionuclides and physics of radiotherapy. More than 200 hospitals in 40 countries have taken part in an Agency programme for bringing greater uniformity into the measurement of radioiodine uptake by the thyroid gland.

Hydrology. IAEA has established an advisory and experimental service for the use of radioisotopes in connection with the developments of water resources. The Agency has participated in hydrological investigations in Cambodia, Kenya, Rhodesia, Tunisia and Chile, and under sub-contract for the UN Special Fund, in Jordan and Turkey.

BUDGET

The total budget estimate for 1966 amounts to $11,222,000 of which $2,318,000 is to be provided by voluntary contributions.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

SUMMARY OF THE STATUTE

(Adopted October 23rd, 1956)

The Agency is authorised:

1. To encourage and assist research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful uses throughout the world; and, if requested to do so, to act as an intermediary for the purposes of securing the performance of services or the supplying of materials, equipment, or facilities by one member of the Agency for another, and to perform any operation or service useful in research on, or development or practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

2. To make provision, in accordance with this Statute for materials, services, equipment, and facilities to meet the needs of research on, and development and practical application of, atomic energy for peaceful purposes, including the production of electric power, with due consideration for the needs of the under-developed areas of the world.

3. To foster the exchange of scientific and technical information on peaceful uses of atomic energy.

4. To encourage the exchange and training of scientists and experts in the field of peaceful uses of atomic energy.

5. To establish and administer safeguards designed to ensure that special fissionable and other materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its supervision or control are not used in such a way as to further any military purpose, and to apply safeguards, at the request of the parties, to any bilateral or multilateral arrangement or, at the request of a State, to any of that State's activities in the field of atomic energy.

6. To establish or adopt, in consultation and, where appropriate, in collaboration with the competent organs of the United Nations and with the specialised agencies concerned, standards of safety for protection of health and minimisation of danger to life and property (including such standards for labour conditions), and to provide for the application of these standards to its own operations as well as to the operations making use of materials, services, equipment, facilities, and information made available by the Agency or at its request or under its control or supervision; and to provide for the application of these standards, at the request of the parties, to operations under any bilateral or multilateral arrangement, or, at the request of a state, to any of that state's activities in the field of atomic energy.

7. To acquire or establish any facilities, plant and equipment useful in carrying out its authorised functions, whenever the facilities, plant, and equipment otherwise available to it in the area concerned are inadequate or available only on terms it deems unsatisfactory.

ORGANISATION

General Conference. A General Conference consisting of representatives of all members shall meet in regular annual session and in such special sessions as shall be convened. The Conference may discuss any matters within the scope of this statute or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in this Statute, and may make recommendations.

The General Conference shall:

1. Elect members of the Board of Governors.
2. Approve states for membership.
3. Consider the annual report of the Board.
4. Approve reports to be submitted to the United Nations.
5. Approve any agreement or agreements between the Agency and the United Nations and other organisations.
6. Approve rules and limitations regarding the exercise of borrowing powers.
7. Approve amendments to the Statute.
8. Approve the appointment of the Director-General.

Board of Governors. The Board of Governors is chosen by rules laid down in Article VI of the Statute.

The Board shall have authority to carry out the functions of the Agency in accordance with the Statute, subject to its responsibilities to the General Conference. It shall meet at such times as it may determine and may establish such committees as it deems advisable.

The Board shall prepare an annual report and any other reports the Agency is required to make. These shall be submitted to the General Conference.

Staff. The staff of the Agency shall be headed by a Director-General. The Director-General shall be appointed by the Board of Governors with the approval of the General Conference for a term of four years. The Director-General shall be responsible for the appointment, organisation, and functioning of the staff. The staff shall include such qualified scientific and technical and other personnel as may be required to fulfil the objectives and functions of the Agency. The Agency shall be guided by the principle that its permanent staff shall be kept to a minimum.

Information and Materials. Each member should make available such information as would, in the judgment of the member, be helpful to the Agency.

Members may make available to the Agency such quantities of special fissionable materials as they deem advisable and on such terms as shall be agreed with the Agency. On request of the Agency a member shall deliver to another member or group of members such quantities of such materials as the Agency may specify. The Agency shall be responsible for storing and protecting materials in its possession. It shall ensure that these materials shall be safeguarded against hazards of the weather, unauthorised removal or diversion, damage or destruction, including sabotage, and forcible seizure. In storing special fissionable materials in its possession, the Agency shall ensure the geographical distribution of these materials in such a way as not to allow concentration of large amounts of such materials in any one country or region of the world.

Projects and Safeguards. Any member or group of members of the Agency desiring to set up any research project for peaceful purposes may request the assistance of the Agency in securing special fissionable and other materials. For the purpose of considering the request, the Agency may send into the territory of the member or group persons qualified to examine the project.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

With respect to any Agency project the Agency shall have the following rights and responsibilities:

1. To examine the design of specialised equipment and facilities, including nuclear reactors, and to approve it only from the viewpoint of assuring that it will not further any military purpose, that it complies with applicable health and safety standards.
2. To require the maintenance and production of operating records and progress reports.
3. To approve the means to be used for the chemical processing of irradiated materials solely to ensure that this chemical processing will not lend itself to diversion of materials for military purposes and will comply with applicable health and safety standards.
4. To send into the territory inspectors who shall have access at all times to all places and data and relevant persons.

Finance. The Board of Governors shall submit to the General Conference the annual budget estimates for the expenses of the Agency.

Expenditure shall be classified as:

1. Administrative expenses (including costs of staff and meetings and costs of implementing safeguards).
2. Expenses in connection with any materials, facilities, plant, and equipment acquired or established by the Agency.

The Board shall have the authority to exercise borrowing powers on behalf of the Agency.

Privileges and Immunities. The Agency shall enjoy in the territory of each member such legal capacity and such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the exercise of its functions.

Disputes. Any question or dispute concerning the interpretation or application of this Statute which is not settled by negotiation shall be referred to the International Court of Justice unless the parties concerned agree on another mode of settlement.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR ORGANIZATION—ILO

154 Rue de Lausanne, Geneva, Switzerland

Founded in 1919 to deal with social and labour problems. In 1946 ILO became UN's first Specialised Agency.
Members: 114.

ORGANISATION

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

President (1965). SAYYID HASHIM RAZA (Pakistan)

Vice-Presidents (1965). A. E. GURINOVICH (Byelorussia), DANTEL ANDRIANTSITOHAINA (Malagasy Republic), ALFONSO SANCHEZ MADARIAGA (Mexico).

The supreme deliberative body of ILO. Normally meets annually at Geneva. Attended by more than 1,000 delegates, advisers and observers. National delegations are composed of two government delegates, one employers' delegate and one workers' delegate. Non-governmental delegates can speak and vote independently of the views of their government. Conference elects the Governing Body and adopts the Budget and International Labour Conventions and Recommendations.

The President and Vice-Presidents hold office for the term of the Conference only, should a second Conference be held new appointments would be made.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR OFFICE

Director-General: DAVID A. MORSE.

Deputy Directors-General: C. W. JENKS (United Kingdom), A. M. ANMAR (U.A.R.).

Assistant Directors-General: W. YALDEN-THOMPSON (Canada), F. BLANCHARD (France), ANA FIGUEROA (Chile), H. A. MAJID (Pakistan).

Treasurer-Comptroller: E. J. RICHES (New Zealand).

The International Labour Office is the Organisation's Secretariat and publishing house. Employs over 2,000 officials of more than 80 nationalities.

GOVERNING BODY

Chairman (1965-66): OUMAR BABA DIARRA (Mali).

Employers' Vice-Chairman (1965-66): PIERRE WALINE (France).

Workers' Vice-Chairman (1965-66): JEAN MÖRI (Switzerland).

ILO's executive council. Normally meets three or four times a year at Geneva to decide policy and programmes. Composed of 24 government members, 12 employers' members and 12 workers' members. Ten of the government members represent "states of chief industrial importance"—Canada, Republic of China (Formosa), France, German Federal Republic, India, Italy, Japan, U.S.S.R., United Kingdom, United States. The remaining 14 are elected from other countries every three years. Employers' and workers' members are elected as individuals, not as national candidates.

INTERNATIONAL INSTITUTE FOR LABOUR STUDIES

Established by ILO in March 1960. The Institute is an advanced educational and research institution in social and labour policy, and brings together international experts representing employers, management, workers and government interests. Activities include international and regional Study Courses, and are financed by grants and an Endowment Fund to which governments and other bodies contribute.

Director: R. W. COX.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR STANDARDS

One of ILO's primary functions is to build a code of international law and practice. International Labour Standards are set by the International Labour Conference in the form of Conventions and Recommendations. 124 Conventions and 125 Recommendations have been adopted. These form the International Labour Code.

Countries are not bound to ratify Conventions but they are obliged to bring Conventions to the notice of their legislative authorities. A country ratifying a Convention has to report periodically to ILO on its implementation. Countries must also report with respect to unratified Conventions and Recommendations.

Of Conventions dealing with basic human rights, three are designed to ensure freedom of association, two are directed against forced labour, and two are intended to eliminate discrimination.

TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION

ILO technical co-operation has expanded greatly in recent years and now covers the following main fields: manpower organisation, productivity and management development, co-operation, small-scale industries and handicrafts, social security, labour conditions and administration

Technical assistance is given under three main programmes: UN Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance (EPTA), UN Special Fund and ILO Regular Budget. By the beginning of 1965, 54 Special Fund projects had been assigned to ILO, of which 42 were already in operation. The areas benefiting from assistance in 1964 were Africa (31.5 per cent), Asia (30.4 per cent), Latin America (23.2 per cent), Near and Middle East (7.8 per cent), Europe (4.3 per cent) and inter-regional (2.8 per cent).

1964 expenditure: EPTA $5,819,124, Special Fund projects $5,955,497, Regular Budget allocation $1,331,811.

INTERNATIONAL LABOUR CONFERENCE

The 49th Session of the International Labour Conference was held in June 1965, and was attended by over 1,000 delegates, technical advisers and observers from 104 countries and territories, including 68 cabinet ministers.

During the Conference five new instruments were adopted. They include four texts concerning the employment of young workers for underground work in mines of all kinds; a Convention and a Recommendation on the minimum age of admission to employment; a Convention on medical examination for fitness for employment; a Recommendation on conditions of work; and a Recommendation on the employment of women with family responsibilities

The Conference also debated a report submitted by the Director-General, which examined closely the three major areas of future ILO action on which wide agreement was reached during the Conference debates in 1963 and 1964: human resources and economic development; the development of social institutions; and conditions of life and work

The Conference also took note of a special report on the Application of the Declaration concerning the Policy of Apartheid of the Republic of South Africa

INTERNATIONAL TELECOMMUNICATION UNION—ITU

Place des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

ITU succeeded the International Telegraph Union in 1934. It has three main purposes: to encourage world co-operation in the use of tele-communication, to promote the development of technical facilities and their efficient operation, and to harmonise the actions of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Members: 129.

ORGANISATION

PLENIPOTENTIARY CONFERENCE

The supreme organ of ITU; meets about every five years. Each member has one vote at the Conference, whose main tasks are to approve budget policy and accounts, to negotiate with other international organisations, and generally direct policy. Last Conference Montreux, September 1965. Next Conference, Geneva 1971

ADMINISTRATIVE CONFERENCES

The Administrative Telegraph and Telephone Conference: revises telegraph and telephone regulations

Administrative Radio Conference: revises radio regulations, elects the members of the International Frequency Board, and reviews its activities

Administrative Conferences meet at irregular intervals according to technical needs, and there may also be regional Administrative Conferences held ad hoc.

ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCIL

The Administrative Council meets annually in Geneva; the 20th session was held in April and May 1965. The Council is composed of 29 members elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference

The Council helps the implementation of the Convention's provisions, and executes the decisions of the Plenipotentiary Conference and, where appropriate, the decisions of the conferences and meetings of the Union. It conducts relations with other international organisations, and approves the annual budget.

GENERAL SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: Dr. MANOHAR BALAJI SARWATE (India).

Deputy Secretary-General: MOHAMED MILI (Tunisia).

Director of External Affairs: JEAN PERSIN (France).

Director of Information: RUSSELL COOK (U.S.A.).

The Secretary-General is elected by the Plenipotentiary Conference, and is responsible to it for the General Secretariat's work, and for the Union's administrative and financial services. The General Secretariat's staff totals 176; the working languages are French, English and Spanish.

INTERNATIONAL FREQUENCY REGISTRATION BOARD (IFRB)

Chairman: RENÉ PETIT (France); 11 mems; number of staff 126; Budget (1965) Swiss francs 5,268,400.

IFRB records assignments of radio frequencies and provides technical advice to enable members of the Union to operate as many radio channels as possible in overcrowded parts of the radio spectrum. It also investigates cases of harmful interference and makes recommendations for their solution.

INTERNATIONAL TELEGRAPH AND TELEPHONE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCITT)

Director: JEAN ROUVIÈRE (France), number of staff 28; Budget (1965) Swiss francs 1,283,600.

CCITT is currently organising fourteen study groups covering transmission problems, operation and tariffs, radio relay links, maintenance, electromagnetic dangers, protection of equipment, definitions, vocabulary and symbols, apparatus, local connecting lines, facsimile- and photo-telegraphy, quality of transmission, specifications, telegraph and telex switching, telephone signalling and switching and planning the development of an international network. It has its own telephony laboratory.

INTERNATIONAL RADIO CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE (CCIR)

Director (acting): LESLIE W. HAYES (United Kingdom); number of staff 20, Budget (1965) Swiss francs 961,900.

CCIR is currently organising fourteen study groups covering transmitters, receivers, fixed service systems, ground-wave propagation, tropospheric propagation, ionospheric propagation, standard frequencies and time signals, international monitoring, radio relay systems, broadcasting, television, tropical broadcasting, mobile services, vocabulary, and space communications, on which a conference was held in 1963. The television study group is working on the following matters: television recording, television standards for both black and white and colour transmission, ratio of the wanted to unwanted signal in television, reduction of band width, conversion of a television signal from one standard to another, estimates of the quality of television pictures, etc.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

HISTORY OF ITU

The General Assembly of the United Nations acknowledged ITU as the specialised agency in the field of telecommunication on November 15th, 1947. ITU is the oldest of the specialised agencies. Its origin dates back to May 1865, when the International Telegraph Union was founded in Paris by the signing of the International Telegraph Convention. The Paris Convention was revised in Vienna in 1868, in Rome in 1872 and in St. Petersburg in 1875. At Vienna it was decided to create a permanent international bureau, which became the forerunner of the present General Secretariat of ITU. From 1868 to 1948 its headquarters were in Berne.

In 1932 two plenipotentiary conferences were held in Madrid: a Telegraph and Telephone Conference and a Radio-telegraph Conference. The two existing Conventions were amalgamated in a single International Telecommunication Convention, and the countries which signed or acceded to it formed the International Telecommunication Union, replacing the Telegraph Union. Four sets of regulations were annexed to the Convention: Telegraph, Telephone, Radio and the Additional Radio Regulations.

A Plenipotentiary Conference met in Atlantic City in 1947 to revise the Madrid Convention. It introduced radical changes in the organisation of the Union: new organs were created; it became a UN specialised agency, and in 1948 its headquarters were transferred from Berne to Geneva.

The Radio Conference, which met in 1947 at the same time as the Plenipotentiary Conference, prepared a new frequency allocation table for the various radio services.

The new procedure provided for an engineering study to be made of each frequency notified to the International Frequency Registration Board. At the Radio Conference held in Geneva in 1959, the radio frequency spectrum was re-apportioned. (Within this, various bands are allocated to the Fixed, Broadcasting, Aeronautical Mobile, Land Mobile, Maritime Mobile, Radionavigation, Radiolocation, Space, Earth-Space, Radio Astronomy, Meteorological Aids, Amateur, Standard Frequency and Time Signal Services). Advances in knowledge, techniques and usage required allocations to be made beyond the previous limit of 10,500 Mc/s; allocations were therefore made up to 40,000 Mc/s. Although the future radio requirements for the new services of space and earth-space and for radio astronomy could not be foreseen, care was taken to ensure that the research in this field would not be hampered by lack of frequency allocation.

A Plenipotentiary Conference was held in Buenos Aires in 1952, in Geneva during 1959 and in Montreux in 1965. Telegraph and Telephone Conferences and Radio Conferences are normally held every five years. The last Telegraph and Telephone Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Paris in 1949 and in Geneva in 1958; Radio Conferences were held in Cairo in 1938, in Atlantic City in 1947, and in Geneva in 1959. In October and November 1963, ITU held a world Space Radiocommunications Conference in Geneva at which over 6,000 megacycles (about 15 per cent of the entire radio frequency spectrum) were allocated for outer space purposes.

CONVENTION AND REGULATIONS

GENEVA CONVENTION

The Geneva Convention 1959, which replaced the 1947 Atlantic City Convention, and lays down the organisation and structure of ITU, came into force on January 1st, 1961. It contains the fundamental provisions which bind the Member and Associate Member Governments of the Union with the object of facilitating relations and co-operation between the peoples by means of efficient telecommunication services. These provisions deal with the composition, functions and structure of the Union, the application of the Convention and Regulations, relations with the United Nations and with International Organisations, and with special rules for radio.

RADIO REGULATIONS

The Regulations are attached to the Geneva Convention, and bind all Members and Associate Members. They include

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

general rules for the assignment and use of frequencies and—the most important part of the Regulations—a Table of Frequency Allocations between 10 kc/s and 40 Kc/s to the various radio services: broadcasting, television, radio astronomy, navigation aid, point-to-point service, maritime mobile, amateur, etc. Chapter III deals with the duties of the International Frequency Registration Board. The Regulations governing measures against interference follow. Subsequently, there are the administrative provisions for stations (secrecy, licences, identification, service documents, inspection of mobile stations).

Chapters VI and VII are concerned with personnel and working conditions in the mobile services, and Chapter VIII with radio assistance in life saving. The last two chapters deal with radiotelegrams and radiotelephone calls and miscellaneous stations and services.

A new Convention, signed at Montreux in November 1965, will take effect on January 1st, 1967, and will replace the Geneva Convention 1959

UNITED NATIONS EDUCATIONAL, SCIENTIFIC AND CULTURAL ORGANIZATION—UNESCO

7 & 9 place de Fontenoy, Paris 7e, France

Telephone SUFren 98-70, SUFren 86-00, SOLferino 99-48

UNESCO was established in 1945. The purpose of the Organisation is to contribute to peace and security by promoting collaboration among the nations through education, science, and culture in order to further universal respect for justice, for the rule of law, and for the human rights and fundamental freedoms which are affirmed for the peoples of the world, without distinction of race, sex, language, or religion, by the Charter of the United Nations.

Members: 120.

ORGANISATION

GENERAL CONFERENCE

Meets in ordinary session once in two years and is composed of representatives of the member states
Thirteenth Session: Oct–Nov. 1964, Paris

President: N. M. SISSAKIAN (U S S R.).

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Consists of 30 members elected for a four-year term. Prepares the programme to be submitted to the Conference and supervises its execution. The seventieth session of the Board took place in Paris in May 1965.

Chairman: MOHAMMED EL FASSI (Morocco).

SECRETARIAT

Director-General: RENÉ MAHEU (France).

Deputy Director-General: Dr. MALCOLM S. ADISHESHAH (India).

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. GABRIEL BETANCUR-MEJIA (Colombia), JOHN E. FOBES (U.S.A.), Prof ALEXEY N. MATVEYEV (U S S R.).

The Director-General has an international staff of more than 500 civil servants.

CO-OPERATING BODIES

National Commissions and Co-operating Bodies have been set up in most member states. These help to integrate work within the member states and the work of UNESCO.

PRIMARY TASKS

1. To eliminate illiteracy and encourage universal free and compulsory education.

2. To obtain for each person an education conforming to his aptitudes and to the needs of society, including technological training and higher education.

3. To promote, through education, respect for Human Rights throughout all nations

4. To overcome the obstacles to the free flow of persons, ideas, and knowledge between the countries of the world.

5. To promote the progress and utilisation of science for the benefit of all mankind.

6. To focus the social sciences on the study of particular social questions for the benefit both of the general public and of governments.

7. To assure the preservation of the world's inheritance of books, works of art and monuments of history and science, to make this cultural heritage known and available to all, and to promote mutual appreciation of differing cultural values.

8. To advance through the media of mass communication the causes of truth, freedom, and peace.

9. To bring about better understanding among the peoples of the world and to convince them of the necessity of co-operating loyally with one another in the framework of the United Nations.

10. To provide clearing-house and exchange service in all its fields of action, together with technical aid to nations and peoples in emergencies

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

REGULAR PROGRAMME

Development of International Co-operation. Promotion of co-operation in natural science, social sciences, education and mass communication Organisation of seminars, discussions and conferences.

Improving Documentation. Collection, analysis and diffusion of information, including statistics Promotion of national Documentation Centres

School Education. Extension of free and compulsory education, improvement of school curricula, education for international understanding, vocational and technical education, higher education, and educational planning Education Outside School. Fundamental education (community development), adult education and youth work.

Aid to Scientific Research and Development. Creation of international bodies and promotion of research in a wide variety of natural sciences, with particular reference to their application to development

Applied Social Sciences. Use of social sciences to study and solve great contemporary social problems such as human rights, racial prejudice and social questions in the developing countries

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

CONSTITUTION

London, November 16th, 1945

The Governments of the States parties to this Constitution on behalf of their peoples declare:

That since wars begin in the minds of men, it is in the minds of men that the defences of peace must be constructed;

That ignorance of each other's ways and lives has been a common cause, throughout the history of mankind, of that suspicion and mistrust between the peoples of the world through which their differences have all too often broken into war;

That the great and terrible war which has now ended was a war made possible by the denial of the democratic principles of the dignity, equality, and mutual respect of men, and by the propagation, in their place, through ignorance and prejudice, of the doctrine of the inequality of men and races;

That the wide diffusion of culture, and the education of humanity for justice and liberty and peace are indispensable to the dignity of man and constitute a sacred duty which all the nations must fulfil in a spirit of mutual assistance and concern;

That a peace based exclusively upon the political and economic arrangements of governments would not be a peace which could secure the unanimous, lasting, and sincere support of the peoples of the world, and that the peace must therefore be founded, if it is not to fail, upon the intellectual and moral solidarity of mankind.

For these reasons, the States parties to this Constitution, believing in full and equal opportunities for education for all, in the unrestricted pursuit of objective truth, and in the free exchange of ideas and knowledge, are agreed and determined to develop and to increase the means of communication between their peoples and to employ these means for the purposes of mutual understanding and a truer and more perfect knowledge of each other's lives.

In consequence whereof they do hereby create the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organisation for the purpose of advancing, through the educational and scientific and cultural relations of the peoples of the world, the objectives of international peace and of the common welfare of mankind for which the United Nations Organisation was established and which its Charter proclaims.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL UNION—UPU

Berne, Switzerland

Telephone: (031) 44 06 21.

By the Treaty of Berne, 1874, the General Postal Union was founded, beginning operations in July 1875. Three years later its name was changed to the Universal Postal Union. In 1948 UPU became a Specialised Agency of UN. Members: 127.

CONGRESS

The Supreme body of the Union is Congress which meets every five years. Its duties are legislative and consist mainly of revision of the Acts. Fifteen Congresses have been held:

Berne . . .	1874	London . . .	1929
Paris . . .	1878	Cairo . . .	1934
Lisbon . . .	1885	Buenos Aires . . .	1939
Vienna . . .	1891	Paris . . .	1947
Washington . . .	1897	Brussels . . .	1952
Rome . . .	1906	Ottawa . . .	1957
Madrid . . .	1920	Vienna . . .	1964
Stockholm . . .	1924

The sixteenth Congress is to be held in Japan in 1969.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Between Congresses, an Executive Council, created by the Paris Congress 1947, meets annually at Berne. It is composed of 27 member countries of the Union elected by Congress on the basis of an equitable geographical distribution. Its role is to ensure continuity of the Union's work in the interval between Congresses, namely to study the problems submitted to it by Congress.

CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE ON POSTAL STUDIES

At the Ottawa Congress 1957 the Consultative Committee for Postal Studies was established, the aim of which is to make recommendations on technical, operational, and economical questions related to the postal service. All the member countries of the Union are members of this Committee, the work of which is conducted and co-ordinated by a Management Council of 26 members

INTERNATIONAL BUREAU

The day-to-day work of UPU is executed by a permanent organ called the International Bureau stationed at Berne. It serves as an instrument of liaison, information and consultation for the postal administration of the member countries.

Director-General of the International Bureau: Dr. EDOUARD WEBER (Switzerland).

SPECIAL AGREEMENTS

The activities of the international postal service, other than letter mail, are governed by Special Agreements. These are binding only for the countries which have acceded to them. There are eight such Agreements:

1. Agreement concerning Insured Letters and Boxes.
2. Agreement concerning Postal Parcels.
3. Agreement concerning Postal Money Orders and postal Travellers' Cheques.

4. Agreement concerning Transfers to and from Postal Cheque Accounts.

5. Agreement concerning Cash on Delivery items.

6. Agreement concerning the Collection of Bills.

7. Agreement concerning the International Savings Bank Service.

8. Agreement concerning Subscriptions to Newspapers and Periodicals.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

BUDGET

The Vienna Congress, 1964, fixed 5,300,000 Swiss francs as the figure for annual expenditure. This sum, and any extraordinary expenses, are borne by members. Members are listed in seven classes setting out the proportion they should pay.

PUBLICATIONS

Union Postale (monthly): published in French, German, English, Arabic, Chinese, Spanish and Russian.

CONSTITUTION AND CONVENTIONS

CONSTITUTION

Drawn up at the Vienna Congress of 1964, the Constitution of the Universal Postal Union came into force on January 1st, 1966. It is the legal basis of the Union, and implementation of its provisions is obligatory for all members. It is a diplomatic instrument which acquired legal force in member countries after ratification.

UNIVERSAL POSTAL CONVENTION

Contains the rules relating to letter mail. Binding on all member countries.

BERNE CONVENTION (1874)

The essential principles of the Union, introduced by the Berne Convention and still appearing in the Constitution and the present Convention are the following:

1. Formation of one single postal territory.
2. Unification of postal charges.
3. Abolition of the sharing of charges between the sender country and the country of destination.
4. Guarantee of freedom of transit.
5. Settlement of disputes by arbitration.
6. Establishment of a central office under the name of the International Bureau paid for by all members.
7. Periodical meeting of Congresses.

WORLD HEALTH ORGANIZATION—WHO

Palais des Nations, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone: 33 10 00, 33 20 00, 33 40 00.

Established in 1948 the purpose of WHO is the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.
Members: 122 full, 3 associate.

ORGANISATION

WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

President (1965–66): Dr. VICTORIO VINCENTE OLGUIN (Argentina).

Delegates from member countries meet in Assembly every year. A programme for world health is carried and a budget approved. The Assembly is the supreme body of WHO; it appoints the Director-General, admits new members and decides the scale of members' contributions to the budget.

EXECUTIVE BOARD

Chairman: Dr. KARL EVANG (Norway).

Vice-Chairmen: Dr. HURUSTIATI SUBANDRIO (Indonesia), Dr. OUSMANE KEITA (Guinea).

The Board is composed of twenty-four health experts designated by, but not representing, their governments. It meets at least twice a year to review the Director-General's programme, which it submits to the Assembly. It also advises the Assembly on any questions referred to it by that body.

SECRETARIAT

Headquarters: Palais des Nations, Geneva

Director-General: Dr. M. G. CANDAU (Brazil).

Deputy Director-General: Dr. P. DOROLLE.

Assistant Directors-General: Dr. F. GRUNDY, Dr. N. F. IZMEROV, Dr. J. KAREFA-SMART, Dr. P. M. KAUL, M. P. SIEGEL.

REGIONS

Africa: Dr. A. QUENUM, Brazzaville, Congo.

Americas: Dr. ABRAHAM HORWITZ, Pan-American Sanitary Bureau, Washington, D.C., U.S.A.

Eastern Mediterranean: Dr. A. H. TABA, Alexandria, United Arab Republic.

Europe: Dr. P. J. J. VAN DE CALSEYDE, Copenhagen, Denmark.

South-East Asia: Dr. C. MANI, New Delhi, India.

Western Pacific: Dr. I. C. FANG, Manila, Philippines (to be succeeded by Dr. FRANCISCO J. DY, July 1966).

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

ACTIVITIES IN 1965

WORLD HEALTH DAY

April 7th. Theme for 1965 was "Smallpox, constant alert". Though smallpox was the first disease against which an effective method of immunisation was discovered, tens of thousands of cases are still reported every year and countries normally free of the disease have to guard against it being imported.

ASSEMBLY

Met in Geneva in May and adopted a budget for 1966 of $42,442,000, representing an increase of nearly $3 million over 1965.

Amendment to Constitution. The Assembly adopted an amendment to the WHO Constitution so that it may suspend or exclude from the organisation a member who practises a policy of racial discrimination. The amendment will come into force when ratified by two-thirds of the members.

The World Health Research Centre. The Assembly decided that this project required further study and consideration. In the meantime WHO's research work in epidemiology and the application of communications science as well as its system of reference centres are to be further developed.

The International Agency for Research on Cancer. The Assembly endorsed and authorised the establishment of this agency, which is sponsored by the Governments of France, Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, United Kingdom and U.S.A. Australia and U.S.S.R. also participate. It will serve as a means through which participating states and WHO together with the International Union against Cancer may co-operate in the support and stimulation of all phases of cancer research. The headquarters are at Lyons, France.

Drugs. The Assembly urged member states to keep under surveillance abuse of drugs not classified as narcotic. The Director-General was requested to study the feasibility of international control measures.

Programme of Work 1967-71. The Assembly approved a general programme of work, under the same general headings as in previous five-year plans: strengthening of national health services; measures against communicable and non-communicable diseases including cardiovascular diseases, cancer and mental illnesses; environmental health; education and training, the continuation of services of world-wide interest including international quarantine; and the intensification of medical research. The needs of newly independent countries are given especial attention as are a number of domains of increasing importance, e.g. adverse reactions to pharmaceutical preparations, the effects of micro-contaminants such as food additives and radio-active residues, and human reproduction. A programme on the question of world population is to be developed.

MALARIA ERADICATION

Malaria eradication continued to progress. Of the population living in the originally malarious areas of the world (estimated at 1,550 million people) 52 per cent are now protected from the threat of malaria and 75 per cent are living in areas where malaria is eradicated or where an eradication campaign is in progress.

CONSTITUTION

CHAPTER I

The objective of the World Health Organisation shall be the attainment by all peoples of the highest possible level of health.

CHAPTER II

In order to achieve its objective, the functions of the Organisation shall be:

- (a) to act as the directing and co-ordinating authority on international health work;
- (b) to establish and maintain effective collaboration with the United Nations, specialised agencies, governmental health administrations, professional groups and such other organisations as may be deemed appropriate;
- (c) to assist governments, upon request, in strengthening health services;
- (d) to furnish appropriate technical assistance and, in emergencies, necessary aid upon the request or acceptance of governments;
- (e) to provide or assist in providing, upon the request of the United Nations, health services and facilities to special groups, such as the peoples of trust territories;
- (f) to establish and maintain such administrative and technical services as may be required, including epidemiological and statistical services;
- (g) to stimulate and advance work to eradicate epidemic, endemic and other diseases,
- (h) to promote, in co-operation with other specialised agencies where necessary, the prevention of accidental injuries;
- (i) to promote, in co-operation with other specialised agencies where necessary, the improvement of nutrition, housing, sanitation, recreation, economic or working conditions and other aspects of environmental hygiene;
- (j) to promote co-operation among scientific and professional groups which contribute to the advancement of health;
- (k) to propose conventions, agreements and regulations, and make recommendations with respect to international health matters and to perform such duties as may be assigned thereby to the Organisation and are consistent with its objective,
- (l) to promote maternal and child health and welfare and to foster the ability to live harmoniously in a changing total environment;
- (m) to foster activities in the field of mental health, especially those affecting the harmony of human relations;
- (n) to promote and conduct research in the field of health;
- (o) to promote improved standards of teaching and training in the health, medical and related professions;
- (p) to study and report on, in co-operation with other specialised agencies where necessary, administrative and social techniques affecting public health and medical care from preventive and curative points of view, including hospital services and social security;

- (q) to provide information, counsel and assistance in the field of health;
- (r) to assist in developing an informed public opinion among all peoples on matters of health;
- (s) to establish and revise as necessary international nomenclatures of diseases, of causes of death and of public health practices;
- (t) to standardise diagnostic procedures as necessary;
- (u) to develop, establish and promote international standards with respect to food, biological, pharmaceutical and similar products;
- (v) generally to take all necessary action to attain the objective of the Organisation.

CHAPTER III

Membership in the Organisation shall be open to all states.

CHAPTER IV

The work of the Organisation shall be carried out by:

The World Health Assembly
The Executive Board
The Secretariat

CHAPTER V

THE WORLD HEALTH ASSEMBLY

The functions of the Health Assembly shall be:

- (a) to determine the policies of the Organisation;
- (b) to name the Members entitled to designate a person to serve on the Board;
- (c) to appoint the Director-General;
- (d) to review and approve reports and activities of the Board and of the Director-General and to instruct the Board in regard to matters upon which action, study, investigation or report may be considered desirable;
- (e) to establish such committees as may be considered necessary for the work of the Organisation;
- (f) to supervise the financial policies of the Organisation and to review and approve the budget;
- (g) to instruct the Board and the Director-General to bring to the attention of Members and of international organisations, governmental or non-governmental, any matter with regard to health which the Health Assembly may consider appropriate;
- (h) to invite any organisation, international or national, governmental or non-governmental, which has responsibilities related to those of the Organisation, to appoint representatives to participate, without right of vote, in its meetings or in those of the committees and conferences convened under its authority, on conditions prescribed by the Health Assembly, but in the case of national organisations, invitations shall be issued only with the consent of the government concerned;
- (i) to consider recommendations bearing on health made by the General Assembly, the Economic and Social Council, the Security Council or Trusteeship Council of the United Nations, and to report to them on the steps taken by the Organisation to give effect to such recommendations;

THE UNITED NATIONS—(INTER-GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES)

- (j) to report to the Economic and Social Council in accordance with any agreement between the Organisation and the United Nations;
- (k) to promote and conduct research in the field of health by the personnel of the Organisation, by the establishment of its own institutions or by co-operation with official or non-official institutions of any Member with the consent of its government;
- (l) to establish such other institutions as it may consider desirable;
- (m) to take any other appropriate action to further the objective of the Organisation.

The World Health Assembly shall have authority to adopt regulations concerning:

- (a) sanitary and quarantine requirements and other procedures designed to prevent the international spread of disease;
- (b) nomenclatures with respect to diseases, causes of death and public health practices;
- (c) standards with respect to diagnostic procedures for international use;
- (d) standards with respect to the safety, purity, and potency of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce;
- (e) advertising and labelling of biological, pharmaceutical and similar products moving in international commerce.

CHAPTER VI

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD

The Board shall consist of twenty-four persons designated by as many Members.

The Board shall meet at least twice a year and shall determine the place of each meeting.

The Board shall elect its chairman from among its members and shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

The functions of the Board shall be:

- (a) to give effect to the decisions and policies of the Health Assembly;
- (b) to act as the executive organ of the Health Assembly;
- (c) to perform any other functions entrusted to it by the Health Assembly;
- (d) to advise the Health Assembly on questions referred to it by that body and on matters assigned to the Organisation by conventions, agreements and regulations;
- (e) to submit advice or proposals to the Health Assembly on its own initiative;
- (f) to prepare the agenda of meetings of the Health Assembly;
- (g) to submit to the Health Assembly for consideration and approval a general programme of work covering a specific period;
- (h) to study all questions within its competence;
- (i) to take emergency measures within the functions and financial resources of the Organisation to deal with events requiring immediate action. In particular it may authorise the Director-General to take the necessary steps to combat epidemics, to participate in the organisation of health relief to victims of a calamity and to undertake studies and research the urgency of which has been drawn to the attention of the Board by any Member or by the Director-General.

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL ORGANIZATION—WMO

41 ave. Giuseppe Motta, Geneva, Switzerland

Telephone 34 64 00.

WMO began its activities in 1951. It aims to standardise, co-ordinate and improve the services rendered by meteorology throughout the world. Members: 114 States, 12 Territories.

AIMS AND HISTORY

AIMS

1. To facilitate international co-operation in the establishment of networks of stations and centres to provide meteorological services and observations.
2. To promote the establishment and maintenance of systems for the rapid exchange of weather information.
3. To promote standardisation of meteorological observations and ensure the uniform publication of observations and statistics.
4. To further the application of meteorology to aviation, shipping, agriculture and other human activities.
5. To encourage research and training in meteorology.

HISTORY

In 1878, the International Meteorological Organisation, composed of directors of national meteorological services, was created at a conference at Utrecht. In 1947, at Washington, it was decided to establish a new organisation founded on an agreement between governments. The Convention of the new World Meteorological Organisation was ratified by a large number of countries, and began activities in 1951. It was recognised as a Specialised Agency when the General Assembly, in December 1951, approved an agreement between WMO and the United Nations. Membership is open to any country with a meteorological service which ratifies the Convention, or to whom the Convention is applied.

ORGANISATION

WORLD METEOROLOGICAL CONGRESS

Supreme organ of WMO; convened every four years; all members are represented on it; adopts regulations, approves policy, programme and budget. Next meeting: Geneva, 1967.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Composed of twenty-one members, including the President, two Vice-Presidents and the Presidents of the six Regional Associations; meets at least yearly to prepare studies and recommendations for the Congress; supervises the implementation of Congress resolutions and regulations; informs members on technical matters and offers advice

President: Dr. A. NYBERG (Sweden).

Vice-Presidents: L. DE AZCÁRRAGA (Spain), E. K. FEDOROV (U.S.S.R.).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: D. A. DAVIES (United Kingdom).

Deputy Secretary General: J. R. RIVET (France).

Assistant Secretary-General: P. D. ASTAPENKO (U.S.S.R.).

The Secretariat serves as the administrative, documentary and information centre of the Organisation; undertakes special technical studies; prepares and distributes the approved publications; organises meetings of WMO constituent bodies; generally acts as a link between the meteorological services of the world, and provides information for the general public.

REGIONAL ASSOCIATIONS

Members are grouped in six regional associations, whose task is to co-ordinate meteorological activity within their regions and to examine, from a regional point of view, questions referred to them by the Executive Committee. Sessions are held at least once every four years.

Africa . . . President: N. A. AKINGBEHIN (Nigeria).

Asia . . . President M. H. GANJI (Iran)

South America President: F. L. FERNÁNDEZ (Argentina)

North and Central America President: Ing. ELLIOTT COEN (Costa Rica).

South-West

Pacific . . . President J. L. GIOVANNELLI (New Caledonia).

Europe . . . President. M. PEROVIĆ (Yugoslavia)

WMO ACTIVITIES

TECHNICAL COMMISSIONS

Agricultural Meteorology. President. L. P. SMITH (United Kingdom). Has proposed the publication of a Guide to Agricultural Meteorological Practices; set up a working party to study arrangements for improving weather forecasts for agriculture, and proposed an investigation of methods of protecting plants against frost; studies have been made of the relation of incidence of pests and diseases to meteorological conditions, e.g. locust plagues.

Maritime Meteorology. President: K. T. McLEOD (Canada). Is responsible for organising meteorological networks of observations from ships at sea; elaborating a system of radio weather bulletins for the needs of shipping and fishermen; studying the meteorological aspects of ocean waves and sea ice; promoting research in maritime meteorology.

Aeronautical Meteorology. President: W. A. DWYER (Australia). Works in close collaboration with ICAO on developing and standardising procedures and techniques for making observations from aircraft in flight and for issuing special weather forecasts for aircraft.

Hydrometeorology. President: M. KOHLER (U.S.A.). Is responsible for keeping abreast of and promoting developments in hydrology related to meteorology, and also for development, improvement, promotion and international standardisation of methods, procedures, techniques and terminology for (i) studies of the water balance and of the global hydrologic cycle and (ii) hydrometeorological aspects of design of systems for water management and control.

Synoptic Meteorology. President: S. N. SEN (India). Formulates criteria for world-wide distribution of meteorological stations; determines types and times of observations from these stations, organises proper dissemination and exchange of weather data, forecasts and warnings; studies methods and techniques on weather analysis and forecasting, including forecasting for extended periods.

Aerology. President: J. F. GABITES (New Zealand) Deals with questions relating to research in the physics and dynamics of the atmosphere; is studying problems of artificial precipitation, forecasting by numerical methods, long-range methods, long-range weather forecasting, and other problems.

Climatology. President: C. C. BOUGHNER (Canada). Deals with methods of recording, computing and disseminating climatological data and the application of these data to weather forecasting and to the comfort and activities of man.

Instruments and Methods of Observation. President: L. S. MATHUR (India). Is responsible for all questions relating to meteorological instruments and their performance; promotes international comparison and standardisation of such instruments; makes recommendations relating to standard international methods of observation.

OTHER ACTIVITIES

International Exchange of Weather Reports. (a) Networks of meteorological stations: WMO is responsible for co-ordinating the development of networks of stations, with specified observational programmes, to permit members to fulfil their responsibilities in the application of meteorology. At regular intervals observers at weather stations throughout the world make meteorological observations at exactly the same time. The methods and practices followed are based on internationally agreed decisions and are practically uniform everywhere. Every day about 8,000 land stations, 3,000 transport and reconnaissance aircraft and 4,000 ships make 100,000 observations for the surface of the earth and 10,000 observations relating to the upper-air. These figures are increasing from year to year as new stations are brought into service. WMO has adopted the international rules governing this work. Lists of weather stations, code manuals and transmission schedules are issued by WMO and kept up to date by a regular and frequent service of supplements. They are used by meteorological services, airlines, ships, fishing vessels and whalers. (b) Meteorological telecommunications: The arrangements for the collection and transmission of the weather reports referred to above are also subject to international regulations laid down by WMO. These regulations control the contents of the broadcasts and the hours and mode of transmission.

Investigation of the Atmosphere by Artificial Satellites. The successful launching of artificial satellites has opened new possibilities of obtaining information on the structure and processes of the atmosphere. WMO has prepared four reports on the advancement of atmospheric sciences and their application in the light of developments in outer space. A Technical Note on "Reduction and use of data obtained by TIROS Meteorological Satellites" has been issued.

World Weather Watch and WMO Development Fund. WMO is planning the establishment of a World Weather Watch based on meteorological satellites and a system of world and regional centres. This includes plans for filling the main gaps in the existing world network of meteorological observation stations. To support the establishment of the World Weather Watch and fill these gaps in the world network, an extra-budgetary fund of U.S. $1,500,000 was established by the Fourth World Meteorological Congress in 1963. A plan prepared by the Secretary-General of WMO for the utilisation and operation of the fund was approved by member governments in June 1964. The fund is to provide assistance in those cases where urgent action is needed and funds cannot be obtained under any other international co-operation scheme.

Technical Co-operation Programmes. In view of the important contributions of meteorological services to economic development and planning (in the fields of water resources, agriculture, aviation, shipping, fishing, etc.) many countries have asked the Organisation to assist them in the establishment or development of national meteorological services. WMO participates in the United Nations Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance, and acts as Executing Agency for projects in a number of countries, financed by the UN Special Fund. Networks of hydrometeorological observing stations are set up, specialised personnel are trained through expert missions, fellowships, training seminars, etc. WMO's allocation from the UN Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance for the year 1965 amounted to US $1,484,987. Total expenditure on Special Fund Projects for which WMO is the Executing Agency during 1965 amounts to over U.S. $1 million. These funds for technical co-operation programmes are not included in the regular budget of the Organisation given below.

Water Resources Development and International Hydrological Decade. WMO is continuing its close collaboration with the United Nations and other interested UN organisations in the field of water resources development and, in particular, is participating in the Priority Programme in Water Resources within the UN Development Decade. Particular activities are: Fostering establishment of networks, standardisation of instruments and methods of observation, and training of manpower. WMO recognises the potential importance of the International Hydrological Decade as a large-scale programme for the development and promotion of the science of hydrology. The Organisation will play a major role in this programme of international co-operation.

Arid Zone Research. WMO collaborates with FAO and UNESCO on agroclimatological studies in arid and semi-arid zones by organising technical conferences and providing financial assistance to enable participants to attend these conferences. A general report on investigations in certain countries in the Near East was published by WMO.

Oceanography. WMO takes an active part in international oceanography research projects, in the establishment of oceanographic fixed stations on the high seas and in the transmission and exchange of oceanographic and meteorological data. A working group has been established on ocean-atmosphere interaction and a booklet on the meteorological aspects of the International Indian Ocean Expedition has been published.

UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME—UNDP

New York City

37427

Established in 1965 to aid the developing countries in increasing the wealth-producing capabilities of their natural and human resources by supporting economic and social projects, primarily of a pre-investment nature. The UNDP came into effect in January 1966, bringing together the previous activities of the Expanded Programme of Technical Assistance and the UN Special Fund.

UNICEF WORLD FOOD PROGRAMME

ORGANISATION

The UNDP functions under the authority of ECOSOC and of the General Assembly.

Governing Council: 37 mems, representing both developed and underdeveloped countries; the policy-making body of the UNDP.

Administrator: PAUL G. HOFFMAN (U.S.A.).

Co-Administrator: DAVID OWEN (United Kingdom).

Inter-Agency Consultative Board: composed of the UN Secretary-General and the Executive Heads of the Inter-Governmental Agencies; provides guidance and advice.

ACTIVITIES

The United Nations Development Programme is carrying out some 2,000 projects in support of national and regional development efforts, including development planning, industrial productivity, agricultural productivity, public utilities, education, public health, major public and social services. It provides the developing countries with the services of some 5,000 international experts each year, with several thousand fellowship awards for study abroad and with supporting equipment. The projects, which range in cost from a few thousand dollars to several million dollars each and from a few weeks to several years in duration, fall within these categories:

Surveys and feasibility studies: of natural resources and their economic potential.

Centres for advanced education and training: in the effective use of domestic or regional resources.

Applied Research Institutes: for bringing modern technology to bear on development needs.

Advisory and consultative services: also, in special cases, provision of experts to fill executive or operational posts.

Fellowships: to provide advanced education, training and work experience abroad for nationals of developing countries.

Exchange of ideas, information and plans: convening of seminars of experts from many areas.

FINANCE

The Development Programme is financed by the voluntary contributions of UN and Inter-Governmental Agency members which, for 1966, have already reached a total of approximately US $150 million.

Funds Committed: Over US $1,000 million.

WORLD FOOD PROGRAMME—WFP

Via Cristoforo Colombo, Rome, Italy

Established 1963 for a three-year experimental period, and extended 1965, the WFP is a joint UN-FAO effort to stimulate economic and social development through aid in the form of food.

ORGANISATION

Inter-Governmental Committee: 24 members, 12 elected by ECOSOC and 12 by FAO

Joint UN-FAO Administrative Unit: carries out the day-to-day activities of the WFP.

Executive Secretary: A. H. BOERMA

ACTIVITIES

Member Governments contribute either foodstuffs or cash contributions, which are used to cover the costs of shipping and insurance or to buy certain foods to supplement donated commodities and thus make up a balanced diet. The WFP provides food to stimulate the development of natural resources, industrial development, educational projects, housing and community development. For example, food is supplied as a partial substitute for cash wages paid to workers engaged in development projects, and food is provided to families resettled for development purposes until they harvest their first crops on their new land. The programme also helps to meet emergency food needs.

During the three-year experimental period, 1963-1965, the WFP aided 54 countries and territories; food had been provided for use in 116 economic and social projects; and emergency aid had been provided to 25 countries.

FINANCE

The WFP is financed by voluntary contributions. The target for the period, 1966-68, is $275 million, of which not less than 33 per cent is to be in the form of cash and services.

UNITED NATIONS CONFERENCE ON TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT— UNCTAD

Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone. 34 60 11, 33 40 00, 33 20 00, 22 10 00.

Set up as a permanent body on the recommendation of the UN Conference on Trade and Development, held March-June 1964. Aims to promote international trade with a view to accelerating economic development.

ORGANISATION

CONFERENCE

Convened at intervals of not more than three years. The next session is to be held in 1967. Members. 123.

Secretary-General: Dr. RAUL PREBISCH (Argentina).

UN TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT BOARD (TDB)

Carries out the functions falling within the competence of the Conference when the latter is not in session. Meets at least twice a year. Members. 55 states elected by the Conference on a regional basis, 31 representing the developing countries.

President: (1965) SYED AMJAD ALI (Pakistan)

COMMITTEES

The work of the Board is implemented by four committees, which meet at least once a year.

Committees on Commodities: 55 members. Chairman T. C. M. ENELI (Nigeria).

Permanent Sub-Committee: 28 members

Permanent Group on Synthetics and Substitutes: 17 members.

Committee on Manufactures: 45 members Chairman: JULIO FAESLER CARLISLE (Mexico).

Committee on Invisibles and Financing Related to Trade: 45 members Chairman J. EVERTS (The Netherlands).

Committee on Shipping: 44 members Chairman: C. H. J. AMARATUNGA (Ceylon).

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The principal functions of UNCTAD are to promote international trade, in order to accelerate economic development, by formulating principles and policies on international trade and related problems of economic development; to make proposals for putting these principles and policies into effect; to review and facilitate the co-ordination of activities of other UN bodies dealing with related problems; to initiate action for the negotiation and adoption of multilateral legal instruments in the field of trade; to harmonize trade and related policies of governments and regional economic groupings

During 1965 meetings were held, under the auspices of UNCTAD, of the Conference on Transit Trade of Land-locked Countries, the Working Party on Prices and Quotas for Cocoa, UN Sugar Conference, Group of Experts on International Monetary Issues, Study Group on Lead and Zinc. Planned for 1966 are the UN Cocoa Conference, the UN Sugar Conference and meetings on Regional Economic Integration and Preferences

UNITED NATIONS INSTITUTE FOR TRAINING AND RESEARCH— UNITAR

801 United Nations Plaza, New York

Established 1965 as an autonomous body within the framework of the United Nations. Provides training to personnel, particularly from developing countries, for national and international service, and studies means of improving the effectiveness of the UN and its specialised agencies

ORGANISATION

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Composed of seventeen members appointed by the UN Secretary-General to serve for two years. The UN Secretary-General and the Presidents of the General Assembly and ECOSOC, and the Executive Director of the Institute are ex-officio members. Inter-governmental agencies are represented appropriately at meetings. The Board meets usually twice a year and is responsible for determining basic policies of the Institute and for reviewing and adopting the annual budget.

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

The Executive Director is appointed by the Secretary-General, after consultation with the Board, and is responsible for the overall organisation, direction and administration of the Institute.

Executive Director: GABRIEL D'ARBOISSIER (Senegal)

FUNCTIONS

The purpose of the Institute is to enhance, by training and research, "the effectiveness of the United Nations in achieving the major objectives of the Organisation, in particular the maintenance of peace and security and the promotion of economic and social development". Training at various levels is provided to persons, particularly from the developing countries, for assignments with the UN or the specialised agencies and for assignments in their national services which are connected with the work of the UN. The Institute also conducts research and study into problems which may concern the UN.

The Institute will collaborate in, and extend, existing programmes for training and research and during its first year of operations, 1965-66, will carry out the following programmes:

Training.

- 1 Training of personnel from developing countries

- 2 Advanced training for international staff Programmes: training of development agents, development financing, techniques and procedures of technical assistance; Deputy Resident Representatives
- 3 Fellowships UNITAR Adlai Stevenson programme

Research:

- 1 Evaluation of World Food Programme
- 2 Language teaching.
- 3 Directory of existing training and research institutes.
- 4 Survey of studies on the instrumentalities of UN peace-keeping. Subjects to be covered include mixed-manning, contacts with civilian populations, communication between UN and national governments of UN contingents.
- 5 Economic and Social implications of disarmament.
- 6 UN methods and techniques for the promotion and protection of human rights

FINANCE

Expenses are met from voluntary contributions made by governments, inter-governmental organisations, and from foundations and other non-governmental sources.

Estimated Budget (first five-six years) U.S. $10,000,000.

Estimated Expenditure (1966) U.S. $1,000,000

UNITED NATIONS CHILDREN'S FUND—UNICEF

New York City

Set up in 1946 to rehabilitate children in war-devastated countries, UNICEF has expanded its mandate to embrace all aspects of child welfare. Aid is given mainly to the developing countries, and a small part of funds is reserved for emergency aid in catastrophes.

ORGANISATION

EXECUTIVE BOARD

The governing body of UNICEF meets once a year to determine policy and consider applications for aid. Countries receiving aid match UNICEF expenditure on all projects and are responsible for their implementation.

Members: Representatives of 30 Countries.

SECRETARIAT

UNICEF is an integral part of the United Nations and personnel are members of the UN Secretariat.

Executive Director: HENRY R. LABOUISSSE (U.S.A.).

REGIONAL OFFICES

Europe and North Africa: 24 rue Pauline Borghese, Neuilly-sur-Seine, France.

Africa South of the Sahara: 26-28 Marina, 2nd Floor, Lagos, Nigeria.

India, Afghanistan, Ceylon: 11 Jorbagh, New Delhi, India.

Eastern Mediterranean: UNESCO Building, Beirut, Lebanon.

The Americas: UN Headquarters, New York, U.S.A.

ACTIVITIES

In August 1965, 543 projects in 118 countries were being assisted as follows:

	AFRICA	ASIA	EASTERN MEDITERRANEAN	EUROPE	THE AMERICAS	TOTAL
Health Services	56	42	15	3	50	166
Welfare Services	34	12	9	—	10	65

Others	2	2	1	2	6	13
TOTAL	198	113	63	14	141	529

Ten inter-regional projects were being assisted.

FINANCE

UNICEF is financed by voluntary contributions from governments and individuals. In 1964 the Executive Board approved allocations totalling almost £22 million, most of it to help create and strengthen health services and to attack specific diseases. Other forms of help were training, basic and nutrition education, community development, provision of equipment for safe milk production and development of high protein foods.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

UNITED NATIONS HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR REFUGEES— UNHCR

Palais des Nations, Geneva

Telephone. 33 10 00, 33 20 00, 33 40 00.

The Office of the High Commissioner was set up in 1950 to provide international protection for refugees and to seek permanent solutions to their problems.

ORGANISATION

HIGH COMMISSIONER

High Commissioner (1966–68) Prince SADRUDDIN AGA KHAN.

The High Commissioner is elected by the United Nations General Assembly on the nomination of the Secretary-General, and is responsible to the General Assembly and to ECOSOC. In 1962 the mandate of UNHCR was extended until the end of 1968.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

The Executive Committee, established by ECOSOC, gives the High Commissioner policy directives. It meets usually at Geneva twice a year, and special sessions may be called to consider urgent problems. Members: representatives of thirty states.

ADMINISTRATION

The Office includes at headquarters four divisions: Programme, Administrative, Legal, External Relations. In addition there are branch offices in 27 countries throughout the world.

ACTIVITIES

Refugees within the mandate of the Office of the High Commissioner are persons who owing to well-founded fear of persecution for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, are outside their country of origin and are unable, or owing to such fear unwilling, to avail themselves of the protection of that country. Refugees meeting these conditions are entitled to the protection of the Office of the High Commissioner irrespective of their geographical location. Refugees who are assisted by other UN agencies or who have the same rights and obligations as nationals of their country of residence are outside the mandate of UNHCR.

The main activities of the Office are to provide international protection, to promote permanent solutions including voluntary repatriation, resettlement in other countries and integration into the country of present residence, and to provide supplementary aid and emergency relief to refugees as may be necessary. All activities are carried out on a humanitarian and non-political basis.

Furthermore, under resolutions adopted by the General Assembly in recent years, the High Commissioner may use his good offices for assistance to refugees without necessarily applying the criteria of the mandate. The most critical problem in this category was that of the 130,000 refugees from Rwanda.

INTERNATIONAL PROTECTION

The international protection of refugees is the basic task of UNHCR, whereby it seeks to improve the legal status of refugees in their countries of residence, and to promote the conclusion and ratification of international instruments of benefit to refugees. Of major importance in this field is the supervision of the application of the 1951 Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, to which 48 governments are parties. In addition the attention of UNHCR is directed to other international instruments in so far as they affect refugees. The Office is also called upon to follow developments in national legislation and to encourage the adoption of laws and regulations which are of benefit to refugees.

VOLUNTARY REPATRIATION

The Office assists refugees wherever possible to overcome difficulties in the way of their repatriation. In cases where no other funds are available for the transportation of repatriates, arrangements for payment of the cost involved may be made by UNHCR.

RESETTLEMENT

From its inception UNHCR has been actively engaged in the promotion of resettlement through emigration, in close co-operation with interested governments, the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM), the United States Escapee Program and voluntary agencies concerned with the resettlement of refugees. The task of UNHCR in this field is to negotiate with governments in an endeavour to obtain suitable resettlement opportunities for those refugees both able-bodied and handicapped who opt for this solution, to encourage governments to liberalise their criteria for the admission of refugees and to open special immigration schemes for them wherever possible.

During 1964, 27,957 refugees within the mandate of UNHCR were moved by ICEM, of whom 1,117 were physically or socially handicapped refugees and their dependents. As at June 30th, 1964, there were 7,474 non-settled refugees within the mandate of UNHCR who still wished to emigrate. This does not include some 11,000 Cuban refugees who have been granted asylum in Spain, and for whom the Office is making special efforts to find countries of re-settlement.

THE UNITED NATIONS—(OTHER BODIES)

INTEGRATION OF REFUGEES IN THEIR COUNTRY OF RESIDENCE

The object of local integration is to assist refugees to become self-supporting in their country of residence. This is done either by granting refugees loans for establishment in agriculture, or by assisting them through vocational training or in other ways to learn a skill, or to establish themselves in gainful occupations. One major form of assistance to help refugees leave camps is to provide them with housing.

In addition there are projects for the settlement in institutions of the aged and the sick, rehabilitation projects for handicapped refugees, and counselling projects which are essential for the guidance of refugees in the choice of a solution to their problems.

The large number of new refugees in Africa are mainly assisted through local settlement in agriculture.

Supplementary aid is provided for the neediest refugees and may take the form of supplementary feeding, medical aid, or clothing.

FINANCE

Major Aid Programme: The $5.4 million Major Aid Programme was set up for assistance to refugees who arrived in their country of asylum before December 31st, 1960. The programme was implemented over the three-year period 1963-1965.

Complementary Assistance Programme: For those refugees who arrived after December 1960, a complementary assistance programme of $1.4 million was adopted by the Executive Committee.

As at August 31st, 1964, a total of $2,818,029 had been paid, pledged or promised towards the financing of projects approved under the 1964 programme.

PROGRESS IN 1964

In 1964 nearly 180,000 refugees benefited directly under the UNHCR programmes, including 27,500 European refugees under the Major Aid Programmes. Some 150,000 refugees benefited under the Current Programme for 1964. Most of the assistance granted under this Programme benefited refugees in various parts of Africa, where the number of refugees who are the concern of UNHCR grew from 310,000 at the end of 1963 to over 400,000 at the end of 1964. One of the most serious problems facing the Office in Africa continued to be that of the Rwandese refugees. UNHCR also assisted under its Current Programme Sudanese refugees, refugees from Mozambique, new European refugees, Tibetan refugees in India and Nepal, Chinese refugees in Macao and Cuban refugees particularly in Spain.

Nearly 5,200 refugees were settled with UNHCR assistance in new countries of asylum. 7,208 refugees benefited from legal assistance.

NANSEN MEDAL

In 1965 the Nansen Medal, which has been presented annually since 1954 for outstanding services in the cause of refugees, was awarded to LUCIE CHEVALLEY of France, and posthumously to ANA ROSA DE MARTINEZ GUERRERO of Argentina and JØRGEN NØRREDAM of Denmark.

STATUTE

GENERAL PROVISIONS

1. The United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, acting under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assume the function of providing international protection, under the auspices of the United Nations, to refugees who fall within the scope of the present Statute and of seeking permanent solutions for the problem of refugees by assisting governments and, subject to the approval of the governments concerned, private organisations to facilitate the voluntary repatriation of such refugees, or their assimilation within new national communities.

2. The work of the High Commissioner shall be of an entirely non-political character; it shall be humanitarian and social and shall relate, as a rule, to groups and categories of refugees.

3. The High Commissioner shall follow policy directives given him by the General Assembly or the Economic and Social Council.

4. Provisions for the establishment of an Executive Committee.

5. Provisions for the continuation of the Office.

CHAPTER II

FUNCTIONS OF THE HIGH COMMISSIONER

6. The competence of the High Commissioner shall extend to any person who, owing to well-founded fear of being persecuted for reasons of race, religion, nationality or political opinion, is outside the country of his nationality and is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of that country; or who, not having a nationality and being outside the country of his former habitual residence, is unable or, owing to such fear or for reasons other than personal convenience, is unwilling to return to it.

Any other person who is outside the country of his nationality or, if he has no nationality, the country of his former habitual residence, because he has had well-founded fear of persecution by reason of his race, religion, nationality or political opinion and is unable or, because of such fear, is unwilling to avail himself of the protection of the government of the country of his nationality, or, if he has no nationality, to return to the country of his former habitual residence.

7. Refugees to whom the High Commissioner's competence shall not extend.

8. Means of providing protection for refugees.

9. The High Commissioner shall engage in such additional activities, including repatriation and resettlement, as the General Assembly may determine, within the limits of the resources placed at his disposal.

10. The High Commissioner shall administer any funds, public or private, which he receives for assistance to refugees, and shall distribute them among the private and, as appropriate, public agencies which he deems best qualified to administer such assistance.

11. Presentation of report to the Economic and Social Committee and to the General Assembly.

12. Co-operation with the various specialised agencies.

CHARTER OF THE UNITED NATIONS

We the peoples of the United Nations determined

to save succeeding generations from the scourge of war, which twice in our lifetime has brought untold sorrow to mankind, and to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small, and

to establish conditions under which justice and respect for the obligations arising from treaties and other sources of international law can be maintained, and to promote social progress and better standards of life in larger freedom,

And for these ends

to practice tolerance and live together in peace with one another as good neighbours, and to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security, and to ensure, by the acceptance of principles and the institution of methods, that armed force shall not be used, save in the common interest, and to employ international machinery for the promotion of the economic and social advancement of all peoples,

Have resolved to combine our efforts to accomplish these aims.

Accordingly, our respective Governments, through representatives assembled in the city of San Francisco, who have exhibited their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed to the present Charter of the United Nations and do hereby establish an international organisation to be known as the United Nations.

CHAPTER I

PURPOSES AND PRINCIPLES

Article 1

The Purposes of the United Nations are:

1. To maintain international peace and security, and to that end: to take effective collective measures for the prevention and removal of threats to the peace, and for the suppression of acts of aggression or other breaches of the peace, and to bring about by peaceful means, and in conformity with the principles of justice and international law, adjustment or settlement of international disputes or situations which might lead to a breach of the peace;

2. To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, and to take other appropriate measures to strengthen universal peace;

3. To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems of an economic, social, cultural, or humanitarian character, and in promoting and encouraging respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion; and

4. To be a centre for harmonising the accusations of nations in the attainment of these common ends.

Article 2

The Organisation and its Members, in pursuit of the Purposes stated in Article 1, shall act in accordance with the following Principles.

1. The Organisation is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its Members.

2. All Members, in order to ensure to all of them the rights and benefits resulting from membership, shall fulfil in good faith the obligations assumed by them in accordance with the present Charter.

3. All Members shall settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security, and justice, are not endangered.

4. All Members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the Purposes of the United Nations.

5. All Members shall give the United Nations every assistance in any action it takes in accordance with the present Charter, and shall refrain from giving assistance to any state against which the United Nations is taking preventive or enforcement action.

6. The Organisation shall ensure that states which are not Members of the United Nations act in accordance with these Principles so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

7. Nothing contained in the present Charter shall authorise the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the Members to submit such matters to settlement under the present Charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII.

CHAPTER II

MEMBERSHIP

Article 3

The original Members of the United Nations shall be the states which, having participated in the United Nations Conference on International Organisation at San Francisco, or having previously signed the Declaration by United Nations of January 1, 1942, sign the present Charter and ratify it in accordance with Article 110.

Article 4

1. Membership in the United Nations is open to all other peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgment of the Organisation, are able and willing to carry out these obligations

2. The admission of any such state to membership in the United Nations will be effected by a decision of the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 5

A Member of the United Nations against which preventive or enforcement action has been taken by the Security Council may be suspended from the exercise of the rights and privileges of membership by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. The exercise of these rights and privileges may be restored by the Security Council.

Article 6

A Member of the United Nations which has persistently violated the Principles contained in the present Charter may be expelled from the Organisation by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER III ORGANS

Article 7

1. There are established as the principal organs of the United Nations; a General Assembly, a Security Council, an Economic and Social Council, a Trusteeship Council, an International Court of Justice, and a Secretariat.

2. Such subsidiary organs as may be found necessary may be established in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 8

The United Nations shall place no restrictions on the eligibility of men and women to participate in any capacity and under conditions of equality in its principal and subsidiary organs

CHAPTER IV THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Composition

Article 9

1. The General Assembly shall consist of all the Members of the United Nations.

2. Each Member shall have not more than five representatives in the General Assembly

Functions and Powers

Article 10

The General Assembly may discuss any questions or any matters within the scope of the present Charter or relating to the powers and functions of any organs provided for in the present Charter, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations to the Members of the United Nations or to the Security Council or to both on any such questions or matters

Article 11

1. The General Assembly may consider the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of international peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments, and may make recommendations with regard to such principles to the Members or to the Security Council or to both.

2. The General Assembly may discuss any questions relating to the maintenance of international peace and security brought before it by any Member of the United Nations, or by the Security Council, or by a state which is not a Member of the United Nations in accordance with Article 35, paragraph 2, and, except as provided in Article 12, may make recommendations with regard to any such question to the state or states concerned or to the Security Council or to both. Any such question on which action is necessary shall be referred to the Security Council by the General Assembly either before or after discussion

3. The General Assembly may call the attention of the Security Council to situations which are likely to endanger international peace and security

4. The powers of the General Assembly set forth in this Article shall not limit the general scope of Article 10.

Article 12

1. While the Security Council is exercising in respect of any dispute or situation the functions assigned to it in the present Charter, the General Assembly shall not make any recommendations with regard to that dispute or situation unless the Security Council so requests.

2. The Secretary-General, with the consent of the Security Council, shall notify the General Assembly at each session of any matters relative to the maintenance of international peace and security which are being dealt with by the Security Council and shall similarly notify the General Assembly, or the Members of the United Nations if the General Assembly is not in session, immediately the Security Council ceases to deal with such matters.

Article 13

1. The General Assembly shall initiate studies and make recommendations for the purpose of:

(a) promoting international co-operation in the political field and encouraging the progressive development of international law and its codification;

(b) promoting international co-operation in the economic, social, cultural, educational, and health fields, and assisting in the realization of human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion.

2. The further responsibilities, functions and powers of the General Assembly with respect to matters mentioned in paragraph 1(b) above are set forth in Chapters IX and X.

Article 14

Subject to the provision of Article 12, the General Assembly may recommend measures for the peaceful adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations, including situations resulting from a violation of the provisions of the present Charter setting forth the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

Article 15

1. The General Assembly shall receive and consider annual and special reports from the Security Council; these reports shall include an account of the measures that the Security Council has decided upon or taken to maintain international peace and security

2. The General Assembly shall receive and consider reports from the other organs of the United Nations.

Article 16

The General Assembly shall perform such functions with respect to the international trusteeship system as are assigned to it under Chapters XII and XIII, including the approval of the trusteeship agreements for areas not designated as strategic

Article 17

1. The General Assembly shall consider and approve the budget of the Organisation

2. The expenses of the Organisation shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly.

3. The General Assembly shall consider and approve any financial and budgetary arrangements with specialised agencies referred to in Article 57 and shall examine the administrative budgets of such specialised agencies with a view to making recommendations to the agencies concerned

Voting

Article 18

1. Each member of the General Assembly shall have one vote

2. Decisions of the General Assembly on important questions shall be made by a two-thirds majority of the members present and voting. These questions shall include: recommendations with respect to the maintenance of international peace and security, the election of the non-permanent members of the Security Council, the election of the members of the Economic and Social Council, the election of members of the Trusteeship Council in accordance with paragraph 1(c) of Article 86, the admission of new Members to the United Nations, the suspension of the rights and privileges of membership, the expulsion of Members, questions relating to the operation of the trusteeship system, and budgetary questions

THE UNITED NATIONS

3. Decisions on other questions, including the determination of additional categories of questions to be decided by a two-thirds majority, shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Article 19

A Member of the United Nations which is in arrears in the payment of its financial contributions to the Organisation shall have no vote in the General Assembly if the amount of its arrears equals or exceeds the amount of the contributions due from it for the preceding two full years. The General Assembly may, nevertheless, permit such a Member to vote if it is satisfied that the failure to pay is due to conditions beyond the control of the Member.

Procedure

Article 20

The General Assembly shall meet in regular annual sessions and in such special sessions as occasion may require. Special sessions shall be convoked by the Secretary-General at the request of the Security Council or of a majority of the Members of the United Nations.

Article 21

The General Assembly shall adopt its own rules of procedure. It shall elect its President for each session.

Article 22

The General Assembly may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

CHAPTER V

THE SECURITY COUNCIL

Composition

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of eleven Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect six other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organisation, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members, however, three shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 24

1. In order to ensure prompt and effective action by the United Nations, its Members confer on the Security Council primary responsibility for the maintenance of international peace and security, and agree that in carrying out its duties under this responsibility the Security Council acts on their behalf.

2. In discharging these duties the Security Council shall act in accordance with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations. The specific powers granted to the Security Council for the discharge of these duties are laid down in Chapters VI, VII, VIII, and XII.

3. The Security Council shall submit annual and, when necessary, special reports to the General Assembly for its consideration.

Article 25

The Members of the United Nations agree to accept and carry out the decisions of the Security Council in accordance with the present Charter.

Article 26

In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the Security Council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the Members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments.

Voting

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members.

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of seven members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting.

Procedure

Article 28

1. The Security Council shall be so organised as to be able to function continuously. Each member of the Security Council shall for this purpose be represented at all times at the Seat of the Organisation.

2. The Security Council shall hold periodic meetings at which each of its members may, if it so desires, be represented by a member of the government or by some other specially designated representative.

3. The Security Council may hold meetings at such places other than the seat of the Organisation as in its judgment will best facilitate its work.

Article 29

The Security Council may establish such subsidiary organs as it deems necessary for the performance of its functions.

Article 30

The Security Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

Article 31

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council may participate, without vote, in the discussion of any question brought before the Security Council whenever the latter considers that the interests of that Member are specially affected.

Article 32

Any Member of the United Nations which is not a member of the Security Council or any state which is not a Member of the United Nations, if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Security Council, shall be invited to participate, without vote, in the discussion relating to the dispute. The Security Council shall lay down such conditions as it deems just for the participation of a state which is not a Member of the United Nations

THE UNITED NATIONS

CHAPTER VI PACIFIC SETTLEMENT OF DISPUTES

Article 33

1. The parties to any dispute, the continuance of which is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, shall, first of all, seek a solution by negotiation, enquiry, mediation, conciliation, arbitration, judicial settlement, resort to regional agencies or arrangements, or other peaceful means of their own choice.

2. The Security Council shall, when it deems necessary, call upon the parties to settle their disputes by such means

Article 34

The Security Council may investigate any dispute, or any situation which might lead to international friction or give rise to a dispute, in order to determine whether the continuance of the dispute or situation is likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 35

1. Any Member of the United Nations may bring any dispute, or any situation of the nature referred to in Article 34, to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may bring to the attention of the Security Council or of the General Assembly any dispute to which it is a party if it accepts in advance, for the purposes of the dispute, the obligations of pacific settlement provided in the present Charter.

3. The proceedings of the General Assembly in respect of matters brought to its attention under this Article will be subject to the provisions of Articles 11 and 12.

Article 36

1. The Security Council may, at any stage of a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 or of a situation of like nature, recommend appropriate procedures or methods of adjustment.

2. The Security Council should take into consideration any procedures for the settlement of the dispute which have already been adopted by the parties

3. In making recommendations under this Article the Security Council should also take into consideration that legal disputes should as a general rule be referred by the parties to the International Court of Justice in accordance with the provisions of the Statute of the Court

Article 37

1. Should the parties to a dispute of the nature referred to in Article 33 fail to settle it by the means indicated in that Article, they shall refer it to the Security Council.

2. If the Security Council deems that the continuance of the dispute is in fact likely to endanger the maintenance of international peace and security, it shall decide whether to take action under Article 36 or to recommend such terms of settlement as it may consider appropriate.

Article 38

Without prejudice to the provisions of Articles 33 to 37, the Security Council may, if all the parties to any dispute so request, make recommendations to the parties with a view to a pacific settlement of the dispute

CHAPTER VII ACTION WITH RESPECT TO THREATS TO THE PEACE, BREACHES OF THE PEACE, AND ACTS OF AGGRESSION

Article 39

The Security Council shall determine the existence of any threat to the peace, breach of the peace, or act of aggression and shall make recommendations, or decide what measures shall be taken in accordance with Articles 41 and 42, to maintain or restore international peace and security.

Article 40

In order to prevent an aggravation of the situation, the Security Council may, before making the recommendations or deciding upon the measures provided for in Article 39, call upon the parties concerned to comply with such provisional measures as it deems necessary or desirable. Such provisional measures shall be without prejudice to the rights, claims, or position of the parties concerned. The Security Council shall duly take account of failure to comply with such provisional measures.

Article 41

The Security Council may decide what measures not involving the use of armed force are to be employed to give effect to its decisions, and it may call upon the Members of the United Nations to apply such measures. These may include complete or partial interruption of economic relations and of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic, radio, and other means of communication, and the severance of diplomatic relations.

Article 42

Should the Security Council consider that measures provided for in Article 41 would be inadequate or have proved to be inadequate, it may take such action by air, sea, or land forces as may be necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security. Such action may include demonstrations, blockade, and other operations by air, sea, or land forces of Members of the United Nations

Article 43

1. All Members of the United Nations, in order to contribute to the maintenance of international peace and security, undertake to make available to the Security Council, on its call and in accordance with a special agreement or agreements, armed forces, assistance, and facilities, including rights of passage, necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

2. Such agreement or agreements shall govern the numbers and types of forces, their degree of readiness and general location, and the nature of the facilities and assistance to be provided.

3. The agreement or agreements shall be negotiated as soon as possible on the initiative of the Security Council. They shall be concluded between the Security Council and Members or between the Security Council and groups of Members and shall be subject to ratification by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes

When the Security Council has decided to use force it shall, before calling upon a Member not represented on it to provide armed forces in fulfilment of the obligations assumed under Article 43, invite that Member, if the Member so desires, to participate in the decisions of the Security Council concerning the employment of contingents of that Member's armed forces

Article 45

In order to enable the United Nations to take urgent military measures, Members shall hold immediately available national air-force contingents for combined international enforcement action. The strength and degree of readiness of these contingents and plans for their combined action shall be determined, within the limits laid down in the special agreement and agreements referred to in Article 43, by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 46

Plans for the application of armed force shall be made by the Security Council with the assistance of the Military Staff Committee.

Article 47

1. There shall be established a Military Staff Committee to advise and assist the Security Council on all questions relating to the Security Council's military requirements for the maintenance of international peace and security, the employment and command of forces placed at its disposal, the regulation of armaments, and possible disarmament.

2. The Military Staff Committee shall consist of the Chiefs of Staff of the permanent members of the Security Council or their representatives. Any Member of the United Nations not permanently represented on the Committee shall be invited by the Committee to be associated with it when the efficient discharge of the Committee's responsibilities requires the participation of that Member in its work.

3. The Military Staff Committee shall be responsible under the Security Council for the strategic direction of any armed forces placed at the disposal of the Security Council. Questions relating to the command of such forces shall be worked out subsequently.

4. The Military Staff Committee, with the authorisation of the Security Council and after consultation with appropriate regional agencies, may establish regional sub-committees.

Article 48

1. The action required to carry out the decisions of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security shall be taken by all the Members of the United Nations or by some of them, as the Security Council may determine.

2. Such decisions shall be carried out by the Members of the United Nations directly and through their action in the appropriate international agencies of which they are members.

Article 49

The Members of the United Nations shall join in affording mutual assistance in carrying out the measures decided upon by the Security Council.

Article 50

If preventive or enforcement measures against any state are taken by the Security Council, any other state, whether a Member of the United Nations or not, which finds itself confronted with special economic problems arising from the carrying out of those measures shall have the right to consult the Security Council with regard to a solution of those problems.

Article 51

Nothing in the present Charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self-defence if an armed attack occurs against a Member of the United Nations, until the Security Council has taken measures necessary to maintain international peace and security. Measures taken by Members in the exercise of this right of self-defence shall be immediately reported to the Security Council and shall not in any way affect the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the present Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

CHAPTER VIII

REGIONAL ARRANGEMENTS

Article 52

1. Nothing in the present Charter precludes the existence of regional arrangements or agencies for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action, provided that such arrangements or agencies and their activities are consistent with the Purposes and Principles of the United Nations.

2. The Members of the United Nations entering into such arrangements or constituting such agencies shall make every effort to achieve pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional agencies before referring them to the Security Council.

3. The Security Council shall encourage the development of pacific settlement of local disputes through such regional arrangements or by such regional agencies either on the initiative of the states concerned or by reference from the Security Council.

4. This Article in no way impairs the application of Articles 34 and 35.

Article 53

1. The Security Council shall, where appropriate, utilise such regional arrangements or agencies for enforcement action under its authority. But no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorisation of the Security Council, with the exception of measures against any enemy state, as defined in paragraph 2 of this Article, provided for pursuant to Article 107 or in regional arrangements directed against renewal of aggressive policy on the part of any such state, until such time as the Organisation may, on request of the Governments concerned, be charged with the responsibility for preventing further aggression by such a state.

2. The term enemy state as used in paragraph 1 of this Article applies to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory of the present Charter.

Article 54

The Security Council shall at all times be kept fully informed of activities undertaken or in contemplation under regional arrangements or by regional agencies for the maintenance of international peace and security.

CHAPTER IX

INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL CO-OPERATION

Article 55

With a view to the creation of conditions of stability and well-being which are necessary for peaceful and friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples, the United Nations shall promote:

- (a) higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development;
- (b) solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems; and international cultural and educational co-operation; and
- (c) universal respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion

Article 56

All Members pledge themselves to take joint and separate action in co-operation with the Organisation for the achievement of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 57

1. The various specialised agencies, established by intergovernmental agreement and having wide international responsibilities, as defined in their basic instruments, in economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related fields, shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations in accordance with the provisions of Article 63.

THE UNITED NATIONS

2. Such agencies thus brought into relationship with the United Nations are hereinafter referred to as specialised agencies.

Article 58

The Organisation shall make recommendations for the co-ordination of the policies and activities of the specialised agencies.

Article 59

The Organisation shall, where appropriate, initiate negotiations among the states concerned for the creation of any new specialised agencies required for the accomplishment of the purposes set forth in Article 55.

Article 60

Responsibility for the discharge of the functions of the Organisation set forth in this Chapter shall be vested in the General Assembly and, under the authority of the General Assembly, in the Economic and Social Council, which shall have for this purpose the powers set forth in Chapter X

CHAPTER X

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL

Composition

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of eighteen Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly.

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, six members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election.

3. At the first election, eighteen members of the Economic and Social Council shall be chosen. The term of office of six members so chosen shall expire at the end of one year, and of six other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

Functions and Powers

Article 62

1. The Economic and Social Council may make or initiate studies and reports with respect to international economic, social, cultural, educational, health, and related matters and may make recommendations with respect to any such matters to the General Assembly, to the Members of the United Nations, and to the specialised agencies concerned.

2. It may make recommendations for the purpose of promoting respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

3. It may prepare draft conventions for submission to the General Assembly, with respect to matters falling within its competence.

4. It may call, in accordance with the rules prescribed by the United Nations, international conferences on matters falling within its competence.

Article 63

1. The Economic and Social Council may enter into agreements with any of the agencies referred to in Article 57, defining the terms on which the agency concerned shall be brought into relationship with the United Nations. Such agreements shall be subject to approval by the General Assembly.

2. It may co-ordinate the activities of the specialised agencies through consultation with and recommendations to such agencies and through recommendations to the General Assembly and to the Members of the United Nations.

Article 64

1. The Economic and Social Council may take appropriate steps to obtain regular reports from the specialised agencies. It may make arrangements with the Members of the United Nations and with specialised agencies to obtain reports on the steps taken to give effect to its own recommendations and to recommendations on matters falling within its competence made by the General Assembly.

2. It may communicate its observations on these reports to the General Assembly.

Article 65

The Economic and Social Council may furnish information to the Security Council and shall assist the Security Council upon its request.

Article 66

1. The Economic and Social Council shall perform such functions as fall within its competence in connection with the carrying out of the recommendations of the General Assembly.

2. It may, with the approval of the General Assembly, perform services at the request of Members of the United Nations and at the request of specialised agencies.

3. It shall perform such other functions as are specified elsewhere in the present Charter or as may be assigned to it by the General Assembly.

Voting

Article 67

1. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Economic and Social Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting.

Procedure

Article 68

The Economic and Social Council shall set up commissions in economic and social fields and for the promotion of human rights, and such other commissions as may be required for the performance of its functions.

Article 69

The Economic and Social Council shall invite any Member of the United Nations to participate, without vote, in its deliberations on any matter of particular concern to that Member.

Article 70

The Economic and Social Council may make arrangements for representatives of the specialised agencies to participate, without vote, in its deliberations and in those of the commissions established by it, and for its representatives to participate in the deliberations of the specialised agencies.

Article 71

The Economic and Social Council may make suitable arrangements for consultation with non-governmental organisations which are concerned with matters within its competence. Such arrangements may be made with international organisations and, where appropriate, with national organisations after consultation with the Member of the United Nations concerned.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 72

1. The Economic and Social Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President.

2. The Economic and Social Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members

CHAPTER XI

NON-SELF-GOVERNING TERRITORIES

Article 73

Members of the United Nations which have or assume responsibilities for the administration of territories whose peoples have not yet attained a full measure of self-government recognise the principle that the interests of the inhabitants of these territories are paramount, and accept as a sacred trust the obligation to promote to the utmost, within the system of international peace and security established by the present Charter, the well-being of the inhabitants of these territories, and, to this end:

- (a) to ensure, with due respect for the culture of the peoples concerned, their political, economic, social, and educational advancement, their just treatment, and their protection against abuses;
- (b) to develop self-government, to take due account of the political aspirations of the peoples, and to assist them in the progressive development of their free political institutions, according to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and their varying stages of advancement;
- (c) to further international peace and security;
- (d) to promote constructive measures of development, to encourage research, and to co-operate with one another and, when and where appropriate, with specialised international bodies with a view to the practical achievement of the social, economic, and scientific purposes set forth in this Article; and
- (e) to transmit regularly to the Secretary-General for information purposes, subject to such limitations as security and constitutional considerations may require, statistical and other information of a technical nature relating to economic, social, and educational conditions in the territories for which they are respectively responsible other than those territories to which Chapters XII and XIII apply.

Article 74

Members of the United Nations also agree that their policy in respect of the territories to which this Chapter applies, no less than in respect of their metropolitan areas, must be based on the general principles of good-neighbourliness, due account being taken of the interests and well-being of the rest of the world, in social, economic, and commercial matters

CHAPTER XII

INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SYSTEM

Article 75

The United Nations shall establish under its authority an international trusteeship system for the administration and supervision of such territories as may be placed thereunder by subsequent individual agreements. These territories are hereinafter referred to as trust territories

Article 76

The basic objectives of the trusteeship system, in accordance with the Purposes of the United Nations laid down in Article 1 of the present Charter, shall be:

- (a) to further international peace and security;

- (b) to promote the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of the trust territories, and their progressive development towards self-government or independence as may be appropriate to the particular circumstances of each territory and its peoples and the freely expressed wishes of the peoples concerned, and as may be provided by the terms of each trusteeship agreement;
- (c) to encourage respect for human rights and for fundamental freedoms for all without distinction as to race, sex, language, or religion, and to encourage recognition of the interdependence of the peoples of the world; and
- (d) to ensure equal treatment in social, economic, and commercial matters for all Members of the United Nations and their nationals, and also equal treatment for the latter in the administration of justice, without prejudice to the attainment of the foregoing objectives and subject to the provisions of Article 80

1. The trusteeship system shall apply to such territories in the following categories as may be placed thereunder by means of trusteeship agreements:

- (a) territories now held under mandate;
- (b) territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of the Second World War; and
- (c) territories voluntarily placed under the system by states responsible for their administration.

2. It will be a matter for subsequent agreement as to which territories in the foregoing categories will be brought under the trusteeship system and upon what terms

Article 78

The trusteeship system shall not apply to territories which have become Members of the United Nations, relationship among which shall be based on respect for the principle of sovereign equality.

Article 79

The terms of trusteeship for each territory to be placed under the trusteeship system, including any alteration of amendment, shall be agreed upon by the states directly concerned, including the mandatory power in the case of territories held under mandate by a Member of the United Nations, and shall be approved as provided for in Articles 83 and 85.

Article 80

1. Except as may be agreed upon in individual trusteeship agreements, made under Articles 77, 79, and 81, placing each territory under the trusteeship system, and until such agreements have been concluded, nothing in this Chapter shall be construed in or of itself to alter in any manner the rights whatsoever of any states or any peoples or the terms of existing international instruments to which Members of the United Nations may respectively be parties

2. Paragraph 1 of this Article shall not be interpreted as giving grounds for delay or postponement of the negotiation and conclusion of agreements for placing mandated and other territories under the trusteeship system as provided for in Article 77.

Article 81

The trusteeship agreement shall in each case include the terms under which the trust territory will be administered and designate the authority which will exercise the administration of the trust territory. Such authority, hereinafter called the administering authority, may be one or more states or the Organisation itself

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 82

There may be designated, in any trusteeship agreement, a strategic area or areas which may include part or all of the trust territory to which the agreement applies, without prejudice to any special agreement or agreements made under Article 43.

Article 83

1. All functions of the United Nations relating to strategic areas, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the Security Council.

2. The basic objectives set forth in Article 76 shall be applicable to the people of each strategic area.

3. The Security Council shall, subject to the provisions of the trusteeship agreements and without prejudice to security considerations, avail itself of the assistance of the Trusteeship Council to perform those functions of the United Nations under the trusteeship system relating to political, economic, social, and educational matters in the strategic areas.

Article 84

It shall be the duty of the administering authority to ensure that the trust territory shall play its part in the maintenance of international peace and security. To this end the administering authority may make use of volunteer forces, facilities, and assistance from the trust territory in carrying out the obligations towards the Security Council undertaken in this regard by the administering authority, as well as for local defence and the maintenance of law and order within the trust territory.

Article 85

1. The functions of the United Nations with regard to trusteeship agreements for all areas not designated as strategic, including the approval of the terms of the trusteeship agreements and of their alteration or amendment, shall be exercised by the General Assembly.

2. The Trusteeship Council, operating under the authority of the General Assembly, shall assist the General Assembly in carrying out these functions.

CHAPTER XIII THE TRUSTEESHIP COUNCIL

Composition

Article 86

1. The Trusteeship Council shall consist of the following Members of the United Nations.

- (a) those Members administering trust territories,
- (b) such of those Members mentioned by name in Article 23 as are not administering trust territories, and
- (c) as many other Members elected for three-year terms by the General Assembly as may be necessary to ensure that the total number of members of the Trusteeship Council is equally divided between those Members of the United Nations which administer trust territories and those which do not

2. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall designate one specially qualified person to represent it therein

Functions and Powers

Article 87

The General Assembly and, under its authority, the Trusteeship Council, in carrying out their functions, may:

- (a) consider reports submitted by the administering authority;
- (b) accept petitions and examine them in consultation with the administering authority;

- (c) provide for periodic visits to the respective trust territories at times agreed upon with the administering authority; and
- (d) take these and other actions in conformity with the terms of the trusteeship agreements.

Article 88

The Trusteeship Council shall formulate a questionnaire on the political, economic, social, and educational advancement of the inhabitants of each trust territory, and the administering authority for each trust territory within the competence of the General Assembly shall make an annual report to the General Assembly upon the basis of such questionnaire

Voting

Article 89

1. Each member of the Trusteeship Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Trusteeship Council shall be made by a majority of the members present and voting

Procedure

Article 90

1. The Trusteeship Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure, including the method of selecting its President

2. The Trusteeship Council shall meet as required in accordance with its rules, which shall include provision for the convening of meetings on the request of a majority of its members

Article 91

The Trusteeship Council shall, when appropriate, avail itself of the assistance of the Economic and Social Council and of the specialised agencies in regard to matters with which they are respectively concerned

CHAPTER XIV THE INTERNATIONAL COURT OF JUSTICE

Article 92

The International Court of Justice shall be the principal judicial organ of the United Nations. It shall function in accordance with the annexed Statute, which is based upon the Statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice and forms an integral part of the present Charter

Article 93

1. All Members of the United Nations are ipso facto parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice

2. A state which is not a Member of the United Nations may become a party to the Statute of the International Court of Justice on condition to be determined in each case by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council.

Article 94

1. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to comply with the decision of the International Court of Justice in any case to which it is a party.

2. If any party to a case fails to perform the obligations incumbent upon it under a judgment rendered by the Court, the other party may have recourse to the Security Council, which may, if it deems necessary, make recommendations or decide upon measures to be taken to give effect to the judgement

Article 95

Nothing in the present Charter shall prevent Members of the United Nations from entrusting the solution of their differences to other tribunals by virtue of agreements already in existence or which may be concluded in the future.

THE UNITED NATIONS

Article 96

1. The General Assembly or the Security Council may request the International Court of Justice to give an advisory opinion on any legal question.

2. Other organs of the United Nations and specialised agencies, which may at any time be so authorised by the General Assembly, may also request advisory opinions of the Court on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities

CHAPTER XV THE SECRETARIAT

Article 97

The Secretariat shall comprise a Secretary-General and such staff as the Organisation may require. The Secretary-General shall be appointed by the General Assembly upon the recommendation of the Security Council. He shall be the chief administrative officer of the Organisation

Article 98

The Secretary-General shall act in that capacity in all meetings of the General Assembly, of the Security Council, of the Economic and Social Council, and of the Trusteeship Council, and shall perform such other functions as are entrusted to him by these organs. The Secretary-General shall make an annual report to the General Assembly on the work of the Organisation.

Article 99

The Secretary-General may bring to the attention of the Security Council any matter which in his opinion may threaten the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 100

1. In the performance of their duties the Secretary-General and the staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or from any other authority external to the Organisation. They shall refrain from any action which might reflect on their position as international officials responsible only to the Organisation.

2. Each Member of the United Nations undertakes to respect the exclusively international character of the responsibilities of the Secretary-General and the staff and not to seek to influence them in the discharge of their responsibilities

1. The staff shall be appointed by the Secretary-General under regulations established by the General Assembly.

2. Appropriate staffs shall be permanently assigned to the Economic and Social Council, the Trusteeship Council, and, as required, to other organs of the United Nations. These staffs shall form a part of the Secretariat

3. The paramount consideration in the employment of the staff and in the determination of the conditions of service shall be the necessity of securing the highest standards of efficiency, competence, and integrity. Due regard shall be paid to the importance of recruiting the staff on as wide a geographical basis as possible.

CHAPTER XVI MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Article 102

1. Every treaty and every international agreement entered into by any Member of the United Nations after the present Charter comes into force shall as soon as possible be registered with the Secretariat and published by it.

2. No party to any such treaty or international agreement which has not been registered in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 1 of this Article may invoke that treaty or agreement before any organ of the United Nations

Article 103

In the event of a conflict between the obligations of the Members of the United Nations under the present Charter and their obligations under any other international agreement, their obligations under the present Charter shall prevail.

Article 104

The Organisation shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such legal capacity as may be necessary for the exercise of its functions and the fulfillment of its purposes.

Article 105

1. The Organisation shall enjoy in the territory of each of its Members such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the fulfillment of its purposes.

2. Representatives of the Members of the United Nations and officials of the Organisation shall similarly enjoy such privileges and immunities as are necessary for the independent exercise of their functions in connection with the Organisation.

3. The General Assembly may make recommendations with a view to determining the details of the application of paragraphs 1 and 2 of this Article or may propose conventions to the Members of the United Nations for this purpose.

CHAPTER XVII TRANSITIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS

Article 106

Pending the coming into force of such special agreements referred to in Article 43 as in the opinion of the Security Council enable it to begin the exercise of its responsibilities under Article 42, the parties to the Four-Nation Declaration signed at Moscow, October 30, 1943, and France, shall, in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 5 of that Declaration, consult with one another and as occasion requires with other Members of the United Nations with a view to such joint action on behalf of the Organisation as may be necessary for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security.

Article 107

Nothing in the present Charter shall invalidate or preclude action, in relation to any state which during the Second World War has been an enemy of any signatory to the present Charter, taken or authorised as a result of that war by the Governments having responsibility for such action.

CHAPTER XVIII AMENDMENTS

Article 108

Amendments to the present Charter shall come into force for all Members of the United Nations when they have been adopted by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the General Assembly and ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations, including all the permanent members of the Security Council.

Article 109

1. A General Conference of the Members of the United Nations for the purpose of reviewing the present Charter may be held at a date and place to be fixed by a two-thirds vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council. Each Member of the United Nations shall have one vote in the conference.

2. Any alteration of the present Charter recommended by a two-thirds vote of the conference shall take effect when ratified in accordance with their respective constitutional processes by two-thirds of the Members of the United Nations including all the permanent members of the Security Council

3. If such a conference has not been held before the tenth annual session of the General Assembly following the coming into force of the present Charter, the proposal to call such a conference shall be placed on the agenda of that session of the General Assembly, and the conference shall be held if so decided by a majority vote of the members of the General Assembly and by a vote of any seven members of the Security Council

CHAPTER XIX RATIFICATION AND SIGNATURE

Article 110

1. The present Charter shall be ratified by the signatory states in accordance with their respective constitutional processes

2. The ratifications shall be deposited with the Government of the United States of America, which shall notify all the signatory states of each deposit as well as the Secretary-General of the Organisation when he has been appointed.

3. The present Charter shall come into force upon the deposit of ratifications by the Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America, and by a majority of the other signatory states. A protocol of the ratifications deposited shall thereupon be drawn up by the Government of the United States of America which shall communicate copies thereof to all the signatory states

4. The states signatory to the present Charter which ratify it after it has come into force will become original Members of the United Nations on the date of the deposit of their respective ratifications

Article 111

The present Charter, of which the Chinese, French, Russian, English, and Spanish texts are equally authentic, shall remain deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies thereof shall be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatory states.

IN FAITH WHEREOF the representatives of the Governments of the United Nations have signed the present Charter.

DONE at the city of San Francisco the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-five.

AMENDMENTS

The following amendments to Articles 23, 27 and 61 of the Charter came into force in August 1965.

Article 23

1. The Security Council shall consist of fifteen Members of the United Nations. The Republic of China, France, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, and the United States of America shall be permanent members of the Security Council. The General Assembly shall elect ten other Members of the United Nations to be non-permanent members of the Security Council, due regard being specially paid, in the first instance to the contribution of Members of the United Nations to the maintenance of international peace and security and to the other purposes of the Organisation, and also to equitable geographical distribution.

2. The non-permanent members of the Security Council shall be elected for a term of two years. In the first election of the non-permanent members after the increase of the membership of the Security Council from eleven to fifteen, two of the four additional members shall be chosen for a term of one year. A retiring member shall not be eligible for immediate re-election

3. Each member of the Security Council shall have one representative.

Article 27

1. Each member of the Security Council shall have one vote.

2. Decisions of the Security Council on procedural matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members

3. Decisions of the Security Council on all other matters shall be made by an affirmative vote of nine members including the concurring votes of the permanent members, provided that, in decisions under Chapter VI, and under paragraph 3 of Article 52, a party to a dispute shall abstain from voting

Article 61

1. The Economic and Social Council shall consist of twenty-seven Members of the United Nations elected by the General Assembly

2. Subject to the provisions of paragraph 3, nine members of the Economic and Social Council shall be elected each year for a term of three years. A retiring member shall be eligible for immediate re-election

3. At the first election after the increase in the membership of the Economic and Social Council from eighteen to twenty-seven members, in addition to the members elected in place of the six members whose term of office expires at the end of that year, nine additional members shall be elected. Of these nine additional members, the term of office of three members so elected shall expire at the end of one year, and of three other members at the end of two years, in accordance with arrangements made by the General Assembly.

4. Each member of the Economic and Social Council shall have one representative.

ANZUS TREATY

SECURITY TREATY

(Between Australia, New Zealand and the U.S.A.)

The parties to this treaty:

reaffirming their faith in the purposes and principles of the UN Charter and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and Governments, and desiring to strengthen the fabric of peace in the Pacific area;

noting that the United States already has arrangements pursuant to which its armed forces are stationed in the Philippines, and has armed forces and administrative responsibilities in the Ryukyus, and upon the coming into force of the Japanese peace treaty may also station armed forces in and about Japan to assist in the preservation of peace and security in the Japan area;

recognising that Australia and New Zealand, as members of the British Commonwealth of Nations, have military obligations outside as well as within the Pacific area; desiring to declare publicly and formally their sense of unity, so that no potential aggressor could be under the illusion that any of them stand alone in the Pacific area; and desiring further to co-ordinate their efforts for collective defence for the preservation of peace and security pending the development of a more comprehensive system of regional security in the Pacific area; declare and agree as follows

Article 1

The parties undertake, in conformity with the UN Charter, to settle by peaceful means any international disputes in which they might be involved, and to refrain in their international relations from the use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Article 2

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of the treaty, the parties will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack "by means of continuous self-help and mutual aid"

Article 3

The parties will consult together when, in the opinion of any one of them, the territorial integrity, political independence, or security of any one of them is threatened in the Pacific.

ANZUS TREATY

Article 4

"Each party recognises that an armed attack in the Pacific area on any of the other parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety, and declares that it will act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes." Any such attack, and all measures taken as a result of such attack will be reported to the UN Security Council. Such measures will be terminated when the Security Council has taken the necessary steps to restore and maintain international peace and security.

Article 5

For the purpose of Article 4, an armed attack on any of the three countries will be deemed to include "an armed attack on the metropolitan territory of any of the parties, or on the island territories under its jurisdiction in the Pacific, or on its armed forces, public vessels, or aircraft in the Pacific".

Article 6

The treaty will not affect the rights and obligations of the three countries under the UN Charter, or the responsibility of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

Article 7

The three countries will establish a Council, consisting of their Foreign Ministers or deputies, to consider matters concerning the implementation of the treaty. The Council will be organised as to be able to meet at any time.

Article 8

Pending the development of a more comprehensive regional security system in the Pacific, and the development by the UN of more effective means to maintain international peace and security, the Council established under Article 7 will maintain a consultative relationship with States, regional organisations, associations of States, and other authorities in the Pacific area which are in a position to further the purpose of the treaty and contribute to the security of the area.

Article 9

The Treaty is to be ratified by the parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification are to be deposited with the Australian Government.

Article 10

The Treaty is to remain in force indefinitely. Any party may cease to be a member of the Council established by Article 7 one year after notice has been given to the Government of Australia, which will inform the Governments of the other parties.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

THE PACT OF THE ARAB LEAGUE

(March 22nd, 1945)

Article 1

The League of the Arab States shall be composed of the independent Arab States signatories to this Pact.

Each independent Arab state shall have the right to adhere to the League. Should it desire to adhere to the League, a petition to this effect should be filed with the General Secretariat, and submitted to the Council at the first session convened after the lodging of the petition.

Article 2

The object of the League shall be to strengthen the ties between the participant states, to co-ordinate their political activities with the aim of realising close collaboration between them, to preserve their independence and sovereignty, and to consider, in general, the affairs and interests of the Arab countries.

It shall also provide for close co-operation between the member states, with due regard to the structure of each state and the conditions prevailing therein, in the following matters:

- (i) Economic and financial affairs, including trade reciprocity, tariffs, currency, agricultural and industrial matters.
- (ii) Communications, comprising railways, roads, aviation, navigation, posts and telegraphs.
- (iii) Cultural affairs.
- (iv) Matters relating to nationality, passports and visas, execution of judgments, and extradition of criminals.
- (v) Matters relating to social welfare.
- (vi) Matters relating to public health.

Article 3

The League shall have a council composed of representatives of the member states. Each state shall have a single vote, regardless of the number of its representatives.

The Council's function shall be the realisation of the objects of the League and to give effect to agreements concluded between the member states, relating to the matters indicated in the previous Article and elsewhere.

The Council shall also determine the methods of collaboration with international organisations which may, in future, be created for the preservation of peace and security and the regulation of economic and social relations.

Article 4

For each subject specified in Article 2, a special committee shall be formed in which the member states shall be represented. These committees shall be responsible for formulating the bases, extent, and form of collaboration, in the shape of draft-agreements to be laid before the Council for consideration, preparatory to their presentation to the afore-mentioned states.

Delegates representing the other Arab countries may participate in these committees. The Council shall define the conditions under which those representatives may participate, and the regulations for representation.

Article 5

Recourse to force to resolve disputes between two or more League states is inadmissible. If a difference should arise between them, not pertaining to the independence, sovereignty, or territorial integrity of any of the states concerned, and should the contending parties apply to the Council for settlement of the dispute, then the Council's decision shall be effective and obligatory.

In this eventuality, the contending states shall not participate in the proceedings and resolutions of the Council.

The Council shall mediate in any dispute which may lead to war between two member states, or between a member state and another state, in order to conciliate them.

Decisions relating to arbitration and mediation shall be taken by a majority vote.

Article 6

In the event of aggression or threat of aggression by a state against a member state, the member state may request an immediate meeting of the Council.

The Council shall decide upon the appropriate measures to check this aggression, and shall issue a decision by unanimous assent. If the aggression is committed by a member state the vote of that state shall not be counted in determining unanimity.

If aggression should be committed in such a way as to render the government of the attacked state unable to communicate with the Council, its representative at the Council may demand that it be convened for the purpose set forth in the preceding paragraph. If it is impossible for the representative to communicate with the Council, any of the member states may demand that it be convened.

Article 7

Decisions of the Council reached by unanimous assent shall be binding on all the member states of the League. Decisions of the League reached by a majority vote shall be binding on those who accept them.

In either case, the decisions of the Council shall be executed in each state in accordance with the fundamental structure of that state.

Article 8

Each member state shall respect the régime existing in other League states, regarding it as a fundamental right of those states, and shall pledge itself not to undertake any action tending to alter that régime.

Article 9

The states of the Arab League which desire to establish stronger collaboration than is provided for in the present pact, may conclude among themselves whatever agreements they wish for this purpose.

Treaties and agreements previously concluded, or which may be concluded with any other state, by any state belonging to the League, shall not be obligatory or binding on the other members.

Article 10

Cairo shall be the permanent seat of the League of Arab States. The League Council may assemble in whatsoever place it appoints.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Article 11

The Council shall meet in ordinary session twice a year, during the months of March and October. Extraordinary session may be convened whenever occasion demands, on the request of two member states.

Article 12

The League shall have a permanent General Secretariat consisting of a Secretary-General, Assistant Secretaries, and an appropriate staff of officials.

The League Council shall appoint the Secretary-General by a two-thirds majority of the League states. In consultation with the Council, the Secretary-General shall appoint the Assistant Secretaries and the principal officials of the League.

The Council shall establish an internal organisation to deal with the functions of the General Secretariat and matters of personnel

The Secretary-General shall hold ambassadorial status, and the Assistant Secretaries the status of Minister-Plenipotentiary.

The first Secretary-General to the League shall be nominated in an appendix to this Pact.

Article 13

The Secretary-General shall prepare the draft Budget of the League, and submit it to the Council for approval before the beginning of each financial year.

The Council shall allocate the share of each of the states of the League in the expenses, and may revise the share if necessary.

Article 14

Members of the League Council, members of its committees, and those of its officials specified in the internal administration, shall enjoy diplomatic privileges and immunity during the performance of their duties.

The inviolability of buildings occupied by bureaux of the League shall be observed.

Article 15

The Council shall be convened on the first occasion at the instance of the Head of the Egyptian Government, and subsequently at the instance of the Secretary-General.

At each ordinary session the representatives of the League states shall preside over the Council by rotation.

Article 16

Apart from the conditions defined in this Pact, a majority opinion will suffice for the Council to make effective decisions on the following subjects:

- (i) Matters relating to personnel.
- (ii) Approval of the Budget of the League.
- (iii) The internal organisation of the Council, committees and General Secretariat.
- (iv) The termination of sessions

Article 17

The member states shall deposit with the General Secretariat texts of all the treaties and agreements which they have concluded, or may conclude, with any other state belonging to, or outside, the League.

Article 18

If any of the League states contemplates withdrawal from the League, it shall give notice to the Council, of its decision to withdraw, a year before withdrawal takes effect.

The League Council has the right to regard any state not fulfilling the obligations of this Pact as having ceased to belong to the League. This shall be effected by a decision issued by unanimous assent of the states, excepting the state indicated.

Article 19

It is permissible, by agreement of two-thirds of the League states, to amend this Pact, in particular to strengthen the ties between them, to found an Arab Court of Justice, and to co-ordinate the relations of the League with the international organisations which may, in future be created to guarantee peace and security.

No decision shall be taken as regards an amendment except in the sessions following that in which it is proposed.

Any state which does not accept the amendment may withdraw on the amendment becoming effective, without being bound by the preceding Article.

Article 20

This present Pact, with its appendices, shall be ratified in conformity with the fundamental form of government in each of the contracting states.

The articles of ratification shall be deposited with the General Secretariat, and the present Pact shall have effect with those who have ratified it, fifteen days after the Secretary-General has received articles of ratification from four states.

This present Pact was drawn up in Arabic at Cairo, on the 8th of Rabi al Thani, 1364 (22nd March, 1945), in a single text, which shall be preserved in the General Secretariat.

A facsimile copy of the original shall be delivered to each of the League states.

Special Appendix Relating to Palestine

At the end of the last Great War, Palestine together with the other Arab States, was separated from the Ottoman Empire and became independent

The Treaty of Lausanne proclaimed that her fate should be decided by the parties concerned in Palestine.

Even though Palestine was unable to control her own destiny, it was on the basis of recognising her independence that the League of Nations determined a system of government for her. Her existence and independence among nations can, therefore, be no more questioned de jure than the independence of any other Arab state.

Although the visible signs of this independence have remained hidden as a result of force majeure it is not fitting that this should be an obstacle to the participation of Palestine in the League.

Therefore, the States signatory to the Pact of the Arab League, consider that in view of Palestine's special circumstances, the Council of the League should designate an Arab delegate from Palestine to participate in its work until this country enjoys actual independence.

Special Appendix Relating to Co-operation with the Arab States, Non-participants in the League Council

Whereas the member states of the League will have to deal either in the Council or in the committees with questions affecting the interests of the entire Arab world

And whereas the Council cannot fail to take into account the aspirations of the Arab countries not members of the Council and to work toward their realisation, the states signatory to the Pact of the Arab League strongly urge that the Council of the League should co-operate with them as far as possible in having them participate in the committees referred to in the Pact, and in other matters, should not spare any effort to learn their needs and understand their aspirations and should moreover, work for their common weal and the guarantee of their future by whatever political means available.

THE CULTURAL TREATY

The Cultural Treaty of the Arab League was accepted by the League Council on November 27th, 1945, at Cairo.

Article 1

The states of the Arab League agree that each of them shall form a local organisation whose functions shall be to consider matters concerning cultural co-operation between the Arab states. Each state will be free as to how it forms this organisation.

Article 2

The states of the Arab League agree to exchange teachers and professors between their educational institutions, according to the general and individual conditions which will be agreed to. The period of service of any teacher or professor who is a Government official and who will be delegated for this purpose, will be considered as service for his own Government, with the maintenance of his rights as regards his post, promotion, and pension.

Article 3

The states of the Arab League agree to the exchange of students and scholars between their educational institutions, and their acceptance in the suitable classes as far as accommodation will allow, in accordance with the regulations of those institutions.

In order to facilitate this, those states, while maintaining the basic educational principles adopted in their countries, will work towards harmonising their educational syllabuses and certificates. This will be done by special agreement between those states.

Such facilities as may be possible will be given by each state to any other state which wishes to construct hostels for its students.

Article 4

The states of the Arab League will encourage cultural scouting and sports visits between the Arab countries, in areas which the governments allow, and the holding of cultural and educational meetings for students. Facilities will be given for this purpose, particularly in respect of travelling arrangements and the expenses of the journey.

Article 5

The states of the Arab League agree on the reciprocal establishment of educational and scientific institutions in their various countries.

Article 6

The states of the Arab League will co-operate in the revival of the intellectual and artistic legacy of the Arabs, safeguarding and propagating it as well as making it available to those who seek it by all possible means.

Article 7

In order to keep pace with the world's intellectual movements, the states of the Arab League will encourage and organise the translation of all foreign masterpieces, whether classical or modern. They will also encourage all intellectual output in the Arab countries by such means as the opening of institutes for scientific and literary research. They will organise competitions for authors, and will grant prizes to distinguished men of science, literature, and art.

Article 8

All the states of the Arab League undertake to legislate for the protection of scientific, literary, and artistic authorship rights for all publications in all states of the Arab League.

Article 9

The states of the Arab League will work for the standardisation of scientific terms, by means of councils, congresses, and joint committees, which they will set up and by means of bulletins which these organisations will issue. They will work to make the Arabic language convey all expressions of thought and modern science, and to make of it the language of instruction in all subjects and in all educational stages in the Arab countries.

Article 10

The states of the Arab League will work for the consolidation of contacts between libraries and museums, whether scientific, historical, or artistic, by such means as the exchange of publications and indexes, the holding of study conferences, and by organising exchange visits between library and museum personnel at frequent intervals.

Article 11

The states of the Arab League agree to consolidate relations and to facilitate co-operation between scientists, literary men, journalists, members of the professions, those connected with art, the stage, the cinema, and broadcasting, by organising visits for them between one country and another, and by encouraging cultural, scientific, and educational conferences for the purpose; also by placing room, laboratories, and material in scientific institutions in every Arab country at the disposal of the learned of other countries to demonstrate scientific discoveries; also by the publication of periodical bulletins regarding books of scientific research published in all Arab countries. Each author or publisher must send to the "Cultural Committee" copies of his work for its library as well as for the principal libraries of each state.

Article 12

The states of the Arab League agree to include in their educational syllabuses the history, geography, and literature of the Arab countries, sufficiently to give a clear idea of the life of those countries and their civilisation. They also agree upon the institution of an Arab library for pupils

Article 13

The states of the Arab League will work to acquaint their peoples with the social, cultural, economic, and political conditions in all Arab countries, i.e. by means of broadcasts, the stage, cinema, and press, or by any other means also by the institution of museums for Arab culture and civilisation, as well as assuring its success by holding occasional exhibitions of arts and literature, and public and scholastic festivals in the various Arab countries.

THE ARAB LEAGUE

Article 14

The states of the Arab League shall encourage the establishment of Arab social and cultural clubs in their respective countries.

Article 15

The states of the Arab League will take all necessary measures to approximate their legislative trends and to unify as far as possible their laws, also to include the study of legislation of other Arab countries in their syllabuses.

Article 16

This Treaty shall be ratified by the signatory states, according to the provisions of their constitutions, with the minimum of delay. The instruments of ratification shall be lodged in the Secretariat-General of the Arab League, which will prepare a note of the receipt of each document and notify the other contracting states.

Article 17

Arab countries are permitted to adhere to this Treaty by notifying the Secretary-General of the League, who will communicate the fact to the other contracting states.

Article 18

This Treaty will come into force one month after the date of the receipt of the instruments of ratification from two states. It shall also come into force for the other states who participate one month after the date of the deposit of the document of joining from these states.

Article 19

Any signatory state of this Treaty is allowed to withdraw from it by giving notice to the Secretary-General of the League. The notice will take effect six months from the date of its despatch.

THE SECRETARIAT-GENERAL

Secretary-General: Dr. C. D. A. BARON VAN LYNDEN.

Deputies: E. R. VAN DER AA, E. LEICK.

The Secretary-General is always of Netherlands nationality and is assisted by one Belgian and one Luxembourg Deputy Secretary-General. They are appointed by the Committee of Ministers and are directly responsible to the Working Group of the Committee of Ministers for the administration of the Union. The Budget of the Secretariat for 1965 was 30,820,000 Belgian Francs to which Belgium and the Netherlands each contributed 48.5% and Luxembourg 3%.

THE ARBITRATION TRIBUNAL

The Arbitration Tribunal is composed of six persons (two from each member country) appointed by the Committee of Ministers. Their function is to settle any disputes that may arise from the working of the Union.

THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL ADVISORY COUNCIL

President: A. DE SMAELE.

The Economic and Social Advisory Council consists of twenty-seven members and twenty-seven deputy members, each country supplying one third of the number. It may offer advice on its own initiative or prepare considered opinions when requested to do so by the Committee of Ministers.

BENELUX

matters relating to foreign countries, in so far as these matters affect the purposes of the Union. There will also be a common policy with regard to foreign trade and payments and a common tariff in respect of import and other duties.

The Economic Union does not include a monetary union, but certain monetary rules are laid down, particularly that policy with regard to rates of exchange must be formulated by consultation. It is further provided that should the vital interests of a member country be in danger, the Committee of Ministers may deviate from the provisions of the Treaty.

2. INSTITUTIONS OF THE UNION

These are listed as the Committee of Ministers, the Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council, the Council of Economic Union, the Committees and Special Committees, the Secretariat-General, the Joint Services, the Arbitration Tribunal and the Economic and Social Consultative Council (see the section on Organisation above).

3. SPECIAL PROVISIONS

This section elaborates certain principles laid down in Part I, and also de-limits certain fields in which the Committee of Ministers may take binding decisions and further provides that the principles of the Treaty shall be effected by special agreement in certain cases.

4. GENERAL PROVISIONS

The main provisions of this part are that the scope of the Treaty is limited to the territories of the member countries in Europe, though the interests of Belgian and Netherlands overseas territories should be safeguarded in foreign trade agreements; and that the Treaty should be valid for a period of fifty years, subject to tacit extension by periods of ten years; the Treaty may be revoked by any member country on one year's notice.

maximum trade combined with maximum freedom, but emphasised the necessity of consultation in the case of export promotion, as well as joint action whenever complications arose with trade partners who refused reciprocity.

A convention providing for the free movement of labour was signed on June 7th, 1956, which was clarified and expanded by a further agreement on March 20th, 1957, while a protocol defining the procedure to be followed with regard to public tenders and government purchases was signed on July 6th, 1956, and came into force on August 29th, 1958.

By 1956, 96.5 per cent of the trade between the three partners was free, and of the remaining 3.5 per cent, 3.33 per cent was accounted for by food and agricultural products. Agriculture, as in all plans such as Benelux, had proved to be the most intransigent problem. In this sphere the Netherlands have a superior position, with a large export trade and low costs. In Belgium and Luxembourg the position is reversed, with a high import rate and high costs. Some price equalisation duties are charged on Netherlands agricultural products exported to Belgium and Luxembourg. These duties are levied by the Netherlands Government, of which half are handed over to Belgium and Luxembourg for the development and improvement of their agriculture and half are retained by the Netherlands and devoted to the rationalisation of their own agriculture.

SINGLE TRADING UNIT

One of the most significant dates in the evolution of Benelux is January 26th, 1956. On that date the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation announced that henceforth Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands were to be regarded as one country for all purposes of inter-European trade. In January 1955, O.E.E.C. had raised its compulsory trade liberalisation requirements to 90 per cent between member countries; the Benelux Governments presented a unified single list applying to all three of them and covering 95.6 per cent of their imports from other member countries. Consequently, O.E.E.C. could now regard the three as one.

ECONOMIC UNION TREATY

The Benelux Treaty was signed in February 1958, and came into force in November 1960. By the Treaty, all trade agreements with outside countries were to be concluded by Benelux as an entity from January 1961. By November 1963, all tenders issued by national, provincial or local authorities were to be made accessible to tenders of all three countries. By November 1967, all obstacles to the free flow of goods between the three countries, including agricultural produce, must be eliminated.

The Benelux Economic Union's main aims are to raise prosperity by co-ordinating national economic policies, by pursuing a common foreign trade policy, and permitting the free movement of persons, goods, capital and services. Unlike EEC the Benelux Economic Union is not a supra-national institution. Its institutions are based on those which grew up empirically within the Benelux Customs Union.

RESULTS

Co-operation between the Benelux countries has resulted in the area becoming the first completely free labour market. Capital movement as well as services have been made almost completely free. Examination of travel permits at Benelux frontiers was abolished in 1960.

THE TREATY OF ECONOMIC UNION

The Treaty consists of 100 Articles and is valid in the first instance for fifty years.

1. DEFINITION OF PRINCIPLES

The main aim of the Economic Union is to raise the prosperity of the people by realising the free mutual movement of persons, goods, services and capital, the co-ordination of national economic policy and the pursuance of a common foreign trade policy.

All nationals of the three member countries are free to move anywhere within the territory of the Union and to enjoy in the other two countries the same rights and privileges as are accorded to the nationals of those countries, with regard to freedom of movement, residence and establishment, the exercise of economic and professional activities, capital transactions, labour conditions, social provisions, dues, taxes and legal protection. Trade between the three countries is freed from all import dues and from all restrictions of a qualitative, quantitative or currency nature. This free intercourse must neither be unduly impeded by non-economic or non-financial measures, although controls and statistical inspections at frontiers will not be considered as restrictions within the meaning of the Treaty. Capital movements are also free and exchange of services are subject to the same principles as that of merchandise. Any distortion of competitive conditions are forbidden, lest they should impede the development of mutual free trade.

The three governments engage themselves to consult jointly on matters of economic policy in order to create the necessary conditions for full economic integration. Further, more, they will also consult each other in order to determine the Union's policy at international meetings and in all matters concerned with regional economic integration or matters relating to foreign countries, in so far as these matters affect the purposes of the Union. There will also be a common policy with regard to foreign trade and payments and a common tariff in respect of import and other duties.

The Economic Union does not include a monetary union, but certain monetary rules are laid down, particularly that policy with regard to rates of exchange must be formulated by consultation. It is further provided that should the vital interests of a member country be in danger, the Committee of Ministers may deviate from the provisions of the Treaty.

2. INSTITUTIONS OF THE UNION

These are listed as the Committee of Ministers, the Consultative Inter-Parliamentary Council, the Council of Economic Union, the Committees and Special Committees, the Secretariat-General, the Joint Services, the Arbitration Tribunal and the Economic and Social Consultative Council (see the section on Organisation above).

3. SPECIAL PROVISIONS

This section elaborates certain principles laid down in Part 1, and also de-limits certain fields in which the Committee of Ministers may take binding decisions and further provides that the principles of the Treaty shall be effected by special agreement in certain cases.

4. GENERAL PROVISIONS

The main provisions of this part are that the scope of the Treaty is limited to the territories of the member countries in Europe, though the interests of Belgian and Netherlands overseas territories should be safeguarded in foreign trade agreements; and that the Treaty should be valid for a period of fifty years, subject to tacit extension by periods of ten years, the Treaty may be revoked by any member country on one year's notice.

CENTRAL COMMISSION FOR THE NAVIGATION OF THE RHINE

Palais du Rhin, Strasbourg, France

Set up by the Congress of Vienna in 1815 to ensure free movement of traffic and equal river facilities for vessels of all nations on the Rhine.

MEMBERS

Belgium
France

German Federal Republic
Netherlands

Switzerland
United Kingdom

ORGANISATION

COMMISSION

Chairman: M FOUQUES DUPARC

General. The overall function of the Commission is to enable member Governments to co-ordinate inland waterway policy and to supervise the application of the Convention (see below). It meets twice a year (occasionally more often) in full session. Each member state provides between one and four commissioners with one or two substitutes. Decisions are taken by unanimous agreement.

ADMINISTRATIVE CENTRE FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

Set up to apply the 1950/1961 Agreement on social security of Rhine boatmen. Members: Belgium, France, German Federal Republic, Netherlands, Switzerland.

TRIPARTITE COMMISSION FOR LABOUR CONDITIONS

Set to apply the 1954/1963 Agreement on labour conditions of Rhine boatmen. Members: Belgium, France, German Federal Republic, Netherlands, Switzerland.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: H. WALTHER (Switzerland).

Chief Engineer: O. SCHOPPE (German Federal Republic).

Deputy Secretary-General: R. DOERFLINGER (France).

FUNCTIONS

Navigational Security. The Commission draws up and executes rules for navigational signals and routes, for the construction and loading of boats, for minimum numbers of crew and for carrying of dangerous goods.

Customs. Customs regulations have been simplified and standardised.

Court of Appeal. The Commission is a Court of Appeal in the second and third instance for criminal and civil cases involving Rhine traffic.

Hydrology. The Commission gives navigational approval to plans of bridge and barrage construction, and assesses other hydro-technical projects.

Research. The Commission undertakes study voyages from time to time.

CENTRAL TREATY ORGANISATION

PACT OF THE CENTRAL TREATY ORGANISATION

(February 24th, 1955)

Article 1

Consistent with Article 51 of the United Nations Charter the High Contracting Parties will co-operate for their security and defence. Such measures as they agree to take to give effect to this co-operation may form the subject of special agreement with each other.

Article 2

In order to ensure the realisation and effect application of the co-operation provided for in Article 1 above, the competent authorities of the High Contracting Parties will determine the measures to be taken as soon as the present Pact enters into force. These measures will become operative as soon as they have been approved by the Governments of the High Contracting Parties

Article 3

The High Contracting Parties undertake to refrain from any interference whatsoever in each other's internal affairs. They will settle any dispute between themselves in a peaceful way in accordance with the United Nations Charter.

Article 4

The High Contracting Parties declare that the dispositions of the present Pact are not in contradiction with any of the international obligations contracted by either of them with any third state or states. They do not derogate from, and cannot be interpreted as derogating from, the said international obligations. The High Contracting Parties undertake not to enter into any international obligation incompatible with the present Pact.

Article 5

This Pact shall be open for accession to any member state of the Arab League or any other state actively concerned with the security and peace in this region which is fully recognised by both of the High Contracting Parties. Accession shall come into force from the date of which the instrument of accession of the state concerned is deposited with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Iraq.

Any acceding State Party to the present Pact, may conclude special agreements, in accordance with Article 1, with one or more states Parties to the present Pact. The competent authority of any acceding State may determine measures in accordance with Article 2. These measures will become operative as soon as they have been approved by the Governments of the Parties concerned.

Article 6

A Permanent Council at Ministerial level will be set up to function within the framework of the purposes of this Pact when at least four Powers become parties to the Pact. The Council will draw up its own rules of procedure.

Article 7

This Pact remains in force for a period of five years renewable for other five-year periods. Any Contracting Party may withdraw from the Pact by notifying the other parties in writing of its desire to do so, six months before the expiration of any of the above mentioned periods, in which case the Pact remains valid for the other Parties.

Article 8

This Pact shall be ratified by the Contracting Parties and ratifications shall be exchanged at Ankara as soon as possible. Thereafter it shall come into force from the date of the exchange of ratifications. The three texts of the Pact in Arabic, Turkish and English are equally authentic except in the case of doubt when the English text shall prevail.

ORGANISATION

THE CONSULTATIVE COMMITTEE

The Consultative Committee, consisting of representatives of member governments at Ministerial level, is the senior directing body of the Colombo Plan. It meets once a year, in different countries. Reports submitted by member countries are discussed and the Committee provides the central co-ordinating body for Capital Aid and Technical Co-operation Schemes. All members take part on equal terms and the meetings are attended by representatives of the International Bank and the Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East, the United Nations Technical Assistance Board and the United Nations Special Fund.

THE COUNCIL FOR TECHNICAL CO-OPERATION IN SOUTH AND SOUTH-EAST ASIA

President: Dr. BHIM SEN SACHAR (India).

The Colombo Plan Council for Technical Co-operation, which holds sessions in Colombo several times a year is a forum for consultation on the general principles within which Technical Co-operation operates, subject to the general direction of the Consultative Committee. It serves as a co-ordinating and receiving body. It has also been charged by the Consultative Committee with the responsibilities of carrying out information activities on the Colombo Plan as a whole. It is composed of representatives of Member Governments, who are generally their diplomatic representatives in Colombo, but at times from representatives sent for that purpose. The executive arm of the Council is the Colombo Plan Bureau.

THE COLOMBO PLAN BUREAU

Director: HAROLD S NELSON (United States).

Adviser on Intra-Regional Training: B R R. RAO (India).

Information Officer: F. D. DOUGLAS (Pakistan)

Asst. Information Officer: L. P. GOONETILLEKE (Ceylon).

The functions of the Bureau are:

1. To assist the Council in overseeing the general operation of the Technical Co-operation Scheme under the Colombo Plan.

2. To keep records of technical assistance given and received under bilateral agreements.
3. To keep member governments informed of the training facilities, experts and equipment available
4. To promote fuller utilisation of training facilities within the area at technician level.
5. To promote the supply of information about the Colombo Plan as a whole.
6. To issue progress reports and statistics.
7. To maintain a record of capital aid projects.

THE COLOMBO PLAN

CO-OPERATION AND CAPITAL

FORMS OF CO-OPERATION

By the supply of experts and the provision of technical training to students from South and South-East Asia and the supply of special equipment for training and research.

From 1950 to June 1965, 37,966 students had received technical training and 7,167 experts and equipment to the value of £84.6 million had been provided.

During 1964-65, 4,920 students received training; 1,186 experts were sent out, value of equipment supplied £14.7 million, total value of co-operation activities from the inception of the plan to June 1965 over £220 million, of which 22 per cent was spent on trainees, 40 per cent on experts and advisers and the remainder on technical equipment.

The United States is the largest donor of training places (46 per cent) while India is both the largest donor in the development area and the largest recipient of aid.

THE COMMONWEALTH

THE MONARCHY

Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II; born April 21st, 1926; succeeded her father King George VI, February 6th, 1952; married H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh (now H.R.H. The Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh), November 20th, 1947.

Residences: Buckingham Palace, London, S.W.1; Windsor Castle, Berkshire; Sandringham, Norfolk; Balmoral Castle, Aberdeenshire.

H.R.H. The Prince of Wales (Prince Charles Philip Arthur George); Heir to the Throne; born November 14th, 1948.

The seat of the Monarchy is in the United Kingdom. In the other Member countries of the Commonwealth owing allegiance to the Crown, the Queen is represented by Governors-General appointed by her on the advice of the Ministers of the country concerned. The Governor-General acts in accordance with the constitutional practice obtaining in the country to which he is appointed in regard to the exercise of the powers of the Crown, and is wholly independent of the Government of the United Kingdom. In all essential respects, he holds the same position in relation to the administration of public affairs in the country to which he is appointed as the Queen holds in the United Kingdom.

The Monarchy is the most ancient institution of the United Kingdom. Today the Queen acts only on the advice of her Ministers who are responsible to a democratically elected Parliament; Commonwealth countries owing allegiance to the Crown are administered by their own governments, in the name of the Crown.

The citizens of the states of India, Pakistan, Ghana, Cyprus, Tanzania, Nigeria, Uganda, Zambia, Kenya and Singapore, which are Republics with a President as Head of State, do not owe allegiance to the Crown, but accept the Queen as the symbol of the free association of the Member nations of the Commonwealth and, as such, Head of the Commonwealth. Malaysia has its own monarch but recognises the Queen as Head of the Commonwealth.

THE COMMONWEALTH

1966 January Lagos meeting on Rhodesia. Nineteen countries represented. Two special committees established.

Meetings are private and informal with no agenda prepared in advance. There are no permanent rules for procedure. Many smaller meetings take place following the first full session, at which a broad conference agenda is drawn up. A final communiqué is issued, but decisions are not normally taken except in matters of immediate constitutional importance, such as membership

COMMONWEALTH SECRETARIAT

Marlborough House, London, S.W.1.

Established July, 1965, to enable Commonwealth countries to exchange opinions in an informal atmosphere. The Secretariat exercises its main functions under the following headings: International Affairs, Economic Affairs, and Administrative duties. The tasks of the organisation include the dissemination of information to member countries on political, economic, social and cultural questions of common concern. The main administrative function is the servicing of future meetings of Commonwealth Heads of Government and, where appropriate, other Ministerial and official meetings. The cost of the Secretariat is borne by Commonwealth Governments in agreed shares based on the UN formula. The budget in the first year is some £175,000.

Secretary of State for the Colonies: Rt. Hon. The Earl of LONGFORD.

FUNCTIONS

Administration of the Colonies is not carried out by the Colonial Office but by the Colonial Governments, the Governor of each Colony being the representative of Her Majesty the Queen. Subject to the overriding authority of Parliament, the Colonial Governments enjoy a large and increasing measure of autonomy. Each Colony has its own legislature and its own civil service paid from local revenue and not part of the Home Civil Service.

The Colonial Office is the clearing house for information collected in the Colonies, and ensures that colonial problems are tackled with the fullest possible background of experience and knowledge.

Her Majesty's Government is responsible for the conduct of the international relations of Colonial territories and the interests of the Colonies are represented by the United Kingdom at the United Nations.

MINISTRY OF OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Eland House, Stag Place, London, S.W.1.

Established 1964 to promote the progress of the developing countries. Both members and non-members of the Commonwealth are assisted

Minister of Overseas Development: Rt. Hon. ANTHONY GREENWOOD, M.P.

(See below, Financial Aid and Technical Assistance).

FINANCIAL AID AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

MINISTRY OF OVERSEAS DEVELOPMENT

Eland House, Stag Place, London, S.W.1.

Established in 1964 to formulate and carry out all United Kingdom policies to help the poorer countries. The Ministry co-operates closely with the other overseas ministries and is responsible for the following:

1. The Aid Programme and its composition: United Kingdom capital aid and technical assistance totalled £190 million in 1964-65

Bilateral Aid Total (1964-65): £172 million, of which 87 per cent was directed towards Commonwealth countries. Of this total, £145 million was spent on grants and loans for development, and £27 million on technical assistance.

Multilateral Aid: Total (1964-65): £18 million, of which £8 million was contributed to the IDA.

2. Terms and conditions of aid: Attempts are being made to lighten the burden of debt of developing countries. Interest-free loans are now granted in appropriate cases.
3. Size and nature of the Aid Programme for each country.
4. Management of aid: The Ministry combines the planning and administration of aid so as to use to the best advantage the capital and skills provided.
5. Relations with international aid organisations.
6. The United Kingdom interest in United Nations programmes of technical assistance
7. Liaison with voluntary bodies operating in the same fields.

NOTE: Canada alone in the Commonwealth is not a member of the Sterling Area. Rhodesia's membership was suspended in November 1965

The Sterling Area consists of those countries whose currency exchange rates are fixed in relation to the pound sterling and who finance the bulk of their foreign trade in sterling. The United Kingdom dependencies have their currencies statutorily linked with sterling, and the other independent members of the Sterling Area normally hold the bulk of their foreign exchange reserves and a proportion of their statutory reserves in sterling. Since December 1958 sterling has been freely transferable and convertible into dollars and in February 1961 it became fully convertible under the terms of Article 8 of the International Monetary Fund

To a large extent the central banks of the member countries pool their gold and dollar earnings in London, forming a central reserve upon which they draw at need.

COMMONWEALTH PREFERENCE

Commonwealth Preference is a system of tariff preferences operating between most of the Commonwealth territories. Preference is granted by levying a customs duty on all imports from foreign countries and a lower rate or none on imports from the Commonwealth.

The present system dates from the Imperial Economic Conference, Ottawa, 1932. By the 1947 UN General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) existing imperial preferences were retained but no new ones were permitted. Commonwealth countries have also obtained certain exemptions from GATT tariffs

In recent years the scope of Commonwealth Preference has been reduced by some countries, but it continues to be an important trade factor. In 1957 about four-fifths of manufactured goods imports from the Commonwealth to the United Kingdom enjoyed tariff preference, while in 1961 about half of United Kingdom exports to the Commonwealth were accorded preference

NATIONALITY AND CITIZENSHIP

In 1947 a Commonwealth Conference agreed on a general scheme for defining citizenship, whereby the citizens of the United Kingdom and Colonies would be treated as one, and every Commonwealth country would recognise as British subjects (or Commonwealth citizens) both its own citizens and the citizens of other Commonwealth countries. Naturalisation of aliens would automatically confer the status of British Subject or Commonwealth citizen and be recognised throughout the Commonwealth. Not every country of the Commonwealth has enacted this clause and where action has been taken there have been differences in form

There is considerable difference between countries in the practical effects of possessing common status. In the United Kingdom British subjects hold full franchise rights, are entitled to membership of both Houses of Parliament and the Privy Council and admission to professions closed to aliens. In other Commonwealth countries, the rights of a British subject not originally a citizen of that country are more limited. Only Canada, Australia (with certain exceptions) and New Zealand grant franchise rights. Admission to the professions is generally open to all British subjects, whether nationals of the country or not.

RECIPROCAL SOCIAL SECURITY

No overall scheme of Social Security exists covering the whole of the Commonwealth. The following reciprocal schemes are in operation.

United Kingdom-Australia and United Kingdom-New Zealand: old age, widowhood, orphanage, sickness, hospitalisation, invalidity and unemployment benefits; family allowances

United Kingdom-Canada: unemployment and retirement benefits; family allowances.

United Kingdom-Malta: old age, widowhood, orphanage, sickness, unemployment and industrial injuries benefits

United Kingdom-Cyprus: old age, widowhood, orphanage, sickness, maternity, unemployment and death benefits

MIGRATION

Large-scale emigration from the United Kingdom is directed mainly towards the older countries of the Commonwealth, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Immigration is mainly from the older Dominions, the West Indies, Cyprus, India, Pakistan and West Africa. In 1962 the end to free entry of Commonwealth citizens was brought about by the Commonwealth Immigrants Act, which restricts entry to those having evidence of employment prospects or means to support themselves; restrictions can also be imposed on medical or security grounds. There is no immigration control over travel from the non-Commonwealth country of Ireland.

Entry into Canada for United Kingdom citizens, has, since 1961, been restricted to those having assured jobs or satisfactory prospects of employment, for other Commonwealth citizens each case is considered on its merits but coloured persons must have a sponsor. Australia allows unrestricted entry for United Kingdom citizens; no coloured person is permitted to take up permanent residence; New Zealand amended her legislation in 1961, so that all persons, including United Kingdom subjects, require an entry permit.

Members: governments and their national bodies of twelve Commonwealth countries

THE COMMONWEALTH

CONSTITUTIONAL RELATIONS

The Commonwealth has no written constitution. The relationship between its members is to some extent defined by legislation, notably the Statute of Westminster, but for the most part rests on agreed constitutional conventions. The Commonwealth is not a Federation, for there is no central government, nor are there any rigid contractual obligations such as bind the members of the United Nations. Membership is granted only by consent of all the members and the right of secession is implicit.

At the Imperial Conference of 1926, Commonwealth countries were described as "autonomous communities within the British Empire, equal in status, in no way subordinate one to another in any aspect of their domestic or external affairs". The members continue to make their own laws, decide their own policies, negotiate and sign their own treaties, decide for themselves the issues of peace and war, and maintain their own diplomatic representatives in foreign countries, who in turn accredit representatives separately and independently.

English common law forms the basis of most of the judicial systems of the Commonwealth. Exceptions are the Canadian province of Quebec and the Island of Mauritius, where it is based on French law; Ceylon and Rhodesia, where it is based on Dutch Roman law; and the Moslem countries of South Asia and Africa, where the legal code is in part based on Moslem civil law. There is a right of appeal to the Privy Council in some countries, including Australia and New Zealand.

The Commonwealth is bound by a complex system of consultation and co-operation in political, economic, educational, scientific and cultural fields, operating through a multitude of Commonwealth organisations and through continuous personal contacts.

CONFERENCE DES CHEFS D'ETATS DE L'AFRIQUE EQUATORIALE
L'UNION DOUANIÈRE ECONOMIQUE DE L'AFRIQUE CENTRALE—UDEAC
Bangui, Central African Republic

The four Equatorial African States and Cameroon form an Economic and Customs Union.

The Union came into operation in January 1966 to develop further the aims of the former Union Douanière Equatoriale (f. 1959 between the Equatorial African States), with respect to customs tariffs; provisions included the establishment of a common external tariff, additional to previous duties and fiscal charges, to be levied on all imports entering the countries. This will be applied gradually over the five years 1963-68, and will be applied to all states except members of the European Economic Community and the former Union Africaine et Malgache. Export duties will remain within the competence of the individual states.

The new Union, embodied by the Treaty of Brazzaville, aims to rationalise and harmonise the tariff and tax systems of the five members. The economic union aims at harmonising internal tariffs by levying common import duties, an import turnover tax and complementary tax to replace the many internal revenue-raising taxes now levied in the countries. The union also envisages equal repartition of industrial projects and the co-ordination of development programmes.

Secretary-General: CHARLES ONANA AWANA.

THE COUNCIL OF EUROPE

COMMITTEE OF MINISTERS

Decides with binding effect all matters of internal organisation, and may also conclude conventions and agreements. Usually meets in April and December.

MINISTERS' DEPUTIES

Comprise senior diplomats accredited to the Council as permanent representatives of their governments, who deal with most of the routine work at monthly meetings. Any decision reached by the Deputies has the same force as one adopted by the Ministers.

CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY

Members are elected by their national parliaments or appointed. Most members are also members of their own parliaments, and political parties in each delegation follow the proportion of their strength in the national parliament. Members do not represent their governments; they are spokesmen for public opinion.

The Assembly has 144 members:

France, German Federal Republic, Italy, United Kingdom	18 each
Turkey	10
Belgium, Greece, Netherlands	7 each
Austria, Sweden, Switzerland	6 each
Denmark, Norway	5 each
Irish Republic	4
Cyprus, Iceland, Luxembourg, Malta	— each

The Assembly meets in ordinary session once a year for not more than a month. The session is usually divided into two or more parts held at intervals. The Assembly may submit recommendations to the Committee of Ministers, pass resolutions, discuss reports and any matters of common European interest.

COMMITTEES

Standing Committee. Represents the Assembly when it is not in session. Consists of the President, Vice-Presidents, Chairmen of the Ordinary Committees and a number of ordinary members. Meets at least four times a year.

Ordinary Committees: politics, economics, social, legal, cultural and scientific, procedure, agriculture, local authorities, non-represented nations, population and refugees, budget.

ACTIVITIES

HUMAN RIGHTS

EUROPEAN COMMISSION

President: STURE PETREN (Sweden).

Vice-President: Professor C. TH. EUSTATHIADES (Greece).

Secretary: ANTHONY McNULTY (United Kingdom).

Members: TAHSIN BEKIR BALTA (Turkey), FREDE CASTBERG (Norway), Professor F. ERMACORA (Austria), J. E. S. FAWCETT (United Kingdom), Mme G. JANSSEN-PEVTSCHIN (Belgium), SIGURGEIR SIGURJONSSON (Iceland), Professor MAX SØRENSEN (Denmark), GIUSEPPE SPERDUTI (Italy), Professor A. SUSTERHENN (German Federal Republic), M. A. TRIANTAFYLIDES (Cyprus), FELIX WELTER (Luxembourg), PHILIP P. O'DONOGHUE (Ireland), W. F. DE GAAY FORTMAN (Netherlands).

The Commission is competent to examine complaints made either by governments or, in certain cases, by individuals, that the European Convention for the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms has been violated by any of the signatory states. After examination the Commission transmits its findings to the Committee of Ministers, and, in appropriate cases, to the Court.

EUROPEAN COURT

President: RENÉ CASSIN (France).

Registrar: HERIBERT GOLSONG (German Federal Republic).

Judges: KEMAL FIKRET ARIK (Turkey), EINAR ARNALDS (Iceland), Baron FREDERICK M. VAN ASBECK (Netherlands), GIORGIO BALLADORE PALLIERI (Italy), Prof. JOHN CREMONA (Malta), ANTOINE FAVRE (Switzerland), ÅKE E. W. HOLMBÄCK (Sweden), CONOR A. MAGUIRE (Ireland), GEORGES MARIDAKIS (Greece), Lord McNAIR (United Kingdom), HERMANN MÖSLER (Federal Republic of Germany), EUGÈNE RODENBOURG (Luxembourg), HENRI ROLIN (Belgium), ALF N. C. ROSS (Denmark), ALFRED VERDROSS (Austria), TLRJE WOLD (Norway), MEHMET ZEKIA (Cyprus).

The Court may only deal with a case after the Commission has acknowledged the failure of efforts for a friendly settlement within the prescribed period. The following may bring a case before the Court, provided that the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned have accepted its compulsory jurisdiction or, failing that, with the consent of the High Contracting Party or Parties concerned: the Commission, a High Contracting Party whose national is alleged to be a victim, a High Contracting Party which referred the case to the Commission, and a High Contracting Party against which the complaint has been lodged. In the event of dispute as to whether the Court has jurisdiction, the matter is settled by the decision of the Court. The judgement of the Court is final.

EUROPEAN SOCIAL CHARTER

The Council's objectives in the social sphere are: to establish equality of treatment in each member country between nations and citizens of the other member states in such matters as social security and social and medical assistance; to pool skills and resources; and to raise the living conditions of the populations. The European Social Charter, signed on October 18th, 1961, and in force since February 26th, 1965, with regard at present to Denmark, German Federal Republic, Ireland, Norway, Sweden and the United Kingdom, lays down the rights and principles which are the basis of the Council's social policy, and guarantees a number of social and economic rights to the citizen. It thus complements the European Convention on Human Rights, which guarantees certain civil and political rights. A European Social Security Code has also been signed.

HEALTH

The Council is working towards the pooling of medical techniques and equipment between member states. A programme of medical fellowships has been launched, designed to enable members of the medical profession and personnel of public health departments to become acquainted with new methods and techniques practised in other European countries and to participate in research of common European interest.

European Agreements provide for special facilities for the medical treatment of war cripples and other injured, for a "European Blood Bank", and for the duty-free importation on loan of medical and surgical equipment. The Council has also taken over and extended arrangements between some European countries for "free sanitary areas" (health control at ports, etc.). Eight countries are participating in the establishment of a European Pharmacopoeia.

REFUGEES

The Council has concerned itself with refugee problems since 1950, and in 1953 appointed M. Pierre Schneider its Special Representative for national refugees and over-population in Europe. M. Schneider's plans, for a European resettlement fund to make loans to governments for the resettlements of refugees, was duly put into effect, eight countries contributing. The fund has so far granted loans totalling over $22 million. The Council has also made an agreement with ILO whereby an International Vocational Training Information and Research Centre at Geneva was set up by ILO, to centralise information on methods of teaching new skills to uprooted or surplus population.

LEGAL CO-OPERATION

The importance of this branch of the Council's activities has recently been acknowledged by the creation of a European Committee on Legal Cooperation, containing representatives of all member states and of the Assembly. This committee has general responsibility for the preparation and implementation of the Council's legal programme. It normally meets twice a year. Most of the specialised committees of legal experts work under its direction.

In addition, the Ministers of Justice of member countries of the Council of Europe meet from time to time for the purpose of stimulating co-operation in the legal field. The third Conference of Ministers of Justice took place in Dublin in May 1964 and the fourth conference will be held in the German Federal Republic in May 1966.

Among the more important legal conventions concluded under Council of Europe auspices are those on establishment, the peaceful settlement of disputes, patents (application, classification, unification of substantive law), extradition, commercial arbitration, compulsory motor insurance and mutual assistance in criminal matters. An Agreement, signed but not yet in force, bans "pirate" broadcasts.

CRIMINOLOGY

The European Committee on Crime Problems is the main body of the Council of Europe in the field of penal law, penology and criminology. It is assisted by a Criminological Scientific Council composed of specialists in law, psychology, sociology and related sciences. It organises every year a conference of Directors of Criminological Research Institutes.

The activities of the European Committee on Crime Problems have in recent years resulted in two Conventions (not yet in force) on the Punishment of Road Traffic Offences and on the Supervision of Conditionally Sentenced and Conditionally Released Offenders and in two Resolutions adopted in 1965 by the Committee of Ministers and concerning Remand in Custody and Suspended Sentence, Probation and other Alternatives to Imprisonment.

Various studies in criminal law and criminology are now being made by seven Expert Committees and by small committees of research workers.

EDUCATION AND CULTURE

The Council for Cultural Co-operation was founded in 1962 to draw up proposals for the cultural policy of the Council of Europe and to allocate the resources of the Cultural Fund, which finances the cultural programme of the Organisation. It is assisted by four Permanent Committees: Higher Education and Research, General and Technical Education, Out-of-School Education and Film Activities. All member states of the Council of Europe are represented on the bodies, together with Spain and the Vatican. Finland sends observers.

The Educational and Cultural programme covers:

Higher Education and Research: The work is centred on three inter-related groups of problems; university curricula with a view to the establishment of material equivalences between university diplomas, organic co-operation between European universities and the collective study of educational problems. The work is carried out in the closest co-operation with university authorities, who are represented with governments on the responsible committee.

General and Technical Education: Inter-governmental co-operation in tackling educational problems common to the European countries has led to an emphasis on comparative studies (history, geography, civics, school guidance, teacher training, etc.), as well as to the assembly of basic material on school systems and educational terminology. Particular projects include the training of teachers for Turkish teacher training establishments, a European Civics Campaign and a journal of educational research Pedagogica Europaea.

Out-of-School Education: The work is divided into three branches: youth; adult education; physical education and sport, in all of which educational aspects are uppermost. In the field of youth, priority is given to the training of youth leaders and an Experimental Youth Centre is in operation. In adult education the problems of education for leisure and for civic responsibility are prominent. In physical education and sport, the training of instructors has been undertaken in connection with the newly established European Athletics Diploma. Mutual aid has been given to Greece (youth services) and Turkey (physical education).

Film and Television: The Technical Committee for Film Activities deals with subjects related to the above three programmes. The co-production of educational and cultural films is promoted and the problems of commercial and non-commercial distribution of films are being examined. Studies of certain educational aspects of television have been commissioned for publication.

Modern Languages: A Major Project—Modern Languages, covering all three branches of education, is being actively pursued in co-operation with the International Association for the Development of Applied Linguistics, with the aim of improving and accelerating language teaching throughout Europe.

Cultural Activities: The programme has been regrouped under the two main headings: the protection and development of the European cultural heritage, and its adaptation to the needs of industrial civilisation. A number of traditional projects are being continued: the European Art Exhibitions, which demonstrate the inter-dependence of national cultures, the Cultural Identity Card, which offers special facilities to research workers, the university interchange scheme, etc.

Documentation and Publications: A Documentation Centre for Education in Europe was established in 1964. The main educational publications of the Council for Cultural Co-operation are published under the title Education in Europe. Other works, particularly on cultural questions, are also produced.

LOCAL AFFAIRS

The Council seeks to interest local authorities in the European idea by:

European Prize: Awarded annually to the municipality "which has done most to propagate the ideal of European unity".

European Conference of Local Authorities: The Conference meets every second year, and brings together mayors, aldermen and councillors from member-countries, in the same numbers as they send parliamentary delegations to the Assembly.

Inter-Municipal Exchange Scheme: Local government officers and councillors pay exchange visits.

FRONTIER FORMALITIES

Since its earliest days the Council has sought to bring about the simplification of frontier formalities and the abolition of unnecessary restrictions in the way of freer travel within its area. All visas have been abolished between the member countries of the Council, the necessity of passports has been done away with by a considerable number of them, formalities for the temporary importation of motor vehicles have been reduced to a minimum and much has been done to speed up formalities at airports.

CONVENTIONS AND AGREEMENTS

In an effort to harmonise national laws, to put the citizens of member countries on an equal footing and to pool certain resources and facilities, the Council has concluded a large number of treaties covering particular aspects of European co-operation:

European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms

Convention on Social and Medical Assistance

EXTERNAL RELATIONS

Agreements providing for co operation and exchange of documents and observers have been concluded with the United Nations and its Agencies, and with most of the European inter-governmental organisations. Particularly close relations exist with the European Communities, OECD and Western European Union Members of the European Parliament hold an annual joint meeting with members of the Consultative Assembly.

Israel is represented in the Consultative Assembly by observers, and certain European non-member countries have been invited to participate, through observers, in meetings of technical committees.

SUMMARY OF STATUTE

The Statute of the Council of Europe was signed in London on May 5th, 1949. It defines the aim of the Council, the conditions of membership and the composition and tasks of its institutions. (For an account of the latter, see the section on Organisation above)

The aim of the Council of Europe is stated by the Statute to be the achievement of "a greater unity between its members for the purpose of safeguarding and realising the ideals and principles which are their common heritage and facilitating their economic and social progress". Collaboration with the United Nations and other international organisations are not to be affected by membership of the Council

Every member state must "accept the principles of the rule of law and of the enjoyment by all persons within its jurisdiction of human rights and fundamental freedoms, and collaborate sincerely and effectively in the realisation of the aims of the Council". It is further laid down that "any European state deemed able and willing to fulfil these provisions may be invited by the Committee of Ministers to become a member of the Council". This has later been modified by the Committee of Ministers, who now undertake to consult the Assembly before issuing an invitation to join.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC AID

COMECON TRADE

COMECON plans trade between member countries largely through long-term bilateral and multilateral trade agreements linked to the development plans of the member countries. These plans are flexibly interpreted and adjusted year by year. Co-ordination has resulted in countries specialising in the growth and manufacture of goods they are best fitted to produce and in an increase in inter-COMECON trade. Trade between member countries comprises more than 60 per cent of their total foreign trade which is wholly conducted through state monopolies.

BULGARIA

(Five-Year Plan 1961-65)

Fifteen years ago agriculture dominated the Bulgarian economy, whereas now heavy and light industry have a sizeable share. Industries showing the greatest increase are: chemicals and engineering, rubber and metals, building and electricity.

Industrial production rose by 78 per cent between 1958 and 1962.

The U.S.S.R. gives Bulgaria massive economic aid. Bulgaria has trade agreements with East Germany, Rumania and the U.S.S.R.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

(Five-Year Plan 1961-65)

The Third Five-Year Plan aims to increase the total industrial output by 50 per cent, of which chemicals are to increase by 86 per cent and engineering products by 72 per cent. Investment will rise by 54.5 per cent over the five-year period.

Czech industrial effort is concentrated on engineering and building products, fuel, power and metallurgy, as it has been for several years past. Industrial production rose by 43 per cent between 1958 and 1962.

Czechoslovakia trades with over 25 countries on a substantial scale, but over a third of her trade is with the Soviet Union. There are trade agreements with Eastern Germany, Hungary, Poland and the Soviet Union.

GERMAN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC

(Seven-Year Plan 1964-70)

The previous Seven-Year Plan 1959-65 was abandoned in 1963, certain difficulties having arisen in its fulfilment. Nevertheless, between 1958 and 1962 industrial production increased by 37 per cent (the Plan provided for an increase of 80 per cent between 1958 and 1965).

The first year (1964) of the new Seven-Year Plan gives priority to the development of power and the production of primary materials. Consumer goods are to take second place.

MONGOLIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC

(Five-Year Plan 1961-65)

Agriculture and livestock are the basis of the economy. The five-year plan envisages an 11 per cent increase in livestock breeding. Agricultural production is to rise 18 times. Capital investment in industry, including credits from the Soviet Union and the other East European countries, will be increased 2.5 times as compared with the 1956-60 five-year plan. Mongolia's foreign trade is mainly with the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. Until 1962 she took part in COMECON only as an observer.

POLAND

(Seven-Year Plan 1959-65)

The Plan provides for an increase in industrial output of 80 per cent, and of 30 per cent in agricultural output. It is planned that engineering products should form 39 per cent of total exports in 1965, as against 27.6 per cent in 1960.

Some 70 per cent of Polish engineering products go to the Soviet Union, and an increase of exports of these goods to the West is planned. There are trade agreements with Czechoslovakia, Hungary, the U.S.S.R. and East Germany.

RUMANIA

(Six-Year Plan 1960-65)

The Six-Year Plan aims to double Rumania's foreign trade between 1960 and 1965 and to double her 1959 industrial output. Largest increases. iron ore, fertilisers, plastics, synthetic fibres. Cereal crops are to reach 15,000,000 tons, with big increases in sugar beet, meat and dairy produce. Resources of electric power are to be further exploited.

By the end of 1962 industrial output had increased eight-fold since 1948 and the increase continued throughout 1963. Hitherto a primarily farming and oil-producing country, by 1960 two-thirds of Rumania's national income accrued from industry. Nearly half her trade is with the U.S.S.R. and about 30 per cent with East Europe, Czechoslovakia and East Germany being her best customers. Although Rumania still co-operates with the other members of COMECON, the economy moved sharply towards self-sufficiency during 1962 and 1963.

Chief imports: iron and steel, machinery, vehicles, chemicals. Chief exports: oil, farm produce, timber, paper.

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC AID

U. S. S. R.

(Seven-Year Plan, 1959-65)

The aim of the Plan is to increase industrial output by 80 per cent, farm output by 70 per cent, and the national income by 60-65 per cent. Particularly high industrial targets are: chemicals, 250 per cent; electricity, 100 per cent; cement, 143 per cent. There will be a shift in the fuel balance towards gas (500 per cent increase) and oil (110 per cent increase). Special attention will be paid to grain production.

The Plan provides for trade with COMECON to increase by 50 per cent. The U.S.S.R. is vitally important to the countries of Eastern Europe as a supplier of raw materials, and as a market for industrial products and food. Czechoslovakia, for instance, obtains 95 per cent of her grain from the Soviet Union. The U.S.S.R.'s main customers are (in order): East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

Trade with East Germany in 1962 increased by 13.6 per cent over 1961.

SUMMARY OF CHARTER

The Governments of the People's Republic of Albania, the People's Republic of Bulgaria, the Hungarian People's Republic, the German Democratic Republic, the Polish People's Republic, the Rumanian People's Republic, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the Czechoslovak Republic,

Bearing in mind that the policy of economic co-operation, which is being successfully carried out by their countries, is a means of promoting the most rational development of their national economies, increasing their standard of living and strengthening the unity and solidarity of their countries;

Being henceforth determined to develop close economic co-operation on the basis of the logical application of socialist principles of international division of labour, in order to build up socialism and communism in their countries and ensure the peace and security of the whole world;

Being convinced that the development of economic co-operation between their countries will assist in the achievement of the aims laid down by the UN Charter; emphasising their readiness to develop economic links with all countries, regardless of their social and political structure, on principles of equality, mutual advantage and non-interference in internal affairs;

Recognising the ever increasing role of the C.M.E.A. in the organisation of economic co-operation between their countries;

Have therefore agreed to adopt the following Charter.

ARTICLE I

AIMS AND PRINCIPLES

1. The aim of the C.M.E.A. is to assist, by uniting and co-ordinating the efforts of the Council's member countries, in the systematic development of their national economies, the rapid advance of their economic and technical progress, an increase in the level of industrialisation in the less industrialised countries, the consistent growth of labour productivity and the steady improvement in the well-being of the peoples of the Council's member countries

2. The C.M.E.A. is based on the principles of sovereign equality of all its member countries.

The policy of economic and scientific/technical co-operation between the member countries is to be pursued in accordance with the principles of full equality of rights, respect for sovereignty and national interests, mutual advantage and the spirit of comradeship and mutual assistance

ARTICLE II

MEMBERSHIP

1. The founder members of the C.M.E.A. are the countries which sign and ratify the present Charter.

2. Membership is open to any other countries which share the Council's aims and principles and shall have agreed to accept the obligations of membership contained in the present Charter.

3. Any member country may leave the council, provided notice has first been given to the Registrar of the present Charter. Such notice becomes effective six months after its receipt by the Registrar. On receipt of such notice the Registrar will inform the member countries of the Council.

4. The member countries of the Council agree:

- (a) to abide by and carry out all recommendations which they receive from the Council's official organs;
- (b) to assist the Council and its officials in carrying out the tasks envisaged in the present Charter;
- (c) to provide the Council with the material and the information required to fulfil the tasks which it undertakes;
- (d) to keep the Council informed of progress in carrying out all recommendations accepted in the Council

ARTICLE III

FUNCTIONS AND POWERS

1. In accordance with the aims and principles laid down in Article I of the present Charter, the functions of the C.M.E.A. are as follows:

- (a) to organise:
 - close economic and scientific/technical co-operation between the Council's member countries with a view to the most rational use of their natural resources and the rapid development of their productive capacity;
 - the preparation of recommendations concerning the most important questions of economic relations resulting from the member countries' economic development plans, with a view to co-ordinating these plans,

COUNCIL FOR MUTUAL ECONOMIC AID

- (b) the study of economic problems which are currently of concern to the Council's member countries; to assist the member countries in the development and achievement of joint enterprises in the following fields:

industrial and agricultural development of the member countries on the basis of the logical application of the principle of international division of labour in accordance with socialist principles, and on the basis of specialisation and co-operative effort in production;

the development of transport with a view to providing basic facilities for the growing volume of member countries' exports and imports and transit goods;

the most effective use of the investment capital allotted by member countries to the fulfilment of projects which are being carried out on the basis of joint participation;

the increase by member countries of the exchange of goods and services both among themselves and with other countries; exchange of information on scientific/technical achievements and advanced methods of production;

- (c) to undertake other measures, as may be required for the achievement of the Council's objectives.

2. The constituent bodies of the C.M.E.A., acting within the limits of their competence, are empowered to adopt recommendations and decisions in accordance with the present Charter.

ARTICLE IV

RECOMMENDATIONS AND DECISIONS

1. Recommendations are adopted on questions of economic and scientific/technical co-operation. Recommendations are communicated to member countries for consideration.

Member countries carry out the recommendations they receive by decisions of their Governments or other competent bodies in accordance with their legislative processes.

2. Decisions relate to organisational and procedural matters. Unless otherwise provided for therein, decisions come into force on the day on which the minutes of the meeting of the appropriate body of the Council are signed.

3. No recommendations or decisions can be adopted in the Council without the consent of interested member countries, and any country may declare an interest in any question under consideration by the Council.

Recommendations and decisions do not apply to members who have declared themselves as having no interest in the question concerned. But any such member may subsequently associate itself with recommendations and decisions adopted by the other member countries of the Council

ARTICLE V

CONSTITUENT BODIES

1. For the purpose of carrying out the functions and exercising the powers laid down in Article III of this Charter the C.M.E.A. is divided into the following basic constituent bodies:

Session of the Council;
Conference of Members' Representatives,
Standing Committees;
Secretariat.

2. Other bodies, as may be necessary, may be constituted in accordance with the present Charter.

ORGANISATION

THE ANNUAL SESSION

President (1963-66): G. A. DENISOV (U.S.S.R.).

Vice-President: S. KOLLER (Austria)

Secretary: F. PIČEK (Czechoslovakia).

Sessions are held in January. A Session may adopt a resolution by a simple majority with a quorum of five, but important decisions require the attendance of the full Session. The President, Vice-President and Secretary are elected for three years by a simple majority. Resolutions are in the form of recommendations and are passed to member states for internal legislation. The Session appoints Expert Groups which meet three or four times a year.

SECRETARIAT AND SERVICES

The Secretariat has two sections: correspondence, publications and archives, and administration and management. In addition the Commission has four services departments: technology, navigation, hydro-meteorology, and planning and statistics. A separate department is responsible for accounts. Staff is drawn from all the member countries.

Director: NAE ANDRONE (Rumania).

Assistant Director (Secretariat): V. STALIO (Yugoslavia).

Assistant Director (Services): GYORGY FEKETE (Hungary).

Assistant Director (Accounts): FRANZ FEIK (Austria).

ACTIVITIES

General Work Plans. Based on proposals of the Danubian States and the special river administration. The Commission assesses total expenditure for any large plans and carries out the work if a single state cannot do so. It consults continually with member states and river administrations while work is proceeding.

Uniform Navigational System. Navigational rules have been unified and manuals of navigational procedure published. To secure observations of these rules a river inspection system has been set up, with functions laid down by the Commission.

Manuals for River Users. Publications include pilots' charts covering most of the Danube, sailing directions, mileage charts and lists of temporary winter quarters.

Co-ordination in Hydro-Meteorological Services. Liaison has been improved for the provision of hydro-meteorological information and water-level forecasts. Assessing water-levels is carried out by a uniform method. Steps are being taken to measure the minimum dimensions of locks and bridges and the minimum heights of high-tension cables and telephone lines.

Sandbanks and Glaciers. The Commission has worked out a statistical survey noting the appearance of sandbanks between 1946 and 1957 and is classifying the results. A similar analysis has been made of glacial activity.

Customs, Sanitary and Veterinary Regulations. The Commission has undertaken to formulate uniformly applicable rules.

Legal Problems. The Commission studies such problems as the law of collisions.

International Co-operation. The Commission works closely with many international bodies, including the UN Economic Commission for Europe, the International Atomic Energy Agency, ITU and the World Health Organisation. An agreement of collaboration and co-operation was signed with the World Meteorological Organisation in 1962.

BUDGET

1964: 4,945,549 forints.

Member countries pay an equal annual contribution to the costs of the Commission.

THE WARSAW PACT

THE WARSAW TREATY

ARTICLE ONE

The contracting parties pledge themselves in conformity with the Charter of the UN to refrain in their international relations from a threat or use of force, and to resolve their international disputes by peaceful means in such a way so as not to threaten international peace and security.

ARTICLE TWO

The contracting parties declare that they are ready to participate in the spirit of sincere co-operation in all international actions aimed at safeguarding international peace and security and will fully dedicate their efforts to the realisation of these aims. The contracting parties will strive for the adoption by agreement with other States desiring to collaborate in this matter of effective measures for the general reduction of armaments and the prohibition of atomic, hydrogen and other weapons of mass destruction.

ARTICLE THREE

The contracting parties shall consult each other on all important international questions affecting their common interests, being guided by the requirements of strengthening international peace and security. They shall consult with each other without delay at any time when in the opinion of any one of them a threat arises of armed attack on one or several States signatory to the Treaty, in the interests of ensuring joint defence and the maintenance of peace and security.

ARTICLE FOUR

In case of armed attack in Europe on one or several States signatory to the Treaty, by any State or group of States, each State signatory to the Treaty, by way of exercising the right to individual or collective defence, in conformity with Article 51 of the UN Charter, shall render the State or States subjected to such attack immediate aid individually and by agreement with other States signatory to the Treaty, with all the means which it shall deem necessary, including the use of armed force. The States signatory to the Treaty shall immediately consult each other as to the joint measures which must be taken to secure and maintain international peace and security. The measures adopted on the basis of this Article will be reported to the Security Council in conformity with the Articles of the UN Charter. These measures will be terminated as soon as the Security Council launches measures necessary for the restoration and maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE FIVE

The contracting parties have agreed to set up a Joint Command of their armed forces to be placed, by agreement between the Powers, at the disposal of this Command acting on the basis of jointly established principles. They shall also take other co-ordinated measures necessary for the strengthening of their defensive capacity in order to protect the peaceful labour of their peoples, guarantee the integrity of their frontiers and territories and ensure defence against possible aggression.

ARTICLE SIX

With the object of carrying out consultations provided by the present Treaty between the States participating in the Treaty and for the examination of questions arising in connection with the realisation of this Treaty, a Political Consultative Committee is being set up in which each State participating in the Treaty will be represented by a member of its Government or another specially appointed representative. The Committee may set up any auxiliary organs it considers necessary.

ARTICLE SEVEN

The contracting parties pledge themselves to refrain from taking part in coalitions or alliances of any kind and from concluding any agreements the aims of which conflict with the aims of this Treaty. The contracting parties declare that their commitments under existing international Treaties are in no way contradictory to the provisions of this Treaty.

ARTICLE EIGHT

The contracting parties declare that they will act in the spirit of friendship and co-operation with the aim of further developing and strengthening economic and cultural relations between them, following the principles of mutual respect for their independence and sovereignty and non-interference in domestic affairs.

ARTICLE NINE

The Treaty is open for accession to other States, irrespective of their social and State systems which may express their readiness by means of participating in this Treaty to promote the unification of the efforts of the peace-loving countries for the purpose of ensuring peace and the security of the peoples. Accession to the Treaty shall enter into force by agreement with the States participating in the Treaty after the document of accession has been deposited with the Government of the Polish Republic.

ARTICLE TEN

The present Treaty is subject to ratification, and the ratification instruments shall be deposited with the Government of the Polish People's Republic. The Treaty shall enter into force on the day when the last ratification instrument has been deposited. The Government of the Polish People's Republic shall inform the other States signatory to the Treaty of the depositing of each ratification instrument.

ARTICLE ELEVEN

The present Treaty shall remain in force for 20 years. For the contracting parties who do not hand to the Government of the Polish People's Republic a declaration denouncing the Treaty one year before the expiration of this term it shall remain in force for the following 10 years. Should a system of collective security be set up in Europe and an all-European treaty of collective security concluded for this purpose, towards which the contracting Powers will continue to aspire, the present Treaty is to lose its validity on the day on which an all-European treaty comes into force.

EUROPEAN BROADCASTING UNION

ACTIVITIES

The activities of the EBU are related primarily to the programme, legal and technical aspects of radio and television broadcasting. Programme activities on the international plane include Eurovision (see below), and among the range of special EBU interests are educational broadcasting, news exchange, agricultural broadcasting and children's programmes. The union also sponsors international radio and television contests. Legal activities comprise assistance to members in drafting their various contracts, advice on drafting legislation affecting broadcasting interests, and participation in international conferences dealing with copyright and related subject matter. In the technical sphere, the EBU is concerned with such problems as wave propagation, reception protection, standardisation and transmission monitoring. In all its activities the organisation co-operates with other international bodies, including the International Telecommunication Union, Unesco, United International Bureaux for the Protection of Intellectual Property, International Labour Organisation, etc. The EBU also has a programme of assistance for broadcasting organisations in the developing countries

EUROVISION

Eurovision is the name given to collaboration between television services of member organisations of EBU. Collaboration takes many forms: study and execution of international television programme exchange, co-ordinated coverage of large-scale events such as the Olympic Games, exchanges of film news, standardisation of equipment and practice

At the beginning of 1965 the Eurovision network linked

22 television services in 17 European countries (Portugal can also be linked by special arrangement). The total number of connected transmitting stations was approximately 2,000, serving over 40 million licensed television sets

During 1964, a total 1,295 international transmissions amounting to more than 897 hours were co-ordinated by EBU.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

THE EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY—EEC

(The Common Market)

THE EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY—ECSC

THE EUROPEAN ATOMIC ENERGY COMMUNITY—EURATOM

The three European Communities are legally separate but their unity is demonstrated in many ways notably through sharing a common European Parliament and Court of Justice. Common legal, statistical and information services have already been established. A treaty merging the Councils of Ministers of the three Communities into a single Council and the Commissions into a single Commission was signed in April 1965. The merger is expected to take place in 1966.

The task of the European Parliament is to supervise the executive organs of the three Communities, to discuss the Annual General Reports of the three Communities and to debate all matters of interest to them. It has powers, by a vote of censure of a two-thirds majority, to dismiss the executives of the Communities. It meets in annual session on the third Tuesday in October for Euratom and the Common Market, and the second Tuesday in May for ECSC; it also holds frequent extraordinary sessions

Court of Justice

12 rue de la Côte d'Eich, Luxembourg

President of the Court: Ch L HAMMES

First Chamber:

President: R. LECOURT.

Judges: L DELVAUX, A TRABUCCHI

Advocate General: K L ROEMER.

Second Chamber:

President: A. M. DONNER

Judges: R. MONACO, W. STRAUSS.

Advocate General: J GAND

The Court of Justice replaces the Court of Justice of the European Coal and Steel Community. Its task is to ensure the observance of law and justice in the interpretation and application of the Treaties setting up the three Communities. The President of the Court is appointed by the Judges from among their members for a renewable term of three years. The Judges and Advocates-General are appointed for renewable six-year terms by the Governments of the member states. A partial renewal of the Court takes place every three years, affecting three and four Judges alternately and one Advocate-General. The Judges and the Advocate-General whose terms of office are to expire at the end of the first period of three years shall be chosen by lot. The Court has full jurisdiction to settle all disputes within the Communities and to award penalties. It may review the legal validity of acts (other than recommendations or opinions) of the executives and is competent to give judgment on appeals by a member state or the executives on grounds of incompetence, of errors of substantial form, of infringement of the Treaties or of any legal provision relating to their application, or of abuse of power. Any natural or legal person may, under the same conditions, appeal against a decision addressed to him or against a decision which, although in the form of a regulation or decision addressed to another person, is of direct and specific concern to him.

The Court is also empowered to hear cases concerning compensation for damage, disputes between the Communities and their employees, fulfilment by member states of the obligations arising under the Statute of the European Investment Bank (together with cases concerned with conclusions of the Governors or Directors of the Bank), arbitration clauses contained in any contract concluded, under public or private law, by or on behalf of the Communities and disputes between member states in connection with the objects of the Treaties, where such disputes are submitted to it under the terms of a compromise.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY—EEC

THE COMMON MARKET

The idea for the European Economic Community arose out of the Conference of Foreign Ministers of the European Coal and Steel Community nations at Messina in June 1955.

Negotiations continued into 1957 and the treaties setting up the European Economic Community and the European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM) were signed in Rome on March 25th, 1957. These treaties were ratified by the parliaments of the member states during the summer and autumn of 1957 and came into force on January 1st, 1958.

The aim of the European Economic Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living of the peoples of the member states and closer relations between them.

This aim is to be achieved by various measures, of which the following are the most significant:

- (a) the elimination of import and export duties and restrictions;
- (b) the establishment of a common tariff and common commercial policy;
- (c) the establishment of free movement of persons, services and capital,
- (d) the inauguration of common agricultural and transport policies;
- (e) the establishment of a system of fair competition;
- (f) measures to co-ordinate economic policy and adjust balances of payments;
- (g) the approximation of municipal law in the member states;
- (h) the creation of a Social Fund and a European Investment Bank; and
- (i) the association of overseas countries and territories related to certain member states.

ORGANISATION

Council of Ministers

3/5 rue Auguste Lumière, Luxembourg; 2 rue Ravenstein, Brussels

Secretary-General: CHRISTIAN CALMES (Luxembourg)

The Council of Ministers has the double responsibility of ensuring the co-ordination of the general economic policies of the member states and of disposing of a power of decision.

The Council is composed of representatives of the member states, each Government delegating to it one of its members. The office of President is exercised for a term of six months by each member of the Council in rotation according to the alphabetical order of the member states. Meetings of the Council are called by the President acting on his own initiative or at the request of a member or of the Commission.

The conclusions of the Council are normally reached by a majority vote; where conclusions require a qualified majority, the votes of its members are weighted as follows: Belgium and the Netherlands 2, the German Federal Republic, France and Italy 4 and Luxembourg 1. Majorities are required for the adoption of any conclusions as follows: twelve votes in cases where the Treaty requires a previous proposal of the Commission, or twelve votes including a favourable vote by at least four members in all other cases. This system of voting has been used for most decisions on internal Community affairs since January 1st, 1966. Abstentions by members either present or represented do not prevent the adoption by the Council of conclusions requiring unanimity. When the Council acts on a proposal of the Commission, it must, where the amendment of such a proposal is involved, act only by means of a unanimous vote, as long as the Council has not so acted, the Commission may amend its original proposal particularly in cases where the European Parliament has been consulted. The Council may request the Commission to undertake any studies which the Council considers desirable for the achievement of the common objectives, and to submit to it any appropriate proposals.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

Commission

23 Avenue de la Joyeuse Entrée, Brussels

President: WALTER HALLSTEIN (German Federal Republic).

Vice-Presidents: SICCO LEENDERT MANSHOLT (Netherlands), ROBERT MARJOLIN (France), LIONELLO LEVI-SANDRI (Italy).

Members: JEAN REY (Belgium), HANS VON DER GROEBEN (German Federal Republic), LAMBERT SCHAUS (Luxembourg), HENRI ROCHEREAU (France), GUIDO COLONNA DI PALIANO (Italy).

Section Presidents:

External Relations JEAN REY.

Economic and Financial Affairs. ROBERT MARJOLIN.

Internal Market: GUIDO COLONNA.

Competition: HANS VON DER GROEBEN.

Social Affairs LIONELLO LEVI-SANDRI

Agriculture: SICCO LEENDERT MANSHOLT.

Transport: LAMBERT SCHAUS.

Overseas Countries and Territories. HENRI ROCHEREAU.

Administration: this section is the joint responsibility of the President and the Vice-Presidents of the Commission.

The Commission works on the principle of collegiate responsibility but with each member having a particular sectional responsibility.

The functions of the Commission are fourfold: to ensure the application of the provisions of the Treaty and of the provisions enacted by the institutions of the Community in pursuance thereof; to formulate recommendations or opinions in matters which are the subject of the Treaty, where the latter expressly so provides or where the Commission considers it necessary, to dispose, under the conditions laid down in the Treaty, of a power of decision of its own and to participate in the preparation of acts of the Council of Ministers and of the European Parliament; and to exercise the competence conferred on it by the Council of Ministers for the implementation of the rules laid down by the latter.

The Commission is bound to publish an Annual General Report on the activities of the Community, not later than one month before the opening of the session of the European Parliament.

The Commission may not include more than two members having the nationality of the same state; the number of members of the Commission may be amended by a unanimous vote of the Council of Ministers. In the performance of their duties, the members of the Commission are forbidden to seek or accept instructions from any Government or other body, or to engage in any other paid or unpaid professional activity.

The members of the Commission are appointed by the Governments of the member states acting in common agreement for a renewable term of four years; the President and Vice-Presidents are similarly appointed for renewable terms of two years. Any member of the Commission, if he no longer fulfils the conditions required for the performance of his duties, or if he commits a serious offence, may be declared removed from office by the Court of Justice. The Court may furthermore, on the petition of the Council of Ministers or of the Commission itself, provisionally suspend any member of the Commission from his duties.

Council of Association

23 Avenue de la Joyeuse Entrée, Brussels

Members: The Council of Ministers, the Commission and one representative from each of the Associated Countries. The chair is held in rotation.

The Council was set up under the Convention of Association with seventeen African countries and Madagascar and is responsible for its broad working. Following the ratification of the Convention, the Council held its first meeting in July 1964, and meets annually. Everyday administration of the Convention is carried out by the Association Committee, composed of one representative from each of the Community countries and the Associated Countries.

Economic and Social Committee

3 Boulevard de l'Emperour, Brussels

President: PIERO GIUSTINIANI (Italy)

Vice-Presidents: AUGUST COOL (Belgium), ALBERT GENIN (France).

Members: 101 persons representing economic and social fields, 12 each from Belgium and the Netherlands, 24 each from France, Federal Germany and Italy and 5 from Luxembourg. One-third represent each side of industry and one-third the general economic interest. Appointed for a renewable term of four years by the unanimous vote of the Councils of Ministers of EEC and Euratom. (Euratom is also represented in this Committee.) Members are appointed in their personal capacity and are not bound by any mandatory instructions.

The Committee is advisory and is consulted by the Councils of Ministers or by the Commissions of the two Communities, particularly with regard to agriculture and transport.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

European Investment Bank

85 Boulevard de Waterloo, Brussels

Board of Governors: Generally the Finance Ministers of the six member States.

Board of Directors: FRANCO BOBBA, SJOERD BOOMSTRA, ANDRÉ DE LATTRE, RAYMOND DENUCE, ROBERTO DUCCI, FRITZ FECHNER, HERBERT MARTINI, ALFRED MUELLER-ARMACK, MAURICE PÉROUSE, GIUSEPPE DI NARDI, JEAN SALTES, STEFANO SIGLIENTI.

Management Committee:

President: PARIDE FORMENTINI (Italy).

Vice-Presidents: YVES LE PORTZ (France), ULRICH MEYER-CORDING (German Federal Republic)

Director General: HENRI LENAERT (Belgium)

Members: The six Governments of the Community.

The task of the European Investment Bank is to contribute, by calling on the capital markets and its own resources, to the balanced and smooth development of the Common Market in the interest of the Community. For this purpose, the Bank is to grant loans and guarantees on a non-profit-making basis to facilitate the financing of projects for developing less-developed regions, for modernising or converting enterprises or for creating new activities which are called for by the progressive establishment of the Common Market where such projects by their size or nature cannot be entirely financed by the various means available in each of the member states, and projects of common interest to several member states which similarly cannot be entirely financed by each of the member states

The members of the Bank are the Governments of the six member states of the Community. Its capital is 1,000 million European Monetary Agreement Accounting Units, subscribed by the member states as follows: France and the Federal German Republic 300 million each; Italy 240 million; Belgium 86.5 million; the Netherlands 71.5 million; Luxembourg 2 million

European Social Fund

President: L. LEVI SANDRI (Italy).

Members: Representatives of the six governments, of trades unions, and of employers' organisations

The European Social Fund was established by the Treaty in order to improve opportunities of employment of workers in the Common Market and thus contribute to raising the standard of living. Its task is to promote within the Community employment facilities and the geographical and occupational mobility of workers. The administration of the Fund is incumbent on the Commission, assisted by a Committee presided over by the member of the Commission specially concerned with Social Affairs and composed of representatives of governments, trade unions and employers associations

At the request of a member state, the Fund may cover 50 per cent of expenses incurred by that state or by a body under public law for the purposes of ensuring productive re-employment of workers by means of occupational re-training and resettlement allowances, and of granting aids for the benefit of workers whose employment is temporarily reduced, or wholly or partly suspended, as the result of the conversion of their enterprise to other productions, in order that they may maintain the same wage-level pending their full re-employment, subject to certain detailed conditions. The rules of the Social Fund were adopted by the Council of Ministers in May 1960. Total aid 1961-64 $24.5 million. Aid 1964 $4.6 million (Italy $2.1 million; Germany $1.5 million; Belgium $0.6 million, France $0.3 million, the Netherlands $0.1 million, Luxembourg $0.008 million)

The European Development Fund

President: HENRI ROCHEREAU (France).

Committee: Representatives of the six governments, and of the European Investment Bank.

Under the association agreement concluded at the same time as the Rome Treaty (see below) a Development Fund for Associated Overseas Countries and Territories was set up for the purpose of promoting the social and economic development of these countries and territories, in particular the development of health, educational, research and professional activities of their populations, and economic investments of general interest directly connected with the implementation of a programme including productive and specific development projects

The Fund began operations in 1959 and was endowed with a total of $581 million contributed by the member countries. The second Association Convention, which came into effect on June 1st, 1964, provides for the continued operation of the Development Fund and the spending over a five-year period of a total sum of $800 million, on the same lines as before and also for promoting the diversification of the economies of the Associated States

Monetary Committee

Avenue de la Joyeuse Entrée and 58 rue du Marais, Brussels

President: Jonkheer E. VAN LENNEP (Netherlands)

Vice-Presidents: O. EMMINGER (Germany), B. CLAPIER (France).

Members: Each of the six states nominates two members to the Committee. The Commission also is represented by two members

Promotes the co-ordination of national policies in monetary matters to the full extent necessary for the functioning of the Common Market. The Committee is consultative and is charged to keep under review the monetary and financial situation of member states and the general payments system and to report regularly to the Council and the Commission. The Committee may formulate opinions at the request of the Council or the Commission or on its own initiative for submission to the Council or Commission.

In addition to the Monetary Committee a Business Cycle Policy Committee and a Committee of Medium Term Economic Policies, both composed of representatives of national governments and of the Commission, a Budgetary Policy Committee, composed of representatives of national governments, and a Committee of Governors of Central Banks have been set up

Transport Committee

President: A. STOLTENHOFF

Members: The Committee is composed of experts nominated by the Member-States.

The task of the Common Market Transport Committee is to assist the commission in working out the rules for the removal of transport discrimination within the Community

In June 1965, the Council of Ministers agreed to the organisation of the Common Transport Policy, which will come into effect in two stages prior to 1973. The first stage of three years will deal only with international transport. The second stage will include national transport. Before the end of the second stage the Council must establish common transport prices

SUMMARY OF EEC TREATY (TREATY OF ROME)

PART I. PRINCIPLES

The aim of the Community is, by establishing a Common Market and progressively approximating the economic policies of the member states, to promote throughout the Community a harmonious development of economic activities, a continuous and balanced expansion, an increased stability, an accelerated raising of the standard of living and closer relations between its member states. With these aims in view, the activities of the Community will include:

- (a) the elimination between member states of customs duties and of quantitative restrictions in regard to the importation and exportation of goods, as well as of all other measures with equivalent effect;
- (b) the establishment of a common customs tariff and a common commercial policy towards third countries;
- (c) the abolition between member states of the obstacles to the free movement of persons, services and capital;
- (d) the inauguration of a common agricultural policy;
- (e) the inauguration of a common transport policy;
- (f) the establishment of a system ensuring that competition shall not be distorted in the Common Market;
- (g) the application of procedures that will make it possible to co-ordinate the economic policies of member states and to remedy disequilibria in their balance of payments;
- (h) the approximation of their respective municipal law to the extent necessary for the functioning of the Common Market;

- (i) the creation of a European Social Fund in order to improve the possibilities of employment for workers and to contribute to the raising of their standard of living;
- (j) the establishment of a European Investment Bank intended to facilitate the economic expansion of the Community through the creation of new resources; and
- (k) the association of overseas countries and territories with the Community with a view to increasing trade and to pursuing jointly their effort toward economic and social development.

Member states, acting in close collaboration with the institutions of the Community, shall co-ordinate their respective economic policies to the extent that is necessary to attain the objectives of the Treaty; the institutions of the Community shall take care not to prejudice the internal and external financial stability of the member states. Within the field of application of the Treaty and without prejudice to certain special provisions which it contains, any discrimination on the grounds of nationality shall be hereby prohibited.

The Common Market shall be progressively established in the course of a transitional period of twelve years. This transitional period shall be divided into three stages of four years each; the length of each stage may be modified in accordance with the provisions set out below.

Transition from the first to the second stage shall be conditional upon a confirmatory statement to the effect that the essence of the objectives laid down in the Treaty for the first stage has been in fact achieved, and that all obligations have been observed. Failing a unanimous vote by the Council of Ministers at the end of the fourth year, the first stage shall be automatically extended for a period of one year. A similar procedure may be followed at the end of the sixth year if the first stage has in fact been extended. If at the end of the seventh year a unanimous vote is not forthcoming to proceed to the second stage, the Council of Ministers shall appoint an Arbitration Board whose decision shall bind both member states and Community institutions. The second and third stages may not be extended or curtailed except by a decision of the Council acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission. These provisions shall not have the effect of extending the transitional period beyond a total duration of fifteen years after the date of entry into force of the Treaty.

PART II. BASES OF THE COMMUNITY

FREE MOVEMENT OF GOODS

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new import or export customs duties, or charges with equivalent effect, and from increasing such duties or charges as they apply in their commercial relations with each other. Member states shall progressively abolish between themselves all import and export customs duties, charges with an equivalent effect, and also customs duties of a fiscal nature. Independently of these provisions, any member state may, in the course of the transitional period, suspend in whole or in part the collection of import duties applied by it to products imported from other member states, or may carry out the foreseen reductions more rapidly than laid down in the Treaty if its general economic situation and the situation of the sector so concerned permit.

A common customs tariff shall be established, which, subject to certain conditions (especially with regard to the Italian tariff), shall be at the level of the arithmetical average of the duties applied in the four customs territories (i.e. France, Germany, Italy and Benelux) covered by the Community. This customs tariff shall be applied in its entirety not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period. Member states may follow an independent accelerating process similar to that allowed for reduction of inter-Community customs duties.

Member states shall refrain from introducing between themselves any new quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect, and existing restrictions and measures shall be abolished not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period. These provisions shall not be an obstacle to prohibitions or restrictions in respect of importation, exportation or transit which are justified on grounds of public morality, health or safety, the protection of human or animal life or health, the preservation of plant life, the protection of national treasures of artistic, historic or archaeological value or the protection of industrial and commercial property. Such prohibitions or restrictions shall not, however, constitute either a means of arbitrary discrimination or a disguised restriction on trade between member states. Member states shall progressively adjust any state monopolies of a commercial character in such a manner as will ensure the exclusion, at the end of the transitional period, of all discrimination between the nationals of member states in regard to conditions of supply and marketing of goods. These provisions shall apply to any body by means of which a member state shall de jure or de facto either directly or indirectly, control or appreciably influence importation or exportation between member states, and also to monopolies assigned by the state. In the case of a commercial monopoly which is accompanied by regulations designed to facilitate the marketing or the valorisation of agricultural products, it should be ensured that in the application of these provisions equivalent guarantees are provided in respect of the employment and standard of living of the producers concerned.

The obligations incumbent on member states shall be binding only to such extent as they are compatible with existing international agreements.

AGRICULTURE

The Common Market shall extend to agriculture and trade in agricultural products. The common agricultural policy shall have as its objectives:

- (a) the increase of agricultural productivity by developing technical progress and by ensuring the rational development of agricultural production and the optimum utilisation of the factors of production, particularly labour;
- (b) the ensurance thereby of a fair standard of living for the agricultural population;
- (c) the stabilisation of markets;
- (d) regular supplies;
- (e) reasonable prices in supplies to consumers.

Due account must be taken of the particular character of agricultural activities, arising from the social structure of agriculture and from structural and natural disparities between the various agricultural regions, of the need to make the appropriate adjustments gradually, and of the fact that in member states agriculture constitutes a sector which is closely linked with the economy as a whole. With a view to developing a common agricultural policy during the transitional period and the establishment of it not later than at the end of the period, a common organisation of agricultural markets shall be effected.

FREE MOVEMENT OF PERSONS, SERVICES AND CAPITAL

Workers: The free movement of workers shall be ensured within the Community not later than at the date of the expiry of the transitional period, involving the abolition of any discrimination based on nationality between workers of the member states as regards employment, remuneration and other working conditions. This shall include the right to accept offers of employment actually made, to move about freely for this purpose within the territory of the member states, to stay in any member state in order to carry on an employment in conformity with the legislative and administrative provisions governing the employment of the workers of that state, and to live, on conditions which shall be the subject of implementing regulations laid down by the Commission, in the territory of a member state after having been employed there. (These provisions do not apply to employment in the public administration.)

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

In the field of social security, the Council shall adopt the measures necessary to effect the free movement of workers, in particular, by introducing a system which permits an assurance to be given to migrant workers and their beneficiaries that, for the purposes of qualifying for and retaining the rights to benefits and of the calculation of these benefits, all periods taken into consideration by the respective municipal law of the countries concerned shall be added together, and that these benefits will be paid to persons resident in the territories of the member states.

Right of Establishment: Restrictions on the freedom of establishment of nationals of a member state in the territory of another member state shall be progressively abolished during the transitional period, nor may any new restrictions of a similar character be introduced. Such progressive abolition shall also extend to restrictions on the setting up of agencies, branches or subsidiaries. Freedom of establishment shall include the right to engage in and carry on non-wage-earning activities, and also to set up and manage enterprises and companies under the conditions laid down by the law of the country of establishment for its own nationals, subject to the provisions of this Treaty relating to capital.

Services: Restrictions on the free supply of services within the Community shall be progressively abolished in the course of the transitional period in respect of nationals of member states who are established in a state of the Community other than that of the person to whom the services are supplied, no new restrictions of a similar character may be introduced. The Council, acting by a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, may extend the benefit of these provisions to cover services supplied by nationals of any third country who are established within the Community.

Particular services involved are activities of an industrial or artisan character and those of the liberal professions.

Capital: Member states shall during the transitional period progressively abolish between themselves restrictions on the movement of capital belonging to persons resident in the member states, and also any discriminatory treatment based on the nationality or place of residence of the parties or on the place in which such capital is invested. Current payments connected with movements of capital between member states shall be freed from all restrictions not later than at the end of the first stage of the transitional period.

Member states shall endeavour to avoid introducing within the Community any new exchange restrictions which affect the movement of capital and current payments connected with such movements, and making existing rules more restrictive

TRANSPORT

With a view to establishing a common transport policy, the Council of Ministers shall, acting on a proposal of the Commission and after consulting the Economic and Social Committee and the European Parliament, lay down common rules applicable to international transport effected from or to the territory of a member state or crossing the territory of one or more member states, conditions for the admission of non-resident carriers to national transport services within a member state and any other appropriate provisions. Until these have been enacted and unless the Council of Ministers gives its unanimous consent, no member state shall apply the various provisions governing this subject at the date of the entry into force of this Treaty in such a way as to make them less favourable, in their direct or indirect effect, for carriers of other member states by comparison with its own national carriers.

Any discrimination which consists in the application by a carrier, in respect of the same goods conveyed in the same circumstances, of transport rates and conditions which differ on the ground of the country of origin or destination of the goods carried, shall be abolished in the traffic of the Community not later than at the end of the second stage of the transitional period.

A Committee with consultative status, composed of experts appointed by the governments of the member states, shall be established and attached to the Commission, without prejudice to the competence of the transport section of the Economic and Social Committee.

PART III. POLICY OF THE COMMUNITY

COMMON RULES

Enterprises: The following practices by enterprises are prohibited, the direct or indirect fixing of purchase or selling prices or of any other trading conditions; the limitation or control of production, markets, technical development of investment; market-sharing or the sharing of sources of supply, the application to parties to transactions of unequal terms in respect of equivalent supplies, thereby placing them at a competitive disadvantage; the subjection of the conclusion of a contract to the acceptance by a party of additional supplies which, either by their nature or according to commercial usage, have no connection with the subject of such contract. The provisions may be declared inapplicable if the agreements neither impose on the enterprises concerned any restrictions not indispensable to the attainment of improved production, distribution or technical progress, nor enable enterprises to eliminate competition in respect of a substantial proportion of the goods concerned.

Dumping: If, in the course of the transitional period, the Commission, at the request of a member state or of any other interested party, finds that dumping practices exist within the Common Market, it shall issue recommendations to the originator of such practices with a view to bringing them to an end. Where such practices continue, the Commission shall authorise the member state injured to take protective measures of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars.

Re-importation within the Community shall be free of all customs duties, quantitative restrictions or measures with equivalent effect.

Aid granted by States: Any aid granted by a member state or granted by means of state resources which is contrary to the purposes of the treaty is forbidden. The following shall be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids of a social character granted without discrimination to individual consumers,
- (b) aids intended to remedy damage caused by natural calamities or other extraordinary events;

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

- (c) aids granted to the economy of certain regions of the Federal German Republic affected by the division of Germany, to the extent that they are necessary to compensate for the economic disadvantages caused by the division.

The following may be deemed to be compatible with the Common Market:

- (a) aids intended to promote the economic development of regions where the standard of living is abnormally low or where there exists serious under-employment;
- (b) aids intended to promote the execution of important projects of common European interest or to remedy a serious economic disturbance of the economy of a member state;
- (c) aids intended to facilitate the development of certain activities or of certain economic regions, provided that such aids do not change trading conditions to such a degree as would be contrary to the common interest;
- (d) such other categories of aids as may be specified by a decision of the Council of Ministers acting on a proposal of the Commission.

The Commission is charged to examine constantly all systems of aids existing in the member states, and may require any member state to abolish or modify any aid which it finds to be in conflict with the principles of the Common Market.

Fiscal Provisions: A member state shall not impose, directly or indirectly, on the products of other member states, any internal charges of any kind in excess of those applied directly or indirectly to like domestic products. Furthermore, a member state shall not impose on the product of other member states any internal charges of such a nature as to afford indirect protection to other productions. Member states shall, not later than at the beginning of the second stage of the transitional period, abolish or amend any provisions existing at the date of the entry into force of the Treaty which are contrary to these rules. Products exported to any member state may not benefit from any drawback on internal charges in excess of those charges imposed directly or indirectly on them. Subject to these conditions, any member states which levy a turnover tax calculated by a cumulative multi-stage system may, in the case of internal charges imposed by them on imported products or of drawbacks granted by them on exported products, establish average rates for specific products or groups of products.

Approximation of Laws: The Council, acting by means of a unanimous vote on a proposal of the Commission, shall issue directives for the approximation of such legislative and administrative provisions of the member states as have a direct incidence on the establishment or functioning of the Common Market. The European Parliament and the Economic and Social Committee shall be consulted concerning any directives whose implementation in one or more of the member states would involve amendment of legislative provisions.

ECONOMIC POLICY

Balance of Payments: Member states are charged to co-ordinate their economic policies in order that each may ensure the equilibrium of their overall balances of payments and maintain confidence in their currency, together with a high level of employment and stability of prices. In order to promote this co-ordination a Monetary Committee is established (see section on Organisation, above)

Each member state engages itself to treat its policy with regard to exchange rates as a matter of common interest. Where a member state is in difficulties or seriously threatened with difficulties as regards its balance of payments as a result either of overall disequilibrium of the balance of payments or of the kinds of currency at its disposal, and where such difficulties are likely, in particular, to prejudice the functioning of the Common Market or the progressive establishment of the common commercial policy, the Commission shall examine the situation and indicate the measures which it recommends to the state concerned to adopt, if this action proves insufficient to overcome the difficulties, the Commission shall, after consulting the Monetary Committee, recommend to the Council of Ministers the granting of mutual assistance. This mutual assistance may take the form of.

- (a) concerted action in regard to any other international organisation to which the member states may have recourse;
- (b) any measures necessary to avoid diversions of commercial traffic where the state in difficulty maintains or re-establishes quantitative restrictions with regard to third countries,
- (c) the granting of limited credits by other member states, subject to their agreement.

Furthermore, during the transitional period, mutual assistance may also take the form of special reductions in customs duties or enlargements of quotas. If the mutual assistance recommended by the Commission is not granted by the Council, or if the mutual assistance granted and the measures taken prove insufficient, the Commission shall authorise the state in difficulties to take measures of safeguard, of which the Commission shall determine the conditions and particulars. In the case of a sudden balance-of-payments crisis, any member state may take immediate provisional measures of safeguard, which must be submitted to the consideration of the Commission as soon as possible. On the basis of an opinion of the Commission and after consulting the Monetary Committee, the Council may decide that the state concerned shall amend, suspend or abolish such measures.

Commercial Policy: Member states shall co-ordinate their commercial relations with third countries in such a way as to bring about, not later than at the expiry of the transitional period, the conditions necessary to the implementation of a common policy in the matter of external trade. After the expiry of the transitional period, the common commercial policy shall be based on uniform principles, particularly in regard to tariff amendments, the conclusion of tariff or trade agreements, the alignment of measures of liberalisation, export policy and protective commercial measures, including measures to be taken in cases of dumping or subsidies. The Commission will be authorised to conduct negotiations with third countries. As from the end of the transitional period, member states shall, in respect of all matters of particular interest in regard to the Common Market, within the framework of any international organisations of an economic character, only proceed by way of common action. The Commission shall for this purpose submit to the Council of Ministers proposals concerning the scope and implementation of such common action. During the transitional period, member states shall consult with each other with a view to concerting their action and, as far as possible, adopting a uniform attitude.

SOCIAL POLICY

Social Provisions: Without prejudice to the other provisions of the Treaty and in conformity with its general objectives, it shall be the aim of the Commission to promote close collaboration between member states in the social field, particularly in matters relating to employment, labour legislation and working conditions, occupational and continuation training, social security, protection against occupational accidents and diseases, industrial hygiene, the law as to trade unions and collective bargaining between employers and workers.

Each member state shall in the course of the first stage of the transitional period ensure and subsequently maintain the application of the principle of equal pay for men and women.

The European Social Fund: See the section on Organisation above.

The European Investment Bank: See the section on Organisation above.

PART IV. OVERSEAS COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

The member states agree to bring into association with the Community the non-European countries and territories which have special relations with Belgium, France, Italy and the Netherlands in order to promote the economic and social development of these countries and territories and to establish close economic relations between them and the Community as a whole

Member states shall, in their commercial exchanges with the countries and territories, apply the same rules which they apply among themselves pursuant to the Treaty. Each country or territory shall apply to its commercial exchanges with member states and with the other countries and territories the same rules which it applied in respect of the European state with which it has special relations. Member states shall contribute to the investments required by the progressive development of these countries and territories.

Customs duties on trade between member states and the countries and territories are to be progressively abolished according to the same timetable as for trade between the member states themselves. The countries and territories may, however, levy customs duties which correspond to the needs of their development and to the requirements of their industrialisation or which, being of a fiscal nature, have the object of contributing to their budgets

(The Convention implementing these provisions is concluded for a period of five years only from the date of entry into force of the Treaty.)

PART V. INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY PROVISIONS GOVERNING INSTITUTIONS

For accounts of the European Parliament, the Council of Ministers, the Commission, the Economic and Social Committee, the Monetary Committee, the European Investment

Bank, the European Social Fund and the Development Fund, see the section on Organisation above.

For the achievement of their aims and under the conditions provided for in the Treaty, the Council and the Commission shall adopt regulations and directives, make decisions and formulate recommendations or opinions. Regulations shall have a general application and shall be binding in every respect and directly applicable in each member state. Directives shall bind any member state to which they are addressed, as to the result to be achieved, while leaving to domestic agencies a competence as to form and means. Decisions shall be binding in every respect for the addressees named therein. Recommendations and opinions shall have no binding force.

FINANCIAL PROVISIONS

Estimates shall be drawn up for each financial year for all revenues and expenditures of the Community, including those relating to the European Social Fund, and shall be shown in the budget.

The revenues of the budget shall comprise (apart from those contributions which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund, and apart from any other revenues) the financial contributions of member states fixed according to the following scale.

Belgium	7.9
France	28.0
Italy	28.0
German Federal Republic	28.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.9

The financial contributions of the member states which are intended to meet the expenses of the European Social Fund shall be fixed according to the following scale:

Belgium	8.8
France	32.0
Italy	20.0
German Federal Republic	32.0
Luxembourg	0.2
Netherlands	7.0

The Commission shall implement the budget on its own responsibility and within the limits of the appropriations made. The Council of Ministers shall:

- lay down the financial regulations specifying, in particular, the procedure to be adopted for establishing and implementing the budget, and for rendering and auditing accounts;
- determine the methods and procedure whereby the contributions by member states shall be made available to the Commission; and
- establish rules concerning the responsibility of pay-commissioners and accountants and arrange for the relevant supervision.

PART VI. GENERAL AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Member states shall, in so far as is necessary, engage in negotiations with each other with a view to ensuring for the benefit of their nationals:

- the protection of persons as well as the enjoyment and protections of rights under the conditions granted by each state to its own nationals;

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

- (b) the elimination of double taxation within the Community;
- (c) the mutual recognition of companies, the maintenance of their legal personality in cases where the registered office is transferred from one country to another, and the possibility for companies subject to the municipal law of different member states to form mergers; and
- (d) the simplification of the formalities governing the reciprocal recognition and execution of judicial decisions and arbitral awards.

Within a period of three years after the date of the entry into force of the Treaty, member states shall treat nationals of other member states in the same manner, as regards financial participation by such nationals in the capital of companies, as they treat their own nationals, without prejudice to the application of the other provisions of the Treaty.

The Treaty shall in no way prejudice the system existing in member states in respect of property

The provisions of the Treaty shall not detract from the following rules:

- (a) no member state shall be obliged to supply information the disclosure of which it considers contrary to the essential interests of its security;
- (b) any member state may take the measures which it considers necessary for the protection of the essential interests of its security, and which are connected with the production of or the trade in arms, ammunition and war material; such measures shall not, however, prejudice conditions of competition in the Common Market in respect of products not intended for specifically military purposes.

The list of products to which (b) applies shall be determined by the Council in the course of the first year after the date of entry into force of the Treaty. The list may be subsequently amended by the unanimous vote of the Council on a proposal of the Commission

Member states shall consult one another for the purpose of enacting in common the necessary provisions to prevent the functioning of the Common Market from being affected by measures which a member state may be called upon to take in case of serious internal disturbances affecting public order, in case of war or serious international tension constituting a threat of war or in order to carry out undertakings into which it has entered for the purpose of maintaining peace and international security.

In the course of the transitional period, where there are serious difficulties which are likely to persist in any sector of economic activity or difficulties which may seriously impair the economic situation in any region, any member state may ask for authorisation to take measures of safeguard in order to restore the situation and adapt the sector concerned to the Common Market economy.

The provisions of the Treaty shall not affect those of the Treaty establishing the European Coal and Steel Community, nor those of the Treaty establishing the European Atomic Energy Community; nor shall they be an obstacle to the existence or completion of regional unions between Belgium and Luxembourg, and between Belgium, Luxembourg and the Netherlands, in so far as the objectives of these regional unions are not achieved by the application of this Treaty.

The government of any member state of the Commission may submit to the Council proposals for the revision of the Treaty.

Any European state may apply to become a member of the Community.

The Community may conclude with a third country, a union of states or an international organisation agreements creating an association embodying reciprocal rights and obligations, joint actions and special procedures.

The Treaty is concluded for an unlimited period

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY—ECSC

The European Coal and Steel Community is the eldest of the three "sisters" of the European Community. It arose from a declaration made by M. Robert Schuman on May 9th, 1950, urging the necessity of a united Europe. This union could not be achieved all at once, or according to a single, general plan; concrete achievements, stage by stage, and above all the elimination of hostility and suspicion between France and Germany, were the solution. Accordingly he proposed, as a first step, the placing of the coal and steel industries of France and Germany under a common "higher authority", within the framework of an organisation open to the participation of the other countries of Europe. Direct political action towards European federation would, at this stage, be doomed to failure, but economic co-operation could be achieved and once gained, would provide a firm foundation for the political federation to come.

Less than a month later, on June 3rd, 1950, the German Federal Republic and four other nations—Belgium, Italy, Luxembourg and the Netherlands—issued a joint communiqué welcoming the Schuman declaration, and on June 20th the delegations of the six countries met in Paris to begin work on drawing up a treaty. Negotiations continued throughout the next ten months and the ECSC Treaty was signed in Paris on April 18th, 1951. The Treaty was ratified by substantial majorities in the parliaments of The Six and came into force on July 25th, 1952. The High Authority began its work on August 10th, 1952

Seven distinct aims may be ascribed to the Community:

- (a) to stimulate vigorous and smooth economic expansion;
- (b) to promote the most rational distribution of production;
- (c) to achieve the highest possible level of productivity;
- (d) to increase the total employment available;
- (e) to give greater security of employment;
- (f) to raise living and working standards; and
- (g) to take a decisive step towards the creation of a united Europe.

The means by which these aims are to be achieved are fourfold:

- (a) the abolition of customs duties, quantitative and currency restrictions;
- (b) the abolition of all discrimination based on national origin,
- (c) the establishment of a system of fair competition, particularly with regard to the formation and functioning of cartels and mergers, and
- (d) the introduction of a harmonised external tariff covering the Community as a whole, and thus doing away with national tariffs

These measures were to be introduced during a transition period of five years, which ended in February 1958, when the ECSC Common Market came into full operation

ORGANISATION

High Authority

2 Place de Metz, Luxembourg

President: RINALDO DEL BO (Italy).

Vice-President: ALBERT COPPÉ (Belgium).

Members: FRITZ HELLWIG (German Federal Republic), PIERRE-OLIVER LAPIE (France), K M HETTLAGE (German Federal Republic), ROGER REYNAUD (France), ALBERT WEHRER (Luxembourg), JOHANNES LINTHORST-HOMAN (Netherlands), JEAN FOHRMANN (Luxembourg).

The High Authority is responsible for assuring the achievement of the purposes of the Treaty. Eight members of the High Authority are appointed by the governments of the member states by agreement among themselves; the ninth is elected by the eight appointed members, and is deemed elected if he receives at least five votes. All members serve for a renewable term of six years. They exercise their functions in complete independence, in the general interest of the Community. In the fulfilment of their duties, they are forbidden to solicit or accept instructions from any government or any other organisation or to act in any way incompatible with the supranational character of their functions. Each member state undertakes to respect this supranational character and not to seek to influence the members of the High Authority in their work

The President and Vice-Presidents of the High Authority are appointed for renewable two-year terms by the governments of the member states by agreement among themselves. Members who no longer fulfil the requirements for the exercise of their functions or who have committed a serious offence may be removed from office by the Court of Justice on petition by the High Authority or the Council.

The High Authority acts by majority vote, and is responsible, in the execution of the tasks entrusted to it by the Treaty, for taking decisions, formulating recommendations and issuing opinions. Decisions are binding in every respect. Recommendations are binding with respect to the objectives which they specify but leave to those to whom they are directed the choice of appropriate means for attaining these objectives. Opinions are not binding. When the High Authority is empowered to take a decision, it may limit itself to formulating a recommendation.

The High Authority is bound to publish an Annual General Report on the activities and administrative expenses of the Community at least one month before the session of the European Parliament

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

Council of Ministers

3 rue Auguste Lumière, Luxembourg

Secretary-General: CHRISTIAN CALMES (Luxembourg).

The general task of the Council of Ministers is to harmonise the action of the High Authority and that of the governments which are responsible for the economic policy of their countries. The Council and the High Authority are bound to exchange information and consult together to this end; the Council may request the High Authority to examine any proposals and measures which it may deem necessary or appropriate for the realisation of common objectives.

The Council consists of representatives of the member states, each state appointing a member of its government. The Presidency of the Council is exercised for a term of three months by each member in rotation, in alphabetical order of the member states. Meetings of the Council are called by the President at the request of a member state or of the High Authority; when the Council is consulted by the High Authority, it may deliberate without necessarily proceeding to a vote, but the minutes of its meetings must be forwarded to the High Authority.

Whenever the Treaty requires the agreement of the Council, the agreement is deemed to have been given if the proposal submitted by the High Authority is approved by an absolute majority of the representatives of the member states, including the votes of the representative of one of the states which produces at least 20 per cent of the total value of coal and steel in the Community, or, in the case of an equal division of votes, and if the High Authority maintains its proposal after a second reading, by the representatives of two member states, each of which produces at least 20 per cent of the total value of coal and steel in the Community. Decisions are taken by a vote of the majority of the total membership, except in those cases where the Treaty requires a qualified majority or a unanimous vote.

Consultative Committee

The Consultative Committee is attached to the High Authority, and consists of not less than thirty and not more than fifty-one members, including an equal number of producers, workers and consumers and dealers. They are appointed by the Council of Ministers for a period of two years, and are not bound by any mandate or instructions.

The High Authority may consult the Committee on all matters it deems proper, and is required to do so under certain provisions of the Treaty, particularly with regard to economic and social provisions.

SUMMARY OF ECSC TREATY

THE EUROPEAN COAL AND STEEL COMMUNITY

The European Coal and Steel Community is based on a common market, common objectives and common institutions. The aims of the Community are to contribute to the expansion of the economy, the development of employment and the improvement of the standard of living in the participating countries through the creation, in harmony with the general economy of the member states, of a common market. With these aims in view, the institutions of the Community are to ensure that the common market is regularly supplied, while taking into account the needs of third countries; to assure to all consumers in comparable positions within the common market equal access to the sources of production, to seek the establishment of the lowest possible prices without involving any corresponding rise either in the prices charged by the same enterprise in other transactions or in the price-level as a whole in another period, while at the same time permitting necessary amortisation and providing the possibility of normal returns on invested capital; to ensure that conditions are maintained which will encourage enterprises to expand and improve their ability to produce and to promote a policy of rational development of natural resources, while avoiding undue exhaustion of such resources; to promote the improvement of the living and working conditions of the labour force in each of the industries under its jurisdiction so as to harmonise those conditions in an upward direction; to foster the development of international trade and ensure that equitable limits are observed in prices charged in foreign markets; and to promote the regular expansion and the modernisation of production as well as the improvement of quality, under conditions which preclude any protection against competing industries except where justified by illegitimate action on the part of such industries or in their favour.

The following are considered incompatible with the common market and are therefore abolished and prohibited:

- (a) import and export duties, or taxes with an equivalent effect, and quantitative restrictions upon the movement of coal and steel;
- (b) measures or practices discriminating among producers, buyers or consumers, especially as concerns

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

prices, delivery terms and transport rates, as well as practices or measures which hamper the buyer in the free choice of his supplier;

- (c) subsidies or state assistance, or special charges imposed by the state, in any form whatsoever;
- (d) restrictive practices tending towards the division or the exploitation of the market.

The Community binds itself to assist the interested parties to take action by collecting information, organising consultations and defining general objectives; to place financial means at the disposal of enterprises for their investments and participate in the expenses of readaptation, to assure the establishment, the maintenance and the observance of the normal conditions of competition, and take direct action with respect to production and the co-operation of the market only when circumstances make it absolutely necessary; and to publish the reasons for its action and take the necessary measures to ensure observance of the rules set forth in the Treaty.

THE INSTITUTIONS OF THE COMMUNITY

See section on Organisation, above.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL PROVISIONS

The High Authority is empowered to consult governments and various interested parties such as enterprises, workers, consumers and dealers and their associations, as well as experts, and to gather such information as may be necessary to the accomplishment of its mission. It is not permitted to divulge information which by its nature is considered a trade secret, and in particular information pertaining to the commercial relations or the breakdown of the costs of production of enterprises. With this reservation, it must publish such data as may be useful to governments or to any other interested parties.

The High Authority may impose fines and daily penalty payments upon enterprises which evade their obligations under this title.

Financial Provisions: The High Authority is empowered to procure its funds by imposing a levy on the production of coal and steel, by borrowing, and by receiving grants. The levies are intended to cover administrative expenses, non-repayable assistance relating to readaptation, investments and financial assistance and expenditure devoted to encouraging technical and economic research. Funds obtained by borrowing may only be used to grant loans.

Investments and Financial Assistance: The High Authority may facilitate the carrying out of investment programmes by granting loans to enterprises or by giving its guarantee to other loans which they obtain. With the unanimous agreement of the Council, the High Authority may by the same means assist the financing of works and installations which contribute directly or mainly to an increase of production, to lower production costs, or which facilitate the marketing of products subject to its jurisdiction. The High Authority may require enterprises to submit individual projects in advance, and, having given the interested parties an opportunity to express their views, issue a reasoned opinion on any such projects. If the High Authority finds that the financing of a project or the operation of any proposed installation would require subsidies, assistance, protection or discrimination contrary to the present Treaty, it may issue a binding prohibition to the enterprise in question, forbidding it to use resources other than its own funds to carry out such a project.

The High Authority is obliged to encourage technical and economic research concerning the production and the development of consumption of coal and steel, as well as workers' safety in these industries. If the introduction of technical processes or new equipment, within the framework of the general objectives laid down by the High Authority, should lead to an exceptionally large reduction in labour requirements in the coal or steel industries, making it especially difficult in one or more areas to re-employ the workers discharged, the High Authority, on the request of the interested governments, may facilitate the financing of such programmes as it may approve for the creation, either in the industries subject to its jurisdiction or, with the agreement of the Council, in any other industry, of new and economically sound activities capable of assuring productive employment to the workers thus discharged, and shall grant non-repayable assistance as a contribution to payment of compensation, granting of re-settlement allowances and the financing of technical retraining of workers.

Production: The High Authority is to give preference to the indirect means of action at its disposal, such as co-operation with governments to stabilise or influence general consumption, particularly that of public services, and intervention on prices and commercial policy.

If, in the case of a decline in demand, it considers that the Community is faced with a manifest crisis, it must, after consulting the Consultative Committee and with the agreement of the Council, establish a system of production quotas. Failing this, any member state may bring the matter to the attention of the Council, which, by unanimous vote, may oblige the High Authority to establish a quota system. The High Authority may in particular regulate the rate of operation of enterprises by appropriate levies on tonnages exceeding a reference level defined by a general decision. The sums thus obtained will be earmarked for the support of those enterprises whose rate of production has fallen below the reference level.

If the Community is faced with a serious shortage of certain or of all the products subject to the jurisdiction of the High Authority, the latter must propose appropriate measures to the Council, unless the Council decides to the contrary by unanimous vote. On the basis of these proposals, the Council must establish consumption priorities and determine the allocation of the coal and steel resources of the Community among the industries subject to its jurisdiction, exports and other consumption. On the basis of the consumption priorities thus established, the High Authority is empowered, after consulting the enterprises concerned, to draw up production programmes which the enterprises are obliged to carry out.

Prices: Pricing practices contrary to the provision of Title I are prohibited and in particular unfair competitive practices, especially purely temporary or local price reductions, the purpose of which is to acquire a monopoly within the common market and discriminatory practices involving within the common market the application by a seller of unequal conditions to comparable transactions, especially according to the nationality of the buyer. THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

EUROPEAN ATOMIC ENERGY COMMUNITY— EURATOM

51-53 rue Belliard, Brussels, Belgium

The idea of the European Atomic Energy Community was born at the Messina Conference in 1955, together with that of EEC. The Treaty setting up the Community came into force on the same date as the EEC Treaty, January 1st, 1958.

EURATOM's role is to create 'the conditions necessary for the speedy establishment and growth of nuclear industries in the Community' by stimulating and co-ordinating public and private research in atomic energy, by ensuring the free flow of information, and by encouraging the building of power reactors. EURATOM also has various responsibilities of a regulatory character, establishing common laws and rules in the atomic field throughout the Community. A common market in nuclear materials was introduced on January 1st, 1959, which eliminates internal import and export duties on nuclear products; a common tariff is applied to third countries; assistance is granted to the free movement of specialised labour, and a common insurance scheme against nuclear risks has been established.

Nuclear materials intended for military purposes are not subject to the control of EURATOM, which has no responsibilities in the field of armaments, and new military plant need not be notified to the Commission nor is it subject to inspection. However, the intended use of all nuclear materials has to be declared, so the scope of production for military purposes comes to the knowledge of the Commission.

The supply of nuclear fuel is supervised or negotiated by an Agency, financially independent and with an option on the purchase of materials within the Community. Contracts with third countries are the exclusive right of the Agency. EURATOM is also the exclusive owner of special fissile materials.

ORGANISATION

The Commission: Pres. PIERRE CHATENET (France); Vice-Pres. ANTONIO CARRELLI (Italy), Mems. PAUL DE GROOTE (Belgium), ROBERT MARGULIES (German Federal Republic), Dr. EMANUEL SASSEN (Netherlands), Exec. Sec. G. GUZZUGLI MARINI

The executive body of the Community, the Commission, meets once a week. The members, elected for renewable four-year terms, are fully independent of the member states, and cannot be instructed by any government or organisation. They are responsible to the European Parliament. The Commission publishes an annual report which is presented for debate to the European Parliament.

The Council of Ministers: Sec.-Gen. CHRISTIAN CALMES (Luxembourg).

The Council of Ministers, composed of Ministers of the governments of member states, deliberates at monthly meetings on the propositions of the Commission. It may also ask the Commission to undertake inquiries on the basis of which to submit proposals.

The European Parliament: Pres. JEAN DUVEUSART (Belgium)

Delegates

The European Parliament, which is common to the three European Communities, meets in October to discuss the general report submitted by the Commission in open session, and at frequent intervals during the year. It also has powers to dismiss the Commission.

The Court of Justice: Pres. Prof. A. M. DONNER (Netherlands)

The Court, common to the three communities, ensures the rule of law in the interpretation and application of the Treaties.

THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITIES

ACTIVITIES AND ACHIEVEMENTS

Research

EURATOM'S nuclear research assignment is to undertake research at its own Joint Research Centre or under various types of contracts with bodies in the member countries. Ispra is the largest of the four establishments of the Centre. A second is in operation (the Central Nuclear Measurements Bureau) at Mol, Belgium; a third is at Karlsruhe (the European Transuranium Elements Institute); the Dutch Petten Centre is the fourth under an agreement which came into force in 1962. Roughly half EURATOM research is undertaken under contract with public or private concerns in member countries and several hundred contracts are in course. Some of these are long-term "association contracts" in which EURATOM and the concern contribute finance and personnel, one is for the operation of the Belgian BR2 materials' testing reactor at Mol; others concern, inter alia, fast breeder and high temperature gas reactors, nuclear ship propulsion, fusion, agricultural and medical aspects of nuclear energy. EURATOM was allocated $215 million for research over 1958-62 and $425 million for a second period 1963-67. At present the research staff numbers about 2,400, a figure to be raised up to 3,200 by the end of 1967.

Co-operation with other countries and organisations

An important section of EURATOM's research work falls under agreements for joint research with other countries and international organisations. In November 1958 an agreement was signed between EURATOM and the U.S.A. for a joint power and research and development programme. Several large-scale American-designed and constructed atomic reactors have been installed or are under construction: so far, one 150 MW. atomic power station is in operation in Italy, and one 266 MW plant is being built at Chooz on the Franco-Belgian border. The latter will be a EURATOM joint undertaking, and so benefit from certain fiscal exemptions and other investment aids. A third reactor of 250 MW under construction in Southern Germany. Forty million dollars have so far been devoted to joint research and development.

Under the agreements with the U.K. and Canada, signed 1959, joint discussions and exchanges of information are taking place in many fields of common interest, such as fast breeder reactors and the economics of nuclear power (with the U.K.) and heavy-water moderated reactors (with Canada). Other agreements have been signed with Brazil and Argentina.

EURATOM is participating in the research projects of the European Nuclear Energy Agency of the OECD. EURATOM is participating, in the place of its member countries, and in partnership with the U.K., in the building and operation of the high-temperature gas-cooled DRAGON reactor at Winfrith Heath, along with other ENEA countries: some 30 of the 250 scientists and engineers employed on the DRAGON Project are from EURATOM.

Industry and the Common Market

About 3,000 MWe. of nuclear capacity will have been installed in the Community by 1968, and about 1,000 MWe was in service by July 1965.

EURATOM expects power reactors on which construction could now start to be competitive when they come into operation in 1968-70; from then onwards nuclear electricity will be required on a large scale. It is estimated that between 1960 and 1980 Community electricity consumption will virtually quadruple, rising from an estimated 264 billion kWh in 1960 to 950 billion kWh in 1980 and that consumption per head will rise to 5,000 kWh in 1980 (from the 1,350 kWh or so in 1960). It is estimated that the Community's installed nuclear capacity will be 40,000 MW in 1980 to satisfy electricity needs, some 20 per cent of total electricity production capacity. By the year 2000 the capacity is expected to be 370,000 MW, producing some two-thirds of the Community's electricity.

The Commission, through an inter-executive working group, is collaborating with the executives of the Common Market and the European Coal and Steel Community in the drawing up of proposals for an overall energy policy for the member states.

EURATOM is not, however, responsible for the construction of power reactors in the Community. Its role is to facilitate and encourage investment by private or public authorities in member countries. At the beginning of 1959 a common market was brought into existence for all nuclear materials and equipment; arrangements for the free movement of qualified labour are now in force; a supplementary insurance convention providing for third-party coverage by the Community as a whole for damages amounting to up to $120 million has been prepared; a Community patent policy has been drawn up; a Community atomic information and documentation centre has been built up; and a bureau to provide information on the industrial use of radioisotopes is in operation. Moreover, EURATOM is giving direct financial assistance to a number of power reactor projects in return for access to all constructional and operational information and for the seconding of its own staff to these projects. Such information may be made available to interested parties in the Community.

Supply Agency

The Community's Supply Agency (Article 52 of the Treaty) came into operation in June 1960. From that date all contracts for the purchase and sale of fissile materials such as enriched uranium produced in or imported into the Community must be concluded by the Agency, which is an independent department of the Commission operating on commercial lines. The Agency is also to have an option on all ores and fissile materials produced in the Community, and all contracts for purchases and sales must receive its approval.

Security Control and Health Protection

The Commission has set up a Security control system designed to guarantee that fissile materials will not be improperly used. Community nuclear installations must make regular declarations to the Commission on stocks, transfers and transactions of nuclear materials, and an inspection team undertakes periodic visits to them to ensure that declarations are being properly made. This is the first international control system to be binding on governments.

In February 1959, Basic Health Standards drawn up by EURATOM were approved by the Ministers and these are being incorporated into national nuclear legislation. These also are the first international nuclear safety laws to be binding on governments.

SUMMARY OF EURATOM TREATY

The preamble to the Treaty states that the signatory powers:

"Realising that nuclear energy constitutes the essential resource for ensuring the expansion and invigoration of production and for effecting progress in peaceful achievement,

"Convinced that only a common effort undertaken without delay can lead to achievements commensurate with the creative capacities of their countries,

"Resolved to create the conditions required for the development of a powerful nuclear industry which will provide extensive supplies of energy, lead to the modernisation of technical processes and in addition have many other applications contributing to the well-being of their peoples,

"Anxious to establish conditions of safety which will eliminate danger to the life and health of the people,

"Desirous of associating with international organisations concerned with the peaceful development of atomic energy,

"Have decided to establish a European Atomic Energy Community (EURATOM)."

AIMS OF THE COMMUNITY

ARTICLE 1. It shall be the aim of the Community to contribute to the raising of the standard of living in member states and to the development of commercial exchanges with other countries by the creation of conditions necessary for the speedy establishment and growth of nuclear industries.

ARTICLE 2. For the attainment of its aims the Community shall:

- develop research and ensure the dissemination of technical knowledge;
- establish, and ensure the application of, uniform safety standards to protect the health of workers and of the general public;
- facilitate investment and ensure, particularly by encouraging business enterprise, the construction of the basic facilities required for the development of nuclear energy within the Community;
- ensure a regular and equitable supply of ores and nuclear fuels to all users in the Community;

- guarantee, by appropriate measures of control, that nuclear materials are not diverted for purposes other than those for which they are intended,
- exercise the property rights conferred upon it in respect of special fissionable materials;
- ensure extensive markets and access to the best technical means by the creation of a common market for specialised materials and equipment, by the free movement of capital for nuclear investment, and by freedom of employment for specialists within the Community;
- establish with other countries and with international organisations any contacts likely to promote progress in the peaceful uses of nuclear energy.

ARTICLE 3. The achievement of the tasks entrusted to the Community shall be ensured by.

an Assembly a Council a Commission
a Court of Justice

The Council and the Commission shall be assisted by an Economic and Social Committee acting in a consultative capacity.

PROVISIONS FOR NUCLEAR ENERGY

Articles 4–11: deal with development of research.

Article 8 provides for the establishment of a Joint Nuclear Research Centre.

EUROPEAN CONFERENCE OF MINISTERS OF TRANSPORT

INTERNATIONAL CO-OPERATION

Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). There is close contact and exchange of information between the two bodies. The Conference's studies of long-term traffic demand and road safety are being undertaken in collaboration with OECD. The annual report is submitted to OECD and an observer from the Conference attends meetings of OECD bodies when a matter concerning the Conference appears on the agenda.

Council of Europe. The annual report of the Conference is submitted to the Council's Consultative Assembly, which addresses to the Conference resolutions and recommendations relating to transport matters.

UN Economic Commission for Europe (ECE). Close collaboration is maintained and the Conference is represented at the annual session of the Inland Transport Committee of the Commission

Other Bodies. The Conference keeps in close touch with the European Economic Community (EEC) and the European Civil Aviation Commission

EUROFIMA

Chairman: M. JACQUET (France)

Formed under the auspices of ECMT in 1955 to invest in railway rolling stock. Shareholders are the member states excluding the United Kingdom and Ireland. Between 1955 and 1963, the Eurofima Company was able to obtain the following rolling stock for members

26 main line electric or diesel multiple units

112 main line diesel locomotives

445 diesel locomotives for shunting.

54 electric locomotives.

6,778 goods wagons (of which 6,638 partially or fully standardised).

74 passenger coaches

Resources made available to members up to December 31st, 1964, amounted to about Sw Fr. 630 million.

CONVENTION

EFTA's objectives are:

- to promote in the Area of the Association and in each Member State a sustained expansion of economic activity, full employment, increased productivity and the rational use of resources, financial stability and continuous improvement in living standards;
- to secure that trade between Member States takes place in conditions of fair competition;
- to avoid significant disparity between Member States in the conditions of supply of raw materials produced within the Area of the Association; and
- to contribute to the harmonious development and expansion of world trade and to the progressive removal of barriers to it.

The main provisions of the Convention are:

Tariffs. Elimination of tariffs on industrial goods was originally to be achieved at the latest by January 1970, but this date has been brought forward to December 31st, 1966.

Quotas. The Convention provides for the progressive reduction of quantitative restrictions on all imports from Member States and their complete elimination by January 1st, 1970. This date has also been brought forward to December 31st, 1966.

Origin Rules. Member States will not have a common external tariff in relation to countries outside the area.

"Origin" rules have therefore been worked out to identify the products of member countries to which the tariff reductions will apply.

Safeguards. Member countries will be free to take action which they consider necessary for the protection of their essential security interests and, consistently with their other international obligations, their balance of payments. In certain circumstances a Member State may also take special safeguarding action where the application of the Convention leads to serious difficulties in a particular sector of industry.

Competition. The Convention contains provisions to ensure that the benefits which are expected from the removal of tariffs and quotas are not nullified through the use of other measures by Governments, public undertakings or private industries. These include provisions about subsidies, restrictive business practices and discriminatory restrictions against nationals of Member States wishing to establish business anywhere in the area.

Agriculture and Fish. Special arrangements have been made for agricultural goods and fish and other marine products. The objective is to facilitate reasonable reciprocity to those member states whose economies depend to a great extent on agricultural or fish exports. Arrangements have also been concluded between several member countries in respect of trade in agricultural goods

EUROPEAN ORGANISATION FOR NUCLEAR RESEARCH—CERN

1211 Geneva 23, Switzerland

Telephone (002) 41 98 11.

CERN was established in 1954 on the initiative of UNESCO. It aims to provide for collaboration among European states in nuclear research of a pure scientific and fundamental character. Work for military requirements is excluded, and the results of experimental and theoretical work are published.

COUNCIL AND COMMITTEES

Council: composed of two representatives of each member state, Pres (1965) J. H. BANNIER (Netherlands).

Committee of Council: twelve members, including the President and Vice-Presidents of the Council, Chairmen of the Scientific Policy and Finance Committees, and representatives of member states.

Scientific Policy Committee: Chair Prof. L. LEPRINCE-RINGUET (France).

Finance Committee: Chair Dr. W. SCHULTE-MEERMAN (German Federal Republic).

DIRECTORATE

Director-General: Prof. B. GREGORY

Directorate Member for Research: Prof. B. GREGORY

Directorate Member for Administration: G. H. HAMPTON.

Directorate Member for Applied Physics: Dr. M. G. N. HINE.

Directorate Member for Technical Management: Dr. P. GERMAIN

ACTIVITIES

The construction of laboratories in Geneva started early in 1954. The research programme has particular reference to the phenomena involving very high energies and throwing light on the nature of elementary particles. The first of the two particle accelerators, a synchrocyclotron of 600 MeV, started up in August 1957. The second and larger machine, the proton synchrotron of 30,000 MeV maximum output, was put into operation in late 1959.

By 1960 CERN had completed most of its building programme and was concentrating on experimental research. Since then it has been engaged in an extensive research programme planned round the machines. Experiments on the proton synchrotron are normally carried out by mixed teams of scientists from the member states and CERN.

In June 1960 CERN agreed to exchange scientists with the Nuclear Research Centre at Dubna, near Moscow.

In 1961 the proton synchrotron accelerator came into operation. The laboratory's equipment was completed, and an extensive research programme carried out, which included the use of two large bubble chambers from France.

In 1962-63 CERN concentrated on a serious scientific programme, mainly on experiments with high-energy neutrinos whose results may open a new field of physics.

Yugoslavia withdrew from membership for financial reasons and was granted observer status, and Poland and Turkey also became observers in 1963.

In June 1963 the Council of the Organisation adopted a resolution agreeing in principle to build intersecting storage rings attached to the proton synchrotron machine, which will open up a complete new field of work. The Council also appropriated funds for the continuation of studies of a 300 GeV synchrotron.

COUNCIL

President: (1965). Dr. A. HOCKER (German Federal Republic).

Vice-Presidents: Prof. P. A. SHEPPARD (United Kingdom), Prof. GOLAY (Switzerland).

The governing body of ESRO. Consists of two delegates from each member state. Is assisted by Scientific and Finance Committees, a sub-committee on Launching programmes and six working groups First session Paris, March 1964

DIRECTOR-GENERAL

The Director-General is advised by Scientific, Technical and Administrative Directorates, and assisted by a Secretariat staffed from member countries

Director-General: Prof. P. AUGER (France).

SUBSIDIARY CENTRES

Space Technology Centre (ESTEC): Delft, Netherlands To study and develop rocket payloads, satellites and space probes In October 1964 it was decided to construct a new centre at Noordwijk, Netherlands, and a laboratory (ESLAB) has already been established there for project research

Data Centre (ESDAC): Darmstadt, Germany To process and analyse space data before and after flights Five tracking and telemetry stations are to be set up to receive data from satellites.

Research Institute (ERSIN): To be established near Rome for advanced physical and chemical space research

Sounding Rocket Launching Range (ESRANGE): To be established at Kiruna, Sweden. Until the range becomes operational in 1966, sounding rockets are being launched from Salto di Quirra, Sardinia and Ile du Levant, France. The first satellites will be launched from the United States

EUROPEAN SPACE RESEARCH ORGANISATION

AIMS

During the initial eight-year period ESRO aims to achieve:

1. The firing of a variety of fully-instrumented vertical sounding rockets containing mainly nationally financed experiments, at the rate by the third year of 65 medium-sized vehicles per year.
2. The successful launching, from the fourth year, of two fully-instrumented small satellites in near-earth orbits (i.e. carrying payloads of up to about 200 kilogrammes)

3. The successful launching, from the fifth year, of four highly eccentric orbit satellites
4. The successful launching, from the sixth year, of two fully-instrumented space probes or major satellites requiring large launching vehicles.
5. The launching of several large astronomical satellites.

ACTIVITIES

Satellite Programme: Two small satellites are being developed and are to be launched in 1967-68. Two medium satellites are being planned for 1969; the first of four highly eccentric orbit satellites is scheduled for 1968; several large astronomical satellites are also planned

Sounding Rockets: Rockets are to be launched to measure solar radiation, study the ionosphere and the upper atmosphere, and conduct various experiments for research into magnetic fields and cosmic rays. The first rocket was launched from Sardinia in July 1964, a Skylark rocket being used to carry the payload to a height of 200 km.

Co-operation: ESRO co-operates closely with the United States National Aeronautics and Space Administration

(NASA) and a Memorandum of Agreement was signed by the two bodies in July 1964. ESRO satellite launchings will be in the United States, with the active co-operation of NASA. Under a joint fellowship scheme, ESRO scientists are able to study at American universities and research institutes. In 1965 an agreement was concluded with the European Launcher Development Organisation (ELDO) for the creation of a joint documentation centre.

Conferences: nine colloquia have so far taken place, attended by specialised groups and national research teams. Summer Schools have been organised at Alpbach, Austria (2), on space physics and electromagnetic radiation from space and at Oxford, England, on space technology.

FINANCE

The following ceilings have been set:

First three years: 380 million French francs

Second three years: 600 million French francs

Initial eight years: 1,500 million French francs

1964 Budget: 45 million French Francs.

1965 Budget: 86 million French Francs.

COUNCIL

President: Prof. G. BOCK (German Federal Republic).

Vice-Presidents: A. PATERNOTTE DE LA VALEE (Belgium),
Ing A. J. MARX (Netherlands).

Approves research, development and construction programmes and decides on their distribution between members. Composed of two representatives from each member country. Assisted by a Scientific and Technical Committee and a Finance Committee.

SECRETARIAT

Responsible for formulation and execution of programmes, administration, finance and external relations.

Secretary-General: R. DI CARROBIO (Italy).

PROGRAMME

The initial programme envisages the development and construction of a European three-stage satellite-launching vehicle incorporating the British "Blue Streak" rocket. Member countries will have the following responsibilities:

Australia.	Firing-range facilities.
Belgium:	Down-range guiding stations.
France:	Second stage.
Germany:	Third stage.
Italy:	Satellite test vehicle.
Netherlands.	Long-range telemetry.
United Kingdom:	First stage ("Blue Streak").

Test firings of the first stage commenced in 1964 and launchings of the complete vehicle will take place in 1966. Study and experimental work are being carried out to determine further programmes.

BUDGET

Initial Programme (1962-66): £70 million.

WEST AFRICAN MONETARY UNION

The West African Monetary Union, came into effect on 1st November 1962. The members are Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Upper Volta, Mauritania, Niger, Togo and Senegal. The unit of currency is the Franc Communauté Financière Africaine (CFA), replacing the Franc Colonies Françaises d'Afrique at par and retaining the same initials. The Banque Centrale des Etats de l'Afrique de l'Ouest remains the bank of issue.

CUSTOMS UNIONS

Trade between all members of the Franc Zone is on a preferential basis, and there is free movement of currency among members.

FORMER WEST AFRICAN STATES UNION

Founded in 1959 by Ivory Coast, Dahomey, Volta, Senegal, Mali, Mauritania and Niger. A total customs union but without affecting the fiscal rights of each country. A Fiscal Commission was set up to regulate rates between each state.

Secretary: DIA ABDOU (Abidjan).

FORMER FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICAN UNION (UDEAC)

Central African Republic, Chad, Congo, Gabon and Cameroon. A total customs union with a common customs service. The common external tariff will not be applied to members of the European Economic Community, nor to members of the former Union Africaine et Malgache. There is free movement of currency between the Union and the Franc Zone countries.

The Council meets annually in one of the Nordic capitals. At each session a Presidium is elected to take charge of the Council's work until the next session. Each delegation elects its own President, the Council President being the one from the country which is host that year. The other four are Vice-Presidents.

The Council consists of 69 delegates elected annually from the Parliament of each country—five from Iceland, and 16 each from the others—and of Government Representatives. Resolutions are passed in the form of suggestions sent to the Governments. Governments must submit progress reports to the Council annually.

ACTIVITIES

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

In 1957 a Scandinavian Co-operation Committee advocated a Scandinavian Common Market but in 1959 the plan was abandoned in favour of joining EFTA (The Seven). A Permanent Committee of Ministers for Economic Co-operation (see below), and a committee of officials to assist them, has been set up to direct Scandinavian co-operation in production and investment, trade and economic policy, statistics and customs administration and to co-ordinate investigations in the present European market situation. The Council has given special consideration to joint assistance schemes for the developing countries.

CULTURAL CO-OPERATION

The Council has recommended that Scandinavia should be an educational unit, with interchangeable scholarships. Most university examinations are recognised throughout Scandinavia. The Council has also encouraged the teaching of all the Nordic languages, especially in teachers' training colleges and elementary schools.

At the Council's recommendation a joint Scandinavian college for the training of journalists was set up, intended for persons who had already received a basic journalistic training.

The Council has fostered co-operation between the national broadcasting and television administrations (NORDVISION).

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

LEGAL CO-OPERATION

The Council works towards securing uniformity of legislation and interpretation of the law. A large proportion of private law is already uniform throughout the Nordic countries. The Nordic Council has recommended an Inter-Nordic patent convention, and visualises one joint Scandinavian patent institution. There are also joint or common laws on marriage, divorce, property, copyright and trade marks.

There are special extradition facilities between the Nordic countries, but the Council would like to see police and courts having wider authority to examine suspected persons or to hear witnesses at the request of another country.

The Council has arranged for citizens working in other Nordic countries to be given the legal status of nationals in many respects, and recommended relaxation of the rules whereby foreigners may not join the boards of directors or corporations for a certain time. New rules are in preparation to make it easier to change citizenship of Nordic countries.

SOCIAL CO-OPERATION

At the Council's recommendation, a Convention came into force in 1954 abolishing working permits for wage earners in all the Nordic countries except Iceland, and creating a common labour market. A free labour market exists for certain professions e.g. physicians, and the Council is working to this goal in other branches of the medical profession.

Reciprocity in social security legislation was largely achieved before the Nordic Council was set up, but the Council has arranged for the 16 existing agreements to be consolidated into a single Convention, which came into force in 1956.

Joint research is now taking place in all branches of health care and medicine.

TRANSPORT AND COMMUNICATIONS

The "Sound Bridge". In 1953 the Council recommended that a bridge be built between either Malmö or Helsingborg in Sweden and either Copenhagen or Elsinore in Denmark. A report recommending that construction start was published in December 1962.

Traffic Regulations. These are gradually being unified, and there is increasing common planning about communications between Scandinavia and the continent.

North Calott. The Council has made several recommendations for the improvement of communications to this area, the northern regions of Finland, Norway and Sweden.

Postal and Telegraphic Communications. Several recommendations have been executed to improve and cheapen facilities.

Passports. These were abolished for nationals in 1952, and for non-nationals in 1958, within the Nordic area. Customs formalities and baggage control have been substantially reduced, with the aim of making Scandinavia one unit for travel and tourist purposes.

NORDIC CO-OPERATION

Outside the Nordic Council, there are hundreds of Nordic or Scandinavian societies, enterprises and committees, governmental, private and commercial. The following are some of the most important:

MINISTERIAL MEETINGS

The Prime Ministers of the Nordic Countries meet the Presidium of the Nordic Council once a year.

The Foreign Ministers of the Nordic Countries hold regular informatory meetings twice a year.

Ministers of Education meet several times a year to co-ordinate educational work.

Ministers of Finance, of Communications, of Fisheries, of Defence, of Health and Agriculture meet at least once a year.

MINISTERIAL COMMITTEES

Permanent Committee of Ministers for Economic Co-operation and Trade: Handelsdepartement, Stockholm, Sweden; aims to co-ordinate trading policy further.

Permanent Committee of Ministers for Co-ordination of Assistance to Developing Countries: f. 1963.

Nordic Committee for Economic Co-operation:

assists the Permanent Committee of Ministers. Three officials for each country sit on the Committee.

Permanent Nordic Committee for Agriculture: f. 1961; four members nominated by each government; discusses common problems of agricultural production and sales.

Permanent Nordic Committee for Fishery Problems: f. 1963; four members nominated by each government; discusses common problems of fisheries and sales of fishery products.

Nordic Cultural Commission: f. 1946; advises governments on cultural matters. Each government appoints a maximum of six members to cover these three fields: academic and scientific, education, adult education and arts.

Officers Co-ordinating for Legislative Co-operation: f. 1959; committee of the chief officials from the Ministries of Justice. Annual Ministerial meetings co-ordinate work in Nordic legislation.

Nordic Social Policy Committee: f. 1946; consists of two high officials from the Ministry of Social Welfare in each country. It submits proposals for new joint projects, organises Ministerial meetings and implements their decisions, and generally co-ordinates policy. Social Insurance Congresses are also held at three-year intervals.

Scandinavian Council for Applied Research (SCAR): aims to undertake regional projects, such as the publication of a Scandinavian Research Guide.

Nordic Contact Committee for Atomic Energy: f. 1957; meets twice a year to exchange information about atomic energy problems.

Nordic Traffic Committee: f. 1957; aims to facilitate traffic between the Nordic countries; consists of nine members appointed by the governments.

PRIVATE SOCIETIES, ENTERPRISES

Nordic Council for Applied Research (Nordfors): f. 1947, aims to exchange information about research, to arrange symposia and to help towards the exchange of scientists among the Scandinavian countries

Scandinavian Tourist Committee: f. 1926; the joint secretariat of the national travel organisations. It organises festivals and co-ordinates publicity.

Foreningen Norden (Norden Associations): f. 1919; 120,000 members; aims to increase co-operation generally; activities include information work, lecturing, courses, revision of textbooks and exchange between towns.

Nordic Council of the Fine Arts: f. 1945; arranges exhibitions, etc.

Nordisk Andelsförbund (Scandinavian Co-operative Wholesale Society): Njalsgade 15, Copenhagen S.

Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS): f. 1946; Bromma Airport, Bromma 10, Stockholm; consortium: Norwegian, Danish and Swedish airlines.

Scanair: Copenhagen; f. 1961; charter company; SAS holds 45 per cent of the share capital.

Nordic Institute for Theoretical Atomic Physics (Nordita): f. 1957; promotes scientific research in theoretical atomic physics and trains physicists; Dir. C. MØLLER.

STATUTE

(effective from January 1958)

ARTICLE 1. The Nordic Council is a body formed for the purpose of consultation among the Folketing of Denmark, the Eduskunta-Riksdag of Finland, the Althing of Iceland, the Storting of Norway and the Riksdag of Sweden, as well as the governments of these countries, in matters involving joint action by any or all of these countries.

ARTICLE 2. The Council shall consist of 69 elected delegates and of Government representatives.

For such terms and by such methods as shall be decided in each country, the Folketing of Denmark, the Eduskunta-Riksdag of Finland, the Storting of Norway and the Riksdag of Sweden shall each elect from among their members 16 delegates to the Council and the necessary number of deputy delegates, and the Althing of Iceland shall elect from among its members 5 delegates to the Council and the necessary number of deputy delegates. Among the elected delegates of each country, different political opinions shall be represented.

Each Government may appoint from among its members as many Government representatives as it desires.

ARTICLE 3. The Government representatives have no vote in the Council.

ARTICLE 4. The Council shall meet once a year on such date as it may decide (Ordinary session). Furthermore, special meetings may be held, if the Council so decides, or if a meeting is requested by not less than two Governments or not less than 25 elected delegates (Extraordinary session). Ordinary sessions shall be held in the capital of one of the countries, as decided by the Council.

ARTICLE 5. For each ordinary session and for the period until the next ordinary session, the Council from among its elected delegates shall elect a President and four Vice-Presidents who, together, shall constitute the Presidium of the Council.

ARTICLE 6. The deliberations of the Council shall be open to the public, unless, in view of the special nature of a matter, the Council decides otherwise.

ARTICLE 7. During each ordinary session the elected delegates shall form standing committees to undertake preparatory work in connection with matters before the Council. By decision of the Presidium, the standing committees may meet also during inter-sessionary periods in special cases.

Special committees may be set up during inter-sessionary periods to prepare special matters.

ARTICLE 8. The delegation of each country shall appoint a Secretary and other staff members. The activities and collaboration of the secretariats shall be supervised by the Presidium.

ARTICLE 9. All governments and delegates are entitled to submit a matter to the Council by written application to the Presidium. The Presidium shall cause such investigations to be made as it may deem necessary and shall send out the documentation to the governments and delegates well ahead of the session.

ARTICLE 10. The Council shall discuss questions of common interest to the countries and may adopt recommendations to the governments. Recommendations shall be accompanied by information as to how each delegate has voted.

In questions which concern only certain of the countries, only the delegates from those countries may vote.

ARTICLE 11. At each ordinary session, the governments should inform the Council of any action taken on the recommendation of the Council.

ARTICLE 12. The Council shall adopt its own rules of procedure.

ARTICLE 13. Each country shall defray the expenses involved by its membership in the Council. The Council shall decide how common expenses shall be apportioned.

THE NORDIC COUNCIL

AGREEMENT OF CO-OPERATION BETWEEN THE NORDIC COUNTRIES

Signed in Helsinki, March 23, 1962

The Governments of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden:

Desirous of furthering the close connections between the Nordic nations in culture and juridical and social conceptions and of developing co-operation between the Nordic countries;

Endeavouring to create uniform rules in the Nordic countries in as many respects as possible;

Hoping to achieve in all fields where prerequisites exist an appropriate division of labour between these countries;

Desirous of continuing the co-operation, important to these countries, in the Nordic Council and other agencies of co-operation;

Have agreed upon the following provisions

ARTICLE 1. The Contracting Parties shall endeavour to maintain and further develop co-operation between the countries in the juridical, cultural, social and economic fields and in questions of communications.

ARTICLES 2-7. Juridical Co-operation.

ARTICLES 8-13. Cultural Co-operation

ARTICLES 14-17. Social Co-operation.

ARTICLES 18-25. Economic Co-operation.

ARTICLES 26-29 Co-operation in Communications

ARTICLES 30-34. Other Co-operation.

ARTICLES 35-38. The Forms of Nordic Co-operation.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANISATION— NATO

Place du Maréchal de Lattre de Tassigny, Paris XVIe.

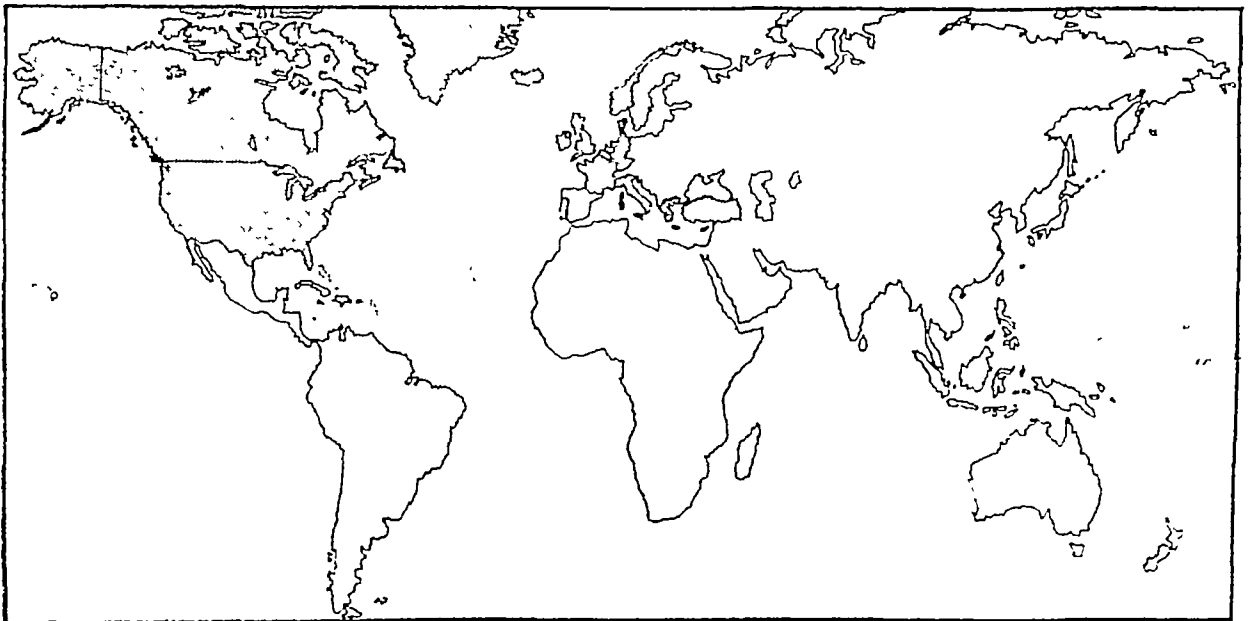

Founded in 1949 as an international defence organisation linking a group of European states with the U.S.A. and Canada. NATO members declare that they will regard an attack on one of them as an attack on all, and will assist any attacked country "by such action as it deems necessary". Greece and Turkey joined in 1952, and the Federal Republic of Germany in 1955.

ORGANISATION

THE NORTH ATLANTIC COUNCIL

President (1965-66). PAUL MARTIN (Canada)

Chairman: MANLIO BROSIO (Italy)

The Council is the highest authority of NATO, and decides all administrative and financial matters. It meets either at Ministerial level, or functions through the Permanent Representatives. The Council gives political guidance to the military authorities and is also concerned with many aspects of wartime civil emergency planning.

MINISTERIAL SESSIONS

Composed of Ministers of the member governments. Sessions are held two or three times a year.

Between Ministerial Sessions, the Council functions through the Permanent Representatives, who meet at least once a week.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General, and Chairman of North Atlantic Council: MANLIO BROSIO (Italy).

Deputy Secretaries-General: JAMES A. ROBERTS (Canada), FRANÇOIS DIDIER GREGH (France).

The Secretary-General is empowered to offer his help in cases of disputes between member countries and to initiate and facilitate procedures for settlement.

Director of Information: RABAN GRAF ADELMANN (Federal Republic of Germany).

THE DIVISIONS

Division of Political Affairs

Director. Assistant Secretary-General. JOACHIM JAE-NICKE (Federal Republic of Germany).

Keeps in contact with delegations and international organisations, and prepares reports for the Secretary-General and the Council.

Division of Economics and Finance

Director: Deputy Secretary-General FRANÇOIS DIDIER GREGH (France).

The Division studies economic matters of concern to the Alliance, especially any with political effect on defence problems, and also the overall financial aspects of defence by country. It analyses and estimates the cost by services of the defence programmes.

Division of Production, Logistics and Infrastructure

Director Assistant Secretary-General: JOHN BEITH (U.K.).

The Division promotes the most efficient use of the Allies' resources in the production of military equipment and studies its standardisation. It exercises technical and financial supervision over the infrastructure programme.

Division of Scientific Affairs

Director: Assistant Secretary-General: Dr. JOHN McLUCAS (U.S.A.)

Advises the Secretary-General on scientific matters of interest to NATO.

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANISATION

MILITARY ORGANISATION

THE MILITARY COMMITTEE

President: Gen. CHARLES AILLERET (France)
Chairman: Lt -Gen. Baron C. P. DE CUMONT (Belgium).

The Military Committee is composed of one of the Chiefs-of-Staff of each member country and is the highest military authority in NATO. It meets at least once a year and also whenever important decisions affecting policy have to be taken.

THE TRIENNIAL REVIEW

As NATO is an international, not a supra-national organisation, its member countries decide themselves the amount to be devoted to their defence effort and the form which the latter will assume. The procedure for the co-ordination of military plans and defence expenditures rests on the detailed and comparative analysis of the economic and financial capabilities of member countries and military requirements. This analysis is carried out every third year in NATO and is known as the Triennial Review. Governments make firm commitments, as regards force goals, and an Interim Review is carried out during each of the two following years

INFRASTRUCTURE

Infrastructure is a term covering fixed installations such as airfields, telecommunications networks, fuel pipelines, etc., which modern armies need to operate efficiently. All those installations which are for the use of international forces are financed in common.

An infrastructure programme was first approved in 1952, and £231 million allotted. Agreement was reached on a formula for future programmes. The latest agreement covers the period up to 1964, and amounts to £1,180 million.

THE INFRASTRUCTURE PROGRAMME

December 1964

Airfields Programme £399 million
Airfields 220

Signals Network	£169 million
Landlines, Submarine cables and Radio links	27,000 miles 44,000 kilometres
Fuel Supply Systems	£149 million
Pipelines	5,300 miles 8,500 kilometres
Storage {	440 million Imp. gallons 2 million cubic metres
Naval Facilities	£100 million

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY

(April 1949)

The Parties to this Treaty reaffirm their faith in the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations and their desire to live in peace with all peoples and all Governments.

They are determined to safeguard the freedom, common heritage and civilisation of their peoples, founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law.

They seek to promote stability and well-being in the North Atlantic area.

They are resolved to unite their efforts for collective defence and for the preservation of peace and security.

They therefore agree to this North Atlantic Treaty:

ARTICLE 1

The Parties undertake, as set forth in the Charter of the United Nations, to settle any international dispute in which they may be involved by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered, and to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force in any manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

ARTICLE 2

The Parties will contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly international relations by strengthening their free institutions, by bringing about a better understanding of the principles upon which these institutions are founded, and by promoting conditions of stability and well-being. They will seek to eliminate conflict in their international economic policies and will encourage economic collaboration between any or all of them.

ARTICLE 3

In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this Treaty, the Parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed attack.

ARTICLE 4

The Parties will consult together whenever, in the opinion of any of them, the territorial integrity, political independence or security of any of the Parties is threatened.

ARTICLE 5

The Parties agree that an armed attack against one or more of them in Europe or North America shall be considered an attack against them all, and consequently they agree that, if such an armed attack occurs, each of them, in exercise of the right of individual or collective self-defence recognised by Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, will assist the Party or Parties so attacked by taking forthwith, individually and in concert with the other Parties, such action as it deems necessary, including the use of armed force, to restore and maintain the security of the North Atlantic area.

Any such armed attack and all measures taken as a result thereof shall immediately be reported to the Security Council. Such measures shall be terminated when the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to restore and maintain international peace and security.

ARTICLE 6

For the purpose of Article 5 an armed attack on one or more of the Parties is deemed to include an armed attack on the territory of any of the Parties in Europe or North

NORTH ATLANTIC TREATY ORGANISATION

America, on the Algerian Departments of France (inapplicable since July 1962), on the occupation forces of any Party in Europe, on the islands under the jurisdiction of any Party in the North Atlantic area north of the Tropic of Cancer or on the vessels or aircraft in this area of any of the Parties (Amended on the accession of Greece and Turkey.)

ARTICLE 7

This Treaty does not affect, and shall not be interpreted as affecting, in any way the rights and obligations under the Charter of the Parties which are members of the United Nations, or the primary responsibility of the Security Council for the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 8

Each Party declares that none of the international engagements now in force between it and any other of the Parties or any third State is in conflict with the provisions of this Treaty, and undertakes not to enter into any international engagement in conflict with this Treaty.

ARTICLE 9

The Parties hereby establish a council, on which each of them shall be represented, to consider matters concerning the implementation of this Treaty. The Council shall be so organised as to be able to meet promptly at any time. The Council shall set up such subsidiary bodies as may be necessary; in particular it shall establish immediately a defence committee which shall recommend measures for the implementation of Articles 3 and 5.

ARTICLE 10

The Parties may, by unanimous agreement, invite any other European State in a position to further the principles of this Treaty and to contribute to the security of the North Atlantic area to accede to this Treaty. Any State so invited may become a party to the Treaty by depositing its instrument of accession with the Government of the United States of America. The Government of the United States of America will inform each of the Parties of the deposit of each such instrument of accession.

ARTICLE 11

This Treaty shall be ratified and its provisions carried out by the Parties in accordance with their respective constitutional processes. The instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Government of the United States of America, which will notify all the other signatories of each deposit. The Treaty shall enter into force between the States which have ratified it as soon as the ratifications of the majority of the signatories, including the ratifications of Belgium, Canada, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States, have been deposited and shall come into effect with respect to other States on the date of the deposit of their ratifications.

ARTICLE 12

After the Treaty has been in force for ten years, or at any time thereafter, the Parties shall, if any of them so requests, consult together for the purpose of reviewing the Treaty, having regard for the factors then affecting peace and security in the North Atlantic area, including the development of universal as well as regional arrangements under the Charter of the United Nations for the maintenance of international peace and security.

ARTICLE 13

After the Treaty has been in force for twenty years, any Party may cease to be a party one year after its notice of denunciation has been given to the Government of the United States of America, which will inform the Governments of the other Parties of the deposit of each notice of denunciation.

ARTICLE 14

This Treaty, of which the English and French texts are equally authentic, shall be deposited in the archives of the Government of the United States of America. Duly certified copies will be transmitted by that Government to the Governments of the other signatories.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Campagne Mon Repos, 1000 Lausanne, Switzerland

The International Olympic Committee was founded in 1894 to ensure the regular celebration of the Olympic Games. The Games are restricted to amateurs

INTERNATIONAL OLYMPIC COMMITTEE

The Committee unites 118 national Olympic committees. The 69 members of the International Olympic Committee are chosen as individuals, not as national representatives

PRESIDENT

AVERY BRUNDAGE (U.S.A.) 1952-

PAST PRESIDENTS

DEMETRIUS VIKELAS (Greece) 1894-96
Baron PIERRE DE COUBERTIN (France) 1896-1925
Count DE BAILLET-LATOUR (Belgium) 1925-41.
J. SIGFRID EDSTRÖM (Sweden) 1946-52.

OBJECTIVES

(as stated by Baron Pierre de Coubertin)

1. To bring to the attention of the world the fact that a national programme of physical training and competitive sport will not only develop stronger and healthier boys and girls but also, and perhaps more important, will make better and happier citizens through the character building that follows participation in properly administrated amateur sport
2. To demonstrate the principles of fair play and good sportsmanship, which could be adopted with great advantage in many other spheres of activity.
3. To stimulate interest in the fine arts through exhibitions and demonstrations, and thus contribute to a broader and more well rounded life.
4. To teach that sport is play for fun and enjoyment and not to make money and, that with devotion to the task at hand, the reward will take care of itself—the philosophy of the amateur as contrasted to that of materialism
5. To create international amity and good will, thus leading to a happier and more peaceful world

THE GAMES

The Winter Games may include:

Ski-ing, Skating, Ice Hockey, Bobsleighing, Luge and Biathlon

FLAG AND FLAME

Flag: White, with five interlaced rings in the centre. The rings are blue, yellow, black, green and red, with the blue ring high on the left nearest the flag pole. These rings represent the five continents joined in the Olympic Movement.

Flame: In ancient Greece, during the Olympic Games, a sacred flame burned at the Altar of Zeus, in whose honour the Games were held. At the opening ceremony of the modern Olympic Games, the Olympic Flame is lighted. It burns in a conspicuous place in the main stadium throughout the Games. The Torch lighting the Flame is carried by runners from a distant point to the Olympic Stadium

EUROPEAN MONETARY AGREEMENT—EMA

EMA came into force at the end of 1958 in replacement of the European Payments Union (EPU). When OECD replaced OEEC in 1961 the Agreement continued in force but the two new members, Canada and the United States, did not join.

OBJECTIVES

To foster full multilateral trade and convertibility through monetary co-operation between governments and between central banks.

To lay down basic rules concerning foreign exchange transactions.

To discourage any relapse into bilateralism in international payments relations.

To help members to overcome temporary balance-of-payments difficulties.

ORGANISATION

BOARD OF MANAGEMENT

Chairman: A. HAY (Switzerland).

Vice-Chairmen: M. THERON (France), J. ROTHAM (United Kingdom).

Members: E. LECRIQUE (Belgium), M. CARDINALI (Italy), A. K. GETZ WOLD (Norway), G. SCHLEIMINGER (Germany), F. GIMENEZ TORRES (Spain).

The Board of Management, which is responsible for the supervision of the execution of the EMA, consists of financial experts nominated by member countries and appointed by the OECD Council. It exercises powers delegated to it by the Council, to which it makes periodic reports and members make recommendations on all payments matters in their capacity as financial experts, rather than as government delegates. Its decisions are taken by a majority, including not less than four of its members.

EUROPEAN FUND

The European Fund, provided for by EMA, has a capital of £607 million. It provides aid to members to help them withstand temporary difficulties in their overall balance of payments. Credits are granted after agreement has been reached on the measures required to restore internal and external equilibrium. The country concerned undertakes to carry out these measures and to reinforce them, as necessary, in consultation with OECD.

MULTILATERAL SYSTEM OF SETTLEMENTS

The principal role of the Multilateral System of Settlements is to give each member's central bank the assurance of obtaining settlement in dollars, at an exchange rate known in advance, of any balance in another member's currency acquired by it. This exchange guarantees results from the undertaking by each member to keep the fluctuations of its currency within moderate and stable margins and, for this purpose, to declare buying and selling rates designed as limits to the market quotations for its currency:

and each country undertakes, if it should change its rates, to settle any outstanding balance in its currency at the previous lower limit. Thus the necessary framework and guarantees are created for the effective development of the foreign exchange markets in a climate of confidence.

CONVENTION OF OECD

ARTICLE 1

The aims of the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development shall be to promote policies designed:

To achieve the highest sustainable economic growth and employment and a rising standard of living in member countries, while maintaining financial stability, and thus to contribute to the development of the world economy.

To contribute to sound economic expansion in member as well as non-member countries in the process of economic development.

To contribute to the expansion of world trade on a multilateral, non-discriminatory basis in accordance with international obligations.

ARTICLE 2

In the pursuit of these aims, the members agree that they will:

Promote the efficient use of their economic resources.

Promote the development of their scientific and technological resources, encourage research and promote vocational training.

Pursue policies to achieve economic growth and financial stability.

Pursue their efforts to reduce or abolish obstacles to the exchange of goods and services and current payments and maintain and extend the liberalisation of capital movements.

Contribute to the economic development of member and non-member countries.

ARTICLE 3

Members agree that they will:

Furnish each other with information.

Consult together, carry out studies and participate in agreed projects.

Co-operate closely and where appropriate take co-ordinated action.

ARTICLE 4

The Contracting Parties to this Convention shall be members of the Organisation.

ARTICLE 5

The Organisation may:

Take decisions binding on all the members.

Make recommendations.

Enter into agreements with members, non-members and international organisations.

ARTICLE 6

Decisions shall be taken and recommendations shall be made by mutual agreement.

Each member shall have one vote. If a member abstains from voting such abstention shall not invalidate the decision, which shall be applicable to the other members but not to the abstaining member.

No decision shall be binding on any member until it has complied with the requirements of its own constitutional procedures. The other members may agree that such a decision shall apply provisionally to them.

ARTICLE 7

A Council composed of all the members shall be the body from which all acts of the Organisation derive.

ARTICLE 8

The Council shall designate each year a Chairman, who shall preside at its ministerial sessions, and two Vice-Chairmen.

ARTICLE 9

The Council may establish an Executive Committee and such subsidiary bodies as may be required.

ARTICLE 10

A Secretary-General responsible to the Council shall be appointed by the Council for a term of five years. He shall be assisted by one or more Deputy Secretaries-General or Assistant Secretaries-General appointed by the Council.

The Secretary-General shall serve as Chairman of the Council meeting at sessions of Permanent Representatives.

ARTICLE 11

The Secretary-General shall appoint such staff as the Organisation may require. Staff regulations shall be subject to approval by the Council.

The Secretary-General and staff shall neither seek nor receive instructions from any of the members or from any government or authority external to the Organisation.

ARTICLE 12

The Organisation may:

Address communications to non-member states or organisations.

Establish relations with non-member states or organisations.

Invite non-member governments or organisations to participate in activities of the Organisation.

OECD

ARTICLE 13

Representation in the Organisation of the European Communities shall be as defined in Supplementary Protocol No. 1 to this Convention.

ARTICLE 14

This Convention shall be ratified or accepted by the Signatories in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements.

Instruments of ratification or acceptance shall be deposited with the Government of the French Republic.

Manner of coming into force of the Convention:

ARTICLE 15

When this Convention comes into force the reconstitution of the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation shall take effect.

ARTICLE 16

The Council may decide to invite any government to accede to this Convention.

ARTICLE 17

Any Contracting Party may terminate the application of this Convention to itself by giving twelve months' notice to that effect.

ARTICLE 18

The headquarters of the Organisation shall be in Paris, unless the Council agrees otherwise.

ARTICLE 19

The legal capacity of the Organisation shall be as provided in Supplementary Protocol No. 2 to this Convention

ARTICLE 20

Each year the Secretary-General shall present to the Council for approval an annual budget.

General expenses of the Organisation, as agreed by the Council, shall be apportioned in accordance with a scale to be decided upon by the Council.

ARTICLE 21

Upon the receipt of any instrument of ratification, acceptance or accession, or of any notice of termination, the depositary government shall give notice thereof to all the Contracting Parties and to the Secretary-General of the Organisation.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROTOCOL No. 1

The Commissions of the European Economic Community and of the European Atomic Energy Commission as well as the High Authority of the European Coal and Steel Community shall take part in the work of the Organisation.

SUPPLEMENTARY PROTOCOL No. 2

The Organisation shall have legal capacity and the Organisation, its officials, and representatives to it of the members shall be entitled to specified privileges, exemptions, and immunities.

PROTOCOL ON THE REVISION OF THE CONVENTION FOR EUROPEAN ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION, 1948

ARTICLE 1

The Convention shall be revised and as a consequence thereof it shall be replaced by the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation.

ARTICLE 2

This Protocol shall come into force when the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development comes into force.

The Convention shall cease to have effect as regards any Signatory of this Protocol when the Convention on the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development comes into force.

EUROPEAN NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY—ENEA

39 Boulevard Suchet, Paris 16e, France

In 1957 the Organisation for European Economic Co-operation (OEEC) adopted the Statute of the European Nuclear Energy Agency, which came into effect in February 1958. The functions of the Agency are confined to the peaceful uses of nuclear energy. In September 1961, the Agency was taken over by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD).

ORGANISATION

Director-General: EINAR SAELAND.

Deputy Director-General: (vacant).

Scientific Adviser: Prof. LEW KOWARSKI.

ENEA Steering Committee: Chair. Prof. URS W. HOCHSTRASSER (Switzerland); Vice-Chairs W. CARTELLIERI (German Federal Republic); H. H. KOCH (Denmark)

Top-Level Group on Co-operation in Research: Chair. Prof. FRANCIS PERRIN (France).

In 1957 the OEEC Council adopted the Statute setting up ENEA. The Agency aims to foster the development of the production and uses of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes. Its functions include the promotion of joint undertakings and common services; co-ordination of nuclear research and training; uniform legislation on health and safety, liability and insurance; studies of national nuclear programmes; and assessments of Europe's future energy requirements and nuclear markets. ENEA also operates an environmental radioactivity surveillance and alarm system, and a security control system to prevent the use of joint undertakings for military purposes.

ACTIVITIES, 1965

EUROCHEMIC (European Company for Chemical Processing of Irradiated Fuels). EUROCHEMIC is a $36 million international shareholding company set up in 1957 to treat used uranium fuel from reactors in participating countries. Present shareholders are governments, public authorities and industrial organisations in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, the German Federal Republic, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey. Work on the company's plant at Mol, Belgium, began in 1960 by the end of 1965 the plant was almost complete and "cold" tests of many units had begun. Several tons of irradiated fuels are awaiting treatment, and operations are expected to begin in the first half of 1966.

HALDEN Project. The Experimental 20 MWt. Boiling Heavy Water Reactor at Halden, Norway, first became an ENEA joint undertaking under an Agreement signed in 1958 between the Norwegian Institutt for Atomenergi (owner of the reactor), Austria, the Danish Atomic Energy Commission, EURATOM, AB Atomenergi of Sweden, Switzerland, and the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority. The original three-year duration of this Project was twice extended by eighteen months. Under a separate Agreement with the Norwegian Institutt, the Finnish Atomic Energy Commission also took part in the Project.

In 1964 a new Agreement was reached between a number of the original participants (the Norwegian Institutt, the Danish and Finnish Commissions, Reactor Centrum Nederland, AB Atomenergi, Switzerland and the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority) for a further three-year joint programme to include tests of prototype fuel elements and certain other specialised research and development work. This new programme, which will run until the end of 1966, has subsequently been joined by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, the Italian National Nuclear Energy Committee, and a German industrial group. The budget for the present programme is some $4 million.

DRAGON Project. The Dragon (U.K.) Experimental High-Temperature Reactor project was set up under a 1959 Agreement signed by the U.K. Atomic Energy Authority, Austria, the Danish A.E.C., EURATOM, the Norwegian Institutt for Atomenergi, AB Atomenergi of Sweden and Switzerland. Supporting research is being done in many European countries. In November 1962, the original five-year period of the Project was extended to eight years, and the original budget of £13.6 million was increased to £25 million. Construction of the Dragon Reactor was completed early in 1964 and first criticality was achieved in August. The Dragon Reactor is now being brought gradually to its full design power of 20 MWt, which should be reached towards the end of 1965.

Common Services. In June 1964, agreements were concluded with EURATOM and the French Commissariat à l'Energie Atomique for the establishment of an ENEA Computer Programme Library at the EURATOM Joint Research Establishment at Ispra (Italy), and an ENEA Neutron Data Compilation Centre at the Saclay Centre d'Etudes Nucléaires (France). Both these Common Services are now in operation and both are working in close co-operation with equivalent services in the U.S.A.

Food Irradiation. An Agreement for a six-year international research programme on food preservation by irradiation was concluded in September 1964 between ENEA, IAEA and the Austria Studiengesellschaft für Atomenergie. The programme, which is being carried out at the Seibersdorf Nuclear Research Centre near Vienna, is mainly devoted to irradiation pasteurisation of fruits and fruit juices in order to obtain wider knowledge of the mechanisms of food irradiation. Operations began in January 1965.

Special Studies. During 1965 a group of specialists on small radioisotope power sources made a study of possible uses for such sources in Europe, and began an investigation of European industrial potential for their production.

A second study, begun at the end of 1964, concerns the long-term rôle of nuclear energy in Western Europe. This is an attempt to evaluate the probable nuclear contribution to Europe's overall long-term energy requirements, examining the characteristics of the different power reactor systems which are envisaged and estimating corresponding nuclear fuel requirements.

Health and Safety. ENEA's Health and Safety Committee, together with EURATOM and IAEA, is revising the international protection norms against ionising radiations, originally adopted by the OEEC Council in 1959. Draft recommendations have been prepared by the Committee, in collaboration with IAEA, to govern the use of luminous paint in the watch-making industry, and similar recommendations for protection against the various energetic particles produced in high energy accelerators are being studied. Problems of radioactive waste disposal in the sea are also being examined.

In July 1961 the OEEC Council set up a European system of supervision and emergency warning for environmental radioactivity. Any dangerous increase in environmental radioactivity recorded in a member country is notified to ENEA and member countries. ENEA issues periodical studies on the control of airborne radioactivity, based on the results of measurements in particular countries.

Third Party Liability. The 1960 OECD (Paris) Convention on Third Party Liability in the Field of Nuclear Energy, signed by most of ENEA Member countries, is the basis of almost all European legislation in this field. The subsequent Supplementary Convention to the Paris Convention, signed in Brussels in January 1963, extends the maximum limit of compensation but maintains the principles of the Paris Convention. A World Convention on Civil Liability for Nuclear Damage, elaborated under the aegis of IAEA and adopted in May 1963, also depends on the same basic principles of the Paris Convention although it contains a number of minor differences. Additional Protocols to both Paris and Brussels Conventions, signed in January 1964, are designed to resolve three differences.

No international convention on nuclear third party liability has yet entered into force.

OECD—(EUROPEAN NUCLEAR ENERGY AGENCY)

Security Control. The ENLA Convention on Security Control, which came into force in 1960, is based on a system of inspection and control of the movement and use of fissile materials to ensure that these are not diverted to any military purpose. The ENEA Control Bureau, established under the Convention, has adopted detailed regulations for research and experimental reactors which apply to the HALDEN and DRAGON Projects, and the first inspections have taken place. In the case of EUROCHEMIC, provisional measures have been adopted pending the elaboration of detailed security regulations Budget. The ENEA budget forms part of the OECD budget, and for 1965 was some $620,000 for the Central Secretariat, with a further $300,000 for the Common Services at Saclay and Ispra which are financed under the Secretariat budget. The Agency also makes use of certain general services included in the OECD budget. The EUROCHEMIC, HALDEN and DRAGON Projects are financed separately, and represent a total investment of well over $100 million.

ORGANISATION

THE CONFERENCE

Supreme authority of the Organisation. Formulates general policy and decides upon reports and recommendations submitted by Board of Governors. Meets at least twice a year, the first meeting being in Vienna, and the second in the capital of a member country. Appoints a Governor for each country and a Chairman of the Board of Governors.

CONSULTATIVE MEETING OF CHIEF REPRESENTATIVES

A new adjunct to conferences which held three meetings during 1963, the first in Geneva in April. It formulates recommendations to the Conference concerning current issues.

THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS

Directs management of the Organisation; implements decisions of Conference. Meets every three months; draws up an annual Budget. Chairman of Board of Governors is Secretary-General of the Organisation.

THE ECONOMIC COMMISSION

A specialised body operating within the framework of the Secretariat, which examines petroleum prices and submits recommendations to the Member Countries through the Secretary-General.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: ASHRAF LUTFI (Kuwait).

Administration Department: Deals with personnel matters, budget and accounting, filing and archives, conference services, general correspondence and clerical services.

Economics Department: Consists of Financial, Supply and Demand, and General Economic Sections; is responsible for all economic studies and reports.

Enforcement Department: Comprises a Legal Section; helps implement recommendations and decisions of Conference calling for action by member countries.

Public Relations Department: Consists of Publications Section, and Liaison Section; responsible for all public and press relations and all publications as well as for collection and dissemination of information.

Technical Department: Consists of Geological Section, Processing Section, Production Section; reviews world petroleum situation, and submits reports and recommendations to the Conference through the Board of Governors.

SUMMARY OF CHARTER

Article I. Establishment of the Organization of African Unity. The Organization to include continental African states, Madagascar, and other islands surrounding Africa.

Article II. Aims and purposes (see above). Fields of co-operation.

Article III. Member states adhere to the principles of sovereign equality, non-interference in internal affairs of member states, respect for territorial integrity, peaceful settlement of disputes, condemnation of political subversion, dedication to the emancipation of dependent African territories, and international non-alignment.

Article IV. Each independent sovereign African state shall be entitled to become a member of the Organization.

Article V. All member states shall have equal rights and duties.

Article VI. All member states shall observe scrupulously the principles laid down in Article III.

Article VII. Establishment of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government, the Council of Ministers, the General Secretariat, and the Commission of Mediation, Conciliation and Arbitration.

Articles VIII-XI. The Assembly of Heads of State and Government co-ordinates policies and reviews the structure of the Organization.

Articles XII-XV. The Council of Ministers shall prepare conferences of the Assembly, and co-ordinate inter-African co-operation. All resolutions shall be by simple majority.

Articles XVI-XVIII. The General Secretariat. The Administrative Secretary-General and his staff shall not seek or receive instructions from any government or other authority external to the Organisation. They are international officials responsible only to the Organization.

Article XIX. Commission of Mediation, Conciliation and Arbitration. A separate protocol concerning the composition and nature of this Commission shall be regarded as an integral part of the Charter.

Articles XX-XXII. Specialised Commissions shall be established, composed of Ministers or other officials designated by Member Governments. Their regulations shall be laid down by the Council of Ministers.

Article XXIII. The Budget shall be prepared by the Secretary-General and approved by the Council of Ministers. Contributions shall be in accordance with the scale of assessment of the United Nations. No Member shall pay more than twenty per cent of the total yearly amount.

Article XXIV. Texts of the Charter in African Languages, English and French shall be equally authentic. Instruments of ratification shall be deposited with the Government of Ethiopia.

Article XXV. The Charter shall come into force on receipt by the Government of Ethiopia of the instruments of ratification of two thirds of the signatory states.

Article XXVI. The Charter shall be registered with the Secretariat of the United Nations.

Article XXVII. Questions of interpretation shall be settled by a two-thirds majority vote in the Assembly of Heads of State and Government.

Article XXVIII. Admission of new independent African states to the Organization shall be decided by a simple majority of the Member States.

Articles XXIX-XXXIII. The working languages of the Organization shall be African languages, English and French. The Secretary-General may accept gifts and bequests to the Organization, subject to the approval of the Council of Ministers. The Council of Ministers shall establish privileges and immunities to be accorded to the personnel of the Secretariat in the territories of Member States, A State wishing to withdraw from the Organization must give a years' written notice to the Secretariat. The Charter may only be amended after consideration by all Member States and by a two-thirds majority vote of the Assembly of Heads of State and Government. Such amendments will come into force one year after submission.

FUNCTIONS

1. Economic and Social Matters. Regional projects have been established relating to economic development and its social aspects, international trade, basic products, transportation and travel, social welfare, co-operatives, social insurance, immigration and colonisation, labour, housing and urban development, and technical co-operation. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council, one of the three organs of OAS Council, has established close working relationships at all levels. In September 1960 all members, except Cuba, signed the Charter of Punta del Este, establishing the Alliance for Progress (For details see separate section)

2. Juridical Matters. The Inter-American Council of Jurists, one of the three organs of the OAS Council, is responsible for drawing up inter-American treaties and conventions, promoting the codification of international law, and for establishing uniformity in legislation.

3. Cultural Matters. The Council of OAS and the Inter-American Cultural Council carry out a broad cultural programme. Activities cover education, philosophy and letters, music, art, science, and libraries. Co-operation is maintained with UNESCO projects.

4. Agriculture. An OAS special agency, the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences (IAIAS), is helping to improve plant strains, crop yields, and breeds of cattle, and to conserve the natural resources of forest, water, soil and wild life. It also conducts research and initiates training schemes for post-graduates.

5. Public Health. The OAS Pan American Health Organisation also acts as the Regional Organisation of the UN World Health Organisation. It plans joint action against communicable diseases, strengthens the health services, and expands the education and training facilities for health workers.

6. Statistics. The four main objectives of the Inter-American Statistical Institute (IASI) are: to stimulate better methods in the collection, tabulation, analysis and publication of statistics; to provide a medium for professional collaboration among statisticians; to co-operate with national and international organisations in advancing the science and administration of statistics. Plans have been devised for co-ordinating national censuses and for conducting agricultural censuses. Canada is a member of the Institute.

7. Geography and History. The Pan American Institute of Geography and History (PAIGH) encourages and co-ordinates these studies. It works through commissions on cartography, geography and history, and committees on oceanography, vulcanology, and other subjects. It also administers the Pan American Training Centre for evaluation of Natural Resources in Rio de Janeiro.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

8. Status of Women. The Inter-American Commission of Women (IACW), has campaigned for thirty years to raise the political status of women.

9. Child Welfare. Founded in Montevideo in 1927, the Inter-American Child Institute (IACI) serves as a centre of social action, documentation, study, advice, and information on childhood and the family.

10. Indian Affairs. The Inter-American Indian Institute (IAII) serves as the permanent committee of the Inter-American Indian Conferences. Projects of research and field work on the conditions of Indian women have been completed in Mexico and in Central and South America. Legislation is being prepared.

11. Defence. The Inter-American Defense Board, Washington, D.C., works towards the co-ordination of common defence measures and the establishment of the broadest possible basis for inter-American military co-operation. The Inter-American Defense College, Washington, D.C., a teaching institution for high-ranking officers of the Latin American armed forces, was established in 1962.

12. Nuclear Energy. The Inter-American Nuclear Energy Commission, set up in 1959, facilitates co-operation among the member States in matters relating to the peaceful applications of nuclear energy. In 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed with the International Atomic Energy Agency.

13. Human Rights. The Inter-American Commission on Human Rights studies problems in this field.

14. Peace. The Inter-American Peace Committee was set up in 1940 to keep a constant watch on disputes between members and to find means of resolving them.

15. Alliance for Progress. For details see separate chapter.

16. Special Consultative Committee on Security. Established in March 1962 to help members guard against communism

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

FINANCIAL STRUCTURE

ORDINARY CAPITAL RESOURCES

Loans are made to governments, and to public and private bodies for specific economic projects. They are repayable in the currencies lent and their terms range from 10 to 20 years.

Authorized Capital $2,150 million, of which $475 million is paid-in.

FUND FOR SPECIAL OPERATIONS

The Fund enables the Bank to make loans for economic and social projects where circumstances call for special treatment, such as lower interest rates and longer repayment terms than those applied to loans from the ordinary resources, and possibility of repayments in whole or in part in local currency.

Authorized Capital $1,123,158,000.

SOCIAL PROGRESS TRUST FUND

The Social Progress Trust was set up in 1961 by the United States to promote social development in Latin America under the Alliance for Progress programme. It has a total capital of $525,000,000 and is administered by IDB under an agreement with the United States. Resources are used to grant loans in four fields: housing for low income groups; water supply and sanitation installations; land settlement and rural development; and higher education and training related to economic development. Loans are repayable in local currency or in dollars.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

The Bank furnishes technical assistance to member governments or private firms for the preparation, financing and execution of development projects and for the training of personnel. It also provides advisory services, assigns officials and engages experts for specific assignments and co-operates with other national or international institutions

As of June 30th, 1965, $36.1 million has been made available for technical assistance. Of this amount $5.8 million was in grants and $19.4 million in loans from the Bank's funds. The remaining $10.9 million was provided from the Social Progress Trust Fund—$6.2 million in the form of grants and $4.7 million in the form of loans.

ORGANISATION

COMMISSION

Chairman (1964–66): Dr. EDUARDO CRUZ-COKE L. (Chile).

Vice-Chairman (1964–66): Ing. JORGE SPITALNIK (Uruguay).

The Commission is made up of one delegate from each of the member states, and the Secretary-General of OAS

(who may speak but not vote). Regular meetings are held every two years.

The Chairman and Vice-Chairman are elected by and from the members and hold office until the next regular meeting.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

COMMITTEES

The Commission may set up such working committees as it considers necessary. The committees elect their own Chairman and Rapporteur from among their members.

SECRETARIAT

Executive-Secretary: Dr. JESSE D. PERKINSON.

The Secretary-General of OAS appoints all IANEC Secretariat staff, who form a part of Pan American Union.

ACTIVITIES

IANEC was set up to help the American Republics to develop and co-ordinate research and training in nuclear energy. It also distributes information and recommends public health measures.

Since 1959 the Commission has undertaken a survey of facilities available in Latin American universities and has established an Advisory Committee to make recommendations on scientific and engineering training. In 1963 studies were undertaken on nuclear power in Latin America and on Civil Liability in the field of nuclear energy.

In December 1960 an agreement for co-operation was signed between IANEC and the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna and in 1963 a memorandum was exchanged between the secretariats of IANEC and EURATOM establishing co-operation.

Programmes are financed through the OAS Budget 1962 expenditure: $500,000.

The Chairman is elected by the delegates

Next meeting: 1966.

PERMANENT EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Attached to the Inter-American Economic and Social Council. Composed of specialists representing nine of the member countries, seven elected by Congress. Functions are to implement the resolutions of Congress. It meets at least once a year.

TECHNICAL COMMITTEES OF EXPERTS

Set up by Congress, as necessary. There are five permanent Committees: Development of Government Highway Agencies, Planning, Finance, Terminology, and Traffic and Safety.

Darien Subcommittee: Created in 1954 to promote interest in the construction of a road to connect the existing highway systems of North and South America through the Darien region of Panama and adjacent area of Columbia. This Committee administers the work of the survey teams now working on the project.

Subcommittee on the Pan American Transversal Highway in South America: Created in 1963 to promote the construction of a highway to connect Paranagua, Brazil, with Asunción, La Paz and Lima.

Subcommittee on the Marginal Jungle Highway: Created in 1965 to encourage the construction of a continuous highway along the lower eastern edge of the Andes in Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, Bolivia and Paraguay. This will extend and interconnect penetration roads leading from the Andean highlands to the jungle.

PERMANENT SECRETARIAT

The services are provided by the Pan American Union.
Permanent Secretary: FRANCISCO J. HERNÁNDEZ.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

THE HIGHWAY

The total mileage of the Pan American Highway System, including alternative routes, is 28,269 miles of which 17,826 are paved.

Mexico. The Highway has four sections converging on Mexico City. The eastern road enters at Laredo, Texas, with branches to Brownsville and McAllen, Texas; the Central Highway runs from El Paso, Texas; the Pacific Highway is along the west coast from Nogales, Arizona; and the Constitution Highway begins at Piedras Negras.

Guatemala. The Highway through Guatemala is not completed up to standard width throughout. An additional road from the Talisman Bridge to the border with El Salvador has been added.

El Salvador. Paved throughout. An alternative route from La Hachadura on the Guatemalan border to the junction with the Pan American Highway has been added.

Honduras. Paved. A 57-mile branch road leads to Tegucigalpa, the capital.

Nicaragua. Paved throughout. The Highway joins the Atlantic Highway at San Benito.

Costa Rica. On the southern section the bridges were completed in 1963.

Panama. Thirty-eight miles east of Panama City the road ends. Construction of the 574-mile Darien Gap between Chepo, Panama, and the Highway in Colombia, now under study, will complete the Highway.

Venezuela. The Highway runs from La Guaira, via Caracas to the Colombian frontier at Cúcuta.

Colombia. Continuation of Venezuelan road south east to Ipiales on the Ecuadorian frontier. An all-weather road links Barranquilla on the north coast to the Highway at Palmira and a branch runs to Buenaventura.

Ecuador. The Ecuadorean section of the Highway is an all-weather road. A bridge over the Macará river remains to be completed. An alternative route enters Peru at Aguas Verdes.

Peru. Highway is planned to enter at La Tina. In the south the Highway forks, the Franklin D. Roosevelt Highway continuing southward into Chile and the main route going east and south into Bolivia.

Chile. Highway runs due south to Santiago. At Los Andes a branch turns east to Argentina. The Uspallata Pass section is closed for six months every year owing to heavy winter snows, when traffic uses the International Tunnel.

Bolivia. Two routes lead from the Peruvian frontier to La Paz, whence the Highway continues southward to the Argentinian frontier at Villazón.

Argentina. Four routes converge on Buenos Aires. Eastward from Los Andes in Chile; southeast from Bolivia (one section not finished); south along the west bank of the Paraguay and Paraná rivers from Asunción in Paraguay; and south west from Uruguayana in Brazil and joining the Asunción road at Santa Fé.

Paraguay. The Highway runs from the Argentinian border to Asunción and eastward to Brazil at Foz do Iguaçu. A branch turns south to Encarnación on the Argentinian border.

Uruguay. From Montevideo the route in use runs north to enter Brazil at Aceguá, with alternative branches entering at Rio Branco and Chuy.

Brazil. The official road from Uruguay travels from Aceguá to Brasília. Alternative routes, from Jaquarã, Chui and Uruguiana, converge on Brasília. There is a connection with Paraguay at Foz do Iguaçu.

ACTIVITIES

Development Plans: By September 1965, national development plans had been presented for evaluation by the governments, of Bolivia, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Mexico, Panama, Peru, Venezuela, Paraguay, Uruguay and the five Central American Republics.

Co-operatives: Special Commission for the Development of Co-operatives planned, September 1962.

Central America: Special Advisory Mission set up in October 1962 to speed economic development through the Central American Common Market and to give technical assistance to the Central American Bank for Economic Integration, Director HENRY A. DUFLON.

Declaration of Santiago: March 1962. To raise primary school enrolment in the 19 States of Latin America to 100 per cent by 1970, and secondary school enrolment to 40 per cent; higher education to 5 per cent.

Pan American Sanitary Bureau: Established an Office of Research Co-ordination.

FINANCE

Financial assistance from external sources totalling at least $20,000,000,000 will be required during the first ten years.

During the first four years of operation of the Alliance, a total of almost $34.5 billion had been committed for Latin American development. Of this sum, the U.S.A. had provided about $4.5 billion, and the Latin American countries themselves about $30 billion.

Other financial aid is obtained through the Inter-American Development Bank, the International Monetary Fund and other international credit agencies and by means of national loans and grants and loans and credits from foreign governments and agencies.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

CHARTER OF PUNTA DEL ESTE

Signed at Punta del Este, Uruguay, on August 17th, 1961, to co-ordinate Inter-American development and set up the Alliance for Progress

SUMMARY

OBJECTIVES

1. To achieve a substantial and sustained growth of per capita incomes at a rate designed to attain levels of income capable of assuring self-sustaining development. In order to reach these objectives within a reasonable time, the rate of economic growth in any country of Latin America should not be less than 2.5 per cent per capita per year.
2. To make the benefits of economic progress available to all through a more equitable distribution of national income.
3. To achieve balanced diversification in national economic structures, while attaining stability in the prices of exports or in income derived from exports.
4. To accelerate the process of rational industrialisation so as to increase the productivity of the economy as a whole. Special attention should be given to the establishment and development of capital-goods industries.
5. To raise greatly the level of agricultural productivity and output and to improve storage, transport and marketing services.
6. To encourage programmes of comprehensive agrarian reform.
7. To eliminate adult illiteracy and by 1970 to assure access to six years primary education for each school-age child; to modernise and expand vocational, secondary and higher education; to strengthen basic research and to provide the competent personnel.
8. To increase life expectancy at birth by a minimum of five years by improving individual and public health. To attain this goal to provide potable water and drainage to 70 per cent of the urban and 50 per cent of the rural population; to reduce the mortality rate of children under five by half; to control serious transmissible diseases; to eradicate illnesses for which effective cures are known; to improve nutrition; to train medical and health personnel; to improve basic health services; to intensify scientific research.
9. To increase the construction of low-cost housing and to provide necessary public services.
10. To maintain stable price levels.
11. To strengthen existing agreements with a view to the ultimate fulfilment of a Latin American Common Market.
12. To develop co-operative programmes designed to prevent the harmful effects of excessive fluctuations in foreign exchange earnings and to adopt measures to facilitate exports to international markets.

ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL DEVELOPMENT

Basic Requirements for Economic and Social Development

1. That comprehensive and well-conceived national programmes of economic and social development be carried out.
2. That national programmes of economic and social development be based on the principles of self-help.

3. That women should be placed on an equal footing with men.

4. That Latin American countries should obtain sufficient external financial assistance and that capital from all external sources of at least 20,000,000,000 dollars be made available to the Latin American countries during the coming ten years.

5. That institutions in both the public and private sectors be strengthened and improved, and that the necessary social reforms be effected to permit a fair distribution of the fruits of economic and social progress.

National Development Programmes

1. Participating Latin American countries agree to introduce or strengthen systems for the preparation, execution and periodic revision of national programmes for economic and social development. The countries should formulate long-term development programmes.

Immediate and Short-Term Action Measures

1. Recognises that a number of Latin American countries may require emergency financial assistance; the United States will provide funds.

2. Participating Latin American countries should immediately increase their efforts to accelerate development.

3. The United States will assist in the realisation of these short-term measures by the provision of more than 1,000,000,000 dollars in the year ending March 1962.

External Assistance in Support of National Development Programmes

1. The economic and social development of Latin America will require a large amount of financial assistance from capital-exporting countries. The Act of Bogotá and the Charter provide the framework within which this assistance can be provided.

2. The United States will assist those countries whose development programmes establish self-help measures, adequate to realise the goals envisaged. The participating countries will request the support of other capital-exporting countries and appropriate institutions.

3. The United States will help in the financing of technical assistance projects.

4. The participating Latin American countries recognise that each has a capacity to assist fellow republics by providing external technical and financial assistance.

Organisation and Procedures

1. In order to provide technical assistance for the formulation of development programmes the OAS, ECLA Inter-American Development Bank will strengthen their agreements for co-ordination in this field.

2. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council will appoint a panel of nine experts, attached to the Council but enjoying complete autonomy in the performance of their duties.

3. Each government may present its programme for economic and social development for consideration by an ad hoc Committee.

ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES

4. The Committee will study the development programme, exchange opinions with the Interested Government and report its conclusions to the Inter-American Development Bank and other governments and institutions prepared to extend assistance.

5. In considering a programme the ad hoc Committee will examine the consistency of the programme with the principles of the Act of Bogotá and this Charter.

6. The General Secretariat of OAS will provide the personnel needed by the experts.

7. A government whose programme has been recommended by the ad hoc Committee may submit the programme to the Inter-American Development Bank to undertake the negotiations for obtaining finance. However, all governments will have full freedom to resort to any other channels. The Committee shall not interfere with the right of governments to formulate their own goals. The recommendation of the Committee will be of great importance in determining the distribution of public funds under the Alliance. The participating governments will use their good offices that these recommendations be accepted.

8. The Inter-American Economic and Social Council will review annually the progress achieved and will submit to the Council of the OAS such recommendations as it deems pertinent.

ECONOMIC INTEGRATION OF LATIN AMERICA

The American Republics recognise that.

1. The Montevideo Treaty and the Central American Treaty on Economic Integration are appropriate instruments for the attainment of these objectives.

2. The integration process can be intensified and accelerated through the use of the agreements for complementary production within economic sections provided for by the Montevideo Treaty.

3. To insure balanced and complementary economic expansion integration should take into account the condition of less-developed countries.

4. To facilitate economic integration it is advisable to establish effective relationships between LAFTA and the Central American Economic Integration Treaty countries and other countries.

5. The Latin American countries should co-ordinate their actions to meet unfavourable treatment accorded to their trade in world markets.

6. In application of resources under the Alliance, special attention should be given to investment for multi-national projects and expansion of trade in industrial products.

7. To facilitate the participation of countries at a relatively lower stage of economic development in multi-national programmes special attention should be given to these countries.

8. Economic integration implies a need for additional investment and funds provided under the Alliance should cover these needs.

9. Latin American countries having their own institutions for financing economic integration should channel financing through them. The co-operation of the Inter-American Development Bank should be sought for inter-regional contributions.

10. To approach the International Monetary Fund and other sources for solving temporary balance-of-payments problems

11. The promotion and co-ordination of transportation and communications systems, and encourage multi-national enterprises.

12. To achieve co-ordination of national plans.

13. To promote the development of national Latin American enterprise.

14. The active participation of the private sector.

15. Countries still under Colonial rule should be invited to participate on achieving independence.

BASIC EXPORT COMMODITIES

National Measures

National measures affecting primary products should be directed and applied to: Avoid undue obstacles to expansion of trade; avoid market instability; improve efficiency of international plans and mechanisms for stabilisation; increase markets.

Therefore: Importing members should reduce restrictions and discriminatory practices affecting consumption and importation of primary products. Support stabilisation programmes for primary products.

Industrialised countries should give special attention to hastening economic development in less-developed countries.

Producing countries should formulate plans for production and export and try to avoid increasing uneconomic production of goods.

Adopt measures to direct technological studies towards finding new uses and by-products of primary commodities.

Try to reduce export subsidies and other measures which cause instability.

International Co-operation Measures

1. Members should make co-ordinated efforts designed to.

Eliminate undue protection of primary products
Eliminate taxes and reduce excessive domestic prices
Seek to end preferential agreements
Adopt consultation mechanisms.

2. Industrialised countries should give maximum co-operation to less-developed countries.

3. Members should suggest to international organisations when considering loans, that they should take account the effect on the production of surplus products.

4. Support the national commodity study groups and the Commission on International Commodity Trade.

5. The Secretary-General of OAS shall convene a group of experts appointed by their respective governments to meet and report not later than March 31st, 1962, on measures to provide means of offsetting the effects of fluctuations in volume and prices of exports of basic products.

6. Support efforts to improve and strengthen international commodity agreements.

7. Should request other countries to co-operate in stabilisation programmes.

8. Recognise that the disposal of accumulated reserves can achieve the goals.

RESOLUTIONS

The member countries also passed resolutions recommending means whereby the goals set forth in the Charter might be achieved. These resolutions covered two Ten-Year Programmes for Education and Health, Tax Reform, Planning and the setting up of bodies to deal with specific problems.

ORGANIZATION OF CENTRAL AMERICAN STATES —ODECA

(ORGANIZACIÓN DE ESTADOS CENTRO AMERICANOS—ODECA)

Oficina Centroamericana, San Salvador, El Salvador

Founded in 1951 by the Charter of San Salvador, ODECA seeks to re-establish the unity of Central America.
A new Charter became effective in 1965.

MEMBERS

Costa Rica

El Salvador

Guatemala

Honduras

Nicaragua

AIMS

1. To strengthen the bonds which unite the states of Central America.
2. To establish mutual consultation in order to guarantee and maintain fraternal relations.
3. To forestall and prevent misunderstandings and to ensure the peaceful settlement of disputes.
4. To offer mutual assistance and to seek common solutions to common problems.
5. To promote economic, social and cultural development through joint action.

ORGANISATION

THE MEETING OF HEADS OF GOVERNMENT

The Heads of Government of the five member states in conference form the supreme organ of the Organization of Central American States

THE CONFERENCE OF FOREIGN MINISTERS

The Conference of Foreign Ministers is the principal organ of the Organization. Meetings, at which each member state has one vote, normally take place every year; extraordinary meetings may be held at the request of not less than three members. Its function is to initiate proposals, to consider recommendations and proposals made by the Economic Council and to elect the Secretary-General. It may also convene meetings of other Ministers to discuss particular problems which call for collective study and planning.

THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

The Executive Council is composed of the Foreign Ministers of the five republics or their appointed representatives. Its function is to direct and co-ordinate the policy of the Organization, and to elect the Secretary-General. It is a permanent body, meeting at least once a week. The President is elected annually.

THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

The Legislative Council is composed of three members of each of the Legislative Assemblies of the member states. Its function is to advise on legislative matters; it is also to study the possibilities of uniform legislation in the Central American Republics. Meetings are held once a year; extraordinary meetings may be convened by the Executive Council at the request of at least two member states.

CENTRAL AMERICAN COURT OF JUSTICE

Composed of the Presidents of the Supreme Courts of each member state. Meetings are held whenever necessary, or when convened by the Executive Council.

THE ECONOMIC COUNCIL

The Economic Council is composed of the Ministers of Economy of the member countries and meets at least once a year. Its functions are the planning, co-ordination and execution of Central American economic integration. All Central American integration organisations will form part of the Council.

CULTURAL AND EDUCATIONAL COUNCIL

Formed by the Ministers of Education of the member states or their representatives.

THE DEFENCE COUNCIL

Composed of the Ministers of Defence of member states. Advises on regional defence and joint security of members.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN BUREAU

The General Secretariat has its seat in San Salvador. Its functions are to co-ordinate the work of the organs of ODECA, to assist them and to prepare and distribute information. The Secretary-General is elected for a non-renewable period of four years by the Executive Council.

Secretary-General: ALBINO ROMÁN Y VEGA.

PUBLICATIONS

Boletín Informativo de la ODECA (monthly).

Memoria (every two years).

FUNCTIONS

The Central American Common Market was established under the Tratado Multilateral de Libre Comercio e Integración Económica Centroamericana and the Tratado de Integración Económica Centroamericana. It visualises the eventual elimination of all tariffs and barriers between members, and the establishment of a common external tariff for the rest of the world. So far practically all internal barriers have been removed and over 98 per cent of the external tariff equalised.

TREATIES

TRATADO MULTILATERAL DE LIBRE COMERCIO E INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in Tegucigalpa in 1958 by all members of ODECA, except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. For the equalisation of Customs duties between the members. All duties were removed from 237 groups of regionally produced commodities when the Treaty came into force and will be extended to include all regionally produced goods in the next ten years.

TRATADO DE INTEGRACIÓN ECONÓMICA CENTROAMERICANA

Signed in 1959 by all members of ODECA except Costa Rica who joined in 1962. In July 1962 the members signed agreements establishing uniform tariffs on more than 95 per cent of all products entering the area.

TRATADO DE ASOCIACIÓN ECONÓMICA

Signed in February 1960 by El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras, and came into force in April 1960. Tariffs have been removed on goods amounting to nearly 50 per cent of total trade between the members. Remaining tariffs will be abolished within five years. At a later stage restrictions on the movement of capital and labour will be removed. A Development and Welfare Fund has been set up.

DEVELOPMENT AND WELFARE FUND

Opens with resources of $5.5 million. (Guatemala contributes quetzales 2 million, El Salvador colones 5 millions, Honduras lempiras 3 millions).

Governors: The three Ministers of Economy of the Member States.

Secretary-General: RAFAEL HUEZO SELVAS (Guatemala City).

TRATADO DE INTERCAMBIO PREFERENCIAL Y DE LIBRE COMERCIO

Signed by Costa Rica, Nicaragua and Panama in 1961 and ratified in 1962, to speed economic integration through tariff reductions between members.

FUTURE PLANS

Co-operation among the three countries is envisaged in the fields of technical co-operation, air transport, shipping, petroleum, petrochemical industries, tourism, information, trade, cultural co-operation, post, telegraph and telecommunications, roads, and railways and banking and insurance. Feasibility studies in regard to eighteen basic industries in which joint enterprise is possible have already been undertaken by the three Governments.

Further developments may include the accession as members of the association of other states having common cultural and geographic links

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

AIMS OF REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

Enunciated in Istanbul, July 23rd, 1964, by the Foreign Ministers of the Member States

1. The emergence of regional economic groupings enjoying a community of interest is an outstanding feature of our time for accelerating the pace of economic growth. Efforts directed towards regional economic collaboration have gained international acceptance and the present move to promote collaboration amongst countries of the region is directed towards the same aim, viz., the strengthening of their development efforts through active and sustained collaboration on a regional basis. This is particularly true in the case of Iran, Pakistan and Turkey since the desire and basis for such a close collaboration and co-operation exist amongst them and will continue in view of the cultural and historic ties of friendship amongst the peoples of the three countries, and further because increasing regional economic co-operation has become a necessity. Economic and cultural collaboration amongst them is therefore most desirable, and should be raised to the highest possible level. There are great possibilities for such collaboration to the mutual benefit of the three countries which should be achieved expeditiously.

Measures

2. The measures for economic collaboration suggested in the following paragraphs may be broadly divided into two categories—(a) Those which can be worked out and implemented forthwith and (b) Those which will require detailed study and scrutiny by Regional Planning Committee.

3. A Regional Planning Committee composed of the Heads of the Planning Organizations is established. It will be assisted by advisers and could meet in any of the regional countries preferably by rotation.

4. The Committee will study the development plans and production potential of countries of the region with a view inter alia to making recommendations on joint purpose projects and long-term purchase agreements. Joint purpose projects will feed the requirements of the three countries. There are several projects for which none of these countries can provide a sufficient domestic market yet they can be valuable projects if the total requirements of the three countries are taken into consideration.

5. The Committee may also make proposals regarding the harmonization of the national development plans in the wide interest of accelerated regional development.

6. The Committee will submit its reports to the Ministerial meetings. The first report is to be submitted to the next such meeting.

7. Efficient and effective means of communication and transport are essential for the promotion of the regional economic and cultural collaboration. The preparation of recommendations in this field and their implementation should be given the highest priority.

Air Transportation

8. A working group on air transportation is set up to study measures required to—(a) improve the transport services in the region so that quick and frequent movement of passengers and freight within the region be possible; (b) establish a strong and competitive international airline among the three countries; (c) foster co-operation among the civil and commercial aviation authorities of the three countries.

The report of the working group should be available for the next Ministerial meeting.

Shipping

9. Collaboration among the countries of the region in shipping is highly desirable. A working group on shipping is set up to investigate the possibility of securing a close co-operation in this field including the establishment of a joint maritime line.

Roads and Railways

10. Working groups on roads, railways and telecommunications are established immediately. The group will inter alia study and report on the following.

- (a) The measures which should be taken to complete expeditiously the rail and road links among the countries of the region.
- (b) Whether any additional rail and road links are considered necessary.
- (c) Reduction of telephone rates.
- (d) Establishment of P.T.T. offices in border areas;
- (e) Feasibility of providing services such as direct dialling between the countries of the region and telecommunication, etc.

11. It is agreed that the postal and telegraph rates among Iran, Pakistan and Turkey be reduced to the levels of internal rates within the respective countries. The implementation of this decision is entrusted to the P.T.T. authorities of the three countries.

12. The construction of roads from the western and central parts of Iran to Zahidan and from Karachi to Zahidan should be given consideration by Iran and Pakistan so that the two countries are effectively linked by road. The Zahidan-Kashan rail link should be given further consideration with a view to developing it as early as possible.

Trade

13. Economic collaboration should provide for effective measures to build up and promote trade since expansion of inter-regional trade, apart from being highly desirable, in itself tends further to promote regional economic growth and amity.

14. A Working Group on trade is established to study, report and recommend inter alia on the following measures on which agreement in principle has been reached:

- (a) Free or freer movement of goods among the countries of the region through practicable means such as the conclusion of trade agreements, etc ;
- (b) transit trade arrangements;
- (c) establishment of closer collaboration between existing chambers of commerce and establishment of a joint chamber of commerce;
- (d) establishment of halls and showrooms, provision of special customs facilities for exhibition and increased participation in each other's fairs;
- (e) dissemination of information on a large scale of the export and import potential of the three countries and investigation of the possibilities of joint publicity and joint marketing policy outside the region for similar exportable products

REGIONAL CO-OPERATION FOR DEVELOPMENT

Petroleum

15. A Working Group on petroleum is established to consider measures for co-operation among the three countries in the field of petroleum and natural gas and for their exploration drilling; exploration; refining; transportation; distribution, etc. Collaboration in this field could be developed to mutual advantage.

Tourism

16. A Tourist Agreement will be signed at an early date among the countries of the region with a view to promoting tourist traffic among themselves and to increase the flow of tourists from other countries. A Working Group on tourism should be established immediately to prepare an agreement on tourism which should inter alia cover co-operation in publicity, group or package tourist arrangements. Promotion of inter-regional travel, substitutes of passports by documents valid for travelling in the three countries. Efforts with the aim of exchanging and training of tourist personnel, technicians, tourist investments, tourist propaganda and utilization of the services and facilities of their tourist organizations, travel bureaux and other agencies in their countries and abroad. As economic collaboration grows, inter-regional travel should increase considerably; it does however need a special effort if it is to be developed to a substantial degree in the immediate future.

Abolition of Visas

17. The abolition of visas for travel purposes by their nationals in the three countries is accepted in principle; the procedure for the implementation of this decision should be worked out by the Working Group on tourism.

Banking and Insurance

18. A Working Group on Banking and Insurance is established for collaboration in these fields.

Technical Co-operation

19. The countries of the region should provide technical assistance to each other in the form of exports and training facilities. Such a programme will apart from intrinsic utility promote regional understanding and harmony. The Planning Committee will be directly responsible for progress in this matter.

Cultural Co-operation

20. Iran, Pakistan and Turkey are bound to one another by historical and cultural ties, they share a common heritage. Their cultural ties go far back in history and their national cultures owe much to continuous exchanges which have gone on for centuries. In the modern world they must integrate their traditional cultures with the new scientific outlook.

21. Co-operation in the field of education, science and culture is necessary to develop consciousness of the common cultural heritage and to promote social and economic development and political collaboration.

22. During the last few years a certain measure of progress has been achieved in cultural relations through bilateral programmes. However, there is considerable scope for further action. At the same time there is strong need for a joint sponsorship of many cultural activities under a regional programme.

Cultural Relations

23. The programme of cultural relations should be particularly oriented towards the following aims: (a) creating mass consciousness of the common cultural heritage. To this end the three countries should jointly sponsor an institute for initiating studies and research in this field and bringing out clearly those traditions which bind the people of the region together. Further, school books should be carefully reviewed to eliminate misleading interpretations of history and to promote greater understanding of their common interests; (b) disseminating information about history, civilization and culture of the people of the region. To this end each country should consider: (1) establishment of chairs for the study of its language, history, civilization and culture in universities of the other countries; (2) increasing substantially the number of scholarships for the students of other countries to enable them to study together in their educational institutions; (3) establishment of cultural centres in the other two countries; (4) provision as far as possible of facilities for the teaching of international language in the schools of other member countries; the media of mass communications, radio, films, television, etc., should be extensively used for the propagation of information and ideas aimed at a closer understanding of the people of the region.

24. Cultural co-operation may also be extended through: (a) exchanges in the field of fine arts; (b) exchanges of visits by teachers, scientists, educational administrators, writers, artists, journalists, etc.; (c) exchanges of information on educational techniques, experiences, and programmes; (d) collaboration in regard to programmes for radio, films and television; (e) elimination of obstacles in the way of free exchange of books, films and other printed materials of an educational and cultural character; (f) organization of regional tournaments; (g) co-operation in the field of joint production of films.

Organization

25. The organizational arrangements for planning and promoting economic and cultural collaboration amongst Iran, Pakistan and Turkey should be simple and effective. As the scope of co-operation widens these arrangements could be modified as required.

26. The highest decision-making body for regional co-operation shall be a Council of Ministers consisting of the Ministers nominated by each of the three countries concerned. It shall consider and decide upon measures for regional economic and cultural co-operation. It will also follow the programmes in the implementation of its decisions. The Council shall meet once in four months and more frequently if necessary. The Chairman of the Council shall be the Head of State or Head of Government of the host country.

27. The Council will be assisted by a Regional Planning Committee composed of the Heads of the three Planning Organizations. They will deal with work relating to regional collaboration including detailed preparatory negotiations and preparation of recommendations for submission to the Council. The Committee will be assisted by Working Groups which will report to it. If necessary the Committee may engage expert consultants to examine particular subjects for regional co-operation.

28. The host country will for the time being provide secretarial facilities (including office accommodation, etc.). The officials of the countries deputed by their Governments to serve on the Secretariat will draw their emoluments and allowances from their own Governments.

29. After 12 months the Council of Ministers will review the position and decide upon the setting up of a permanent Secretariat.

ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY

Opened 1959 to allow ocean-going ships to enter the Great Lakes of North America.

ORGANISATION

Canada: St. Lawrence Seaway Authority: Ottawa 4, Ontario; f. 1954; maintains and operates the sections of the St. Lawrence Seaway in Canadian territory; Pres. Dr. PIERRE CAMU, Sec L E BÉLAND.

U.S.A.: Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation: Seaway Circle, Massena, N.Y.; f. 1954; maintains and operates sections lying in U.S. territory; Administrator J. H. McCANN.

THE SEAWAY

MILEAGE AND LOCKS

The Seaway was built by the joint efforts of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority and the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Work started in 1954 and the Seaway was opened to traffic in April 1959. In August 1963 it was decided that twin locks should replace the present single-lock system on the Welland Canal, and construction commenced in 1964. The project, which is estimated to cost Canadian $180 million, is expected to be completed in 1971.

The Seaway extends 360 miles from Montreal Harbour to Lake Erie and includes the Welland Canal, built 1913-32 between Lakes Ontario and Erie. There are 15 locks on the Seaway; 7 between Montreal and Lake Ontario, total lift about 225 ft; 8 on the Welland Canal, total lift 326 ft.

Shipping Channel Minimum depth 27 ft, width 200-600 ft.

Welland Canal Minimum depth 27 ft, length 27 miles.

Locks built and maintained by Canada:

St Lambert	15 ft. lift, Montreal Harbour to Laprairie Basin.
Cote Ste Catherine	30 ft. lift, Laprairie Basin to Lake St Louis by-passing Lachine rapids.
Lower Beauharnois	41 ft. lift, by-passing Beauharnois Power Station.
Upper Beauharnois	41 ft lift to Lake St. Francis
Iroquois	6 m. lift; by-passing Iroquois Control Dam

Locks built and maintained by the U.S.A.:

Snell	45 ft lift to Wiley-Dondero Canal
Eisenhower	38 ft. lift to Lake St. Lawrence.

GREAT LAKES SYSTEM

Shipping channels in the Great Lakes above the Seaway are being dredged to a minimum depth of 27 ft

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION— SEATO

P.O. Box 517, Bangkok, Thailand

SEATO is a defensive alliance organised in accordance with Article 51 of the United Nations Charter. The eight member countries of the Manila Pact and Pacific Charter of September 1954 pledged themselves to collective action to resist armed attacks, and to counter subversion aimed at the overthrow of their governments. The pact is officially known as the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty. SEATO liaises with NATO and CENTO.

ORGANISATION

THE SEATO COUNCIL

The SEATO Council, which consists of the Foreign Ministers of the eight member countries, sets the broad common policies required for the fulfilment of the objectives of the South-East Asia Collective Defence Treaty. The Council usually meets once a year in the capital cities of member countries. Latest meeting, May 1965, in London, next meeting, June 1966, in Canberra.

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION

CIVIL SIDE

SEATO COUNCIL REPRESENTATIVES: This body meets usually once a month and consists of the Ambassadors in Bangkok of the seven member nations and a special Ambassador appointed by the Government of Thailand. It carries on the overall political direction of SEATO affairs, and controls the non-military activities of the Organisation.

PERMANENT WORKING GROUP: This group meets frequently as required and is made up of senior staff members of the Council Representatives. The Group's duty is to carry out preparatory work on proposals and policy matters for the Council Representatives.

EXPERT STUDY GROUPS: Convened from time to time to provide advice on specific subjects, e.g. community development, counter-subversion, culture, economics, education, information, labour and security.

SECRETARIAT-GENERAL: International staff posts in the Secretariat-General are filled on the basis of the accepted pattern of distribution among member countries

Central Services Office: Director L. J. ROLLET-ANDRIANE (France).

Cultural Relations Office: Director M. A. K. CHAUDRY (Pakistan).

Economic Services Office: Director S. M. HUDA (Pakistan).

Information Office: Public Information Officer DARRELL M. PRICE (U.S.A.).

Research Services Office: Director (Vacant).

Secretary-General: Lt-Gen JESÚS M. VARGAS (Philippines).

Deputy Secretary-General: DAVID A. WRIGHT (New Zealand).

Special Assistant to the Secretary-General: Lt.-Col. JOSÉ L. REYNA, Jr. (Philippines).

MILITARY SIDE

MILITARY ADVISERS GROUP: This group directs SEATO military activities and is responsible to the SEATO Council. Each member nation nominates one high-ranking officer as Chief of Staff or Theatre Commander level as its military adviser. The Military Advisers Group holds two meetings each year.

SEATO MILITARY PLANNING OFFICE: This office carries out military planning at SEATO Headquarters. The Chief, SEATO Military Planning Office, is a senior officer of the armed forces of one of the member nations. He is responsible to the Military Advisers Group for the functioning of the office and for maintaining close liaison with the Secretary-General. He is assisted by a Deputy Chief, Military Planning Office. Each Military Adviser is represented in the Military Planning Office by a senior officer called the Military Adviser's Representative. Each nation contributes a number of planners drawn from their respective armed forces.

Chief, Military Planning Office: Maj.-Gen. H. A. PRINCE, C.B.E. (United Kingdom).

Deputy Chief, Military Planning Office: Brig.-Gen. VICTOR M. OSIAS, G.S.C. (Philippines).

Military Advisers' Representatives: Gp. Capt. J. M. SUTHERLAND (Australia); Vacant (France); Group Capt. D. F. ST. GEORGE, D.F.C., A.F.C. (New Zealand); Capt. KAMAL AHMAD, P.A.F. (Pakistan); Capt. R. G. LAVADIA, P.N. (Philippines); Col. PHIN GESORN, R.T.A. (Thailand); Group Capt. P. MALLORIE, A.F.C. (United Kingdom); Col. RICHARD C. BENDER (U.S.A.).

Head of Planning: J. J. PADLEY, U.S.M.C. (U.S.A.).

Head of Military Secretariat: Wg. Cdr. S. A. USMANI, P.A.F. (Pakistan).

Head of Administration: Cdr. VINAI CHAIPERM (Thailand).

ECONOMIC CO-OPERATION

COUNTRIES

Australia: continues its £2½ million special SEATO aid programme to Asian members.

France: provides economic, technical, educational and cultural aid.

New Zealand: provides technical and economic assistance through bilateral agreements and participation in SEATO programmes.

United Kingdom: assistance continues in the form of capital aid and technical assistance under bilateral arrangements, concentrating on the provision of training facilities, technical experts and equipment.

U.S.A.: assistance takes the form of loans, grants, technical assistance, foodstuffs and other agricultural produce.

ACTIVITIES

Economic Services Office: collects and analyses information and prepares background studies and reports on current economic problems and developments in the Treaty Area. This office also provides a means of liaison between SEATO Headquarters and the non-military SEATO projects. Publishes a quarterly bulletin on recent economic trends in the area.

Cultural Relations Programme: provides undergraduate and postgraduate scholarships, research fellowships and exchange professorships. SEATO has commissioned experts to examine the equivalence of university degrees, and to survey language studies.

Medical Research: The Medical Research Laboratory (f. 1959) and the Clinical Research Centre (f. 1963) in

SOUTH-EAST ASIA TREATY ORGANIZATION

Bangkok are centres for research on tropical diseases, particularly intestinal infections and cholera. A Cholera Research Laboratory was established at Dacca, East Pakistan, in 1960.

Base Workshop: A $2 million Australian-Thai vehicle re-build workshop came into operation in 1965 at Rangsit, near Bangkok.

Telecommunications Project: introduces an improved telecommunications system for gathering and transmitting meteorological and aeronautical information between the Asian member countries. United States equipment has been installed in Thailand and the Philippines and technicians from both countries have been trained in the U.S.A.

Hill Tribes Research: A research and training centre now operates at Chiangmai, northern Thailand. Australia has contributed motor vehicles and the services of an anthropologist, the United Kingdom books for the Centre's library, and the United States equipment for the Centre.

Community Development: A Rural Development Centre has been established at Ubol, in north east Thailand.

Skilled Labour Programme: Twenty-two vocational schools providing three-year courses of study have been established in major provincial towns of Thailand (1965 enrolment 7,444). A Teacher Development Centre was set up in Bangkok in 1959 (1965 enrolment 280) and a Military Technical Training School, also in Bangkok, in 1960. In Pakistan, Technical Training Centres have been set up at Karachi and Dacca. A Textile Workers Training Centre, Apprentice Training Programme and a Labour Market Information and Statistics Service Project have been established in the Philippines.

Countering Communist Subversion: An expert staff carries out counter-subversion work and co-ordinates national efforts in this field.

COLLEGE

SEATO Graduate School of Engineering: Bangkok, Thailand; f. 1959; advanced courses in hydraulics, structural and highway engineering and public health engineering; Students 1965-66: 94.

1965 Lae, Papua and New Guinea.

SIXTH CONFERENCE

Principal resolutions of the Sixth South Pacific Conference, held in Lae, Papua and New Guinea in 1965, concerned:

- 1 Training courses in administration, agriculture, fishing, boat-building and other fields.
- 2 Studies on the drift of population from rural to urban areas.
- 3 Regional co-operation in the development of new industries.
- 4 The role of the Commission in the field of livestock production.
- 5 Research on medicinal plants and on the health problems of atoll populations
- 6 Proposal that Territorial Administrations should increase their contributions to the Commission's budget.

SOUTH PACIFIC COMMISSION

HISTORY AND AIMS

Following the Canberra Agreement of 1947, the Commission was set up in 1948 and moved to its present headquarters in 1949. In 1951 Guam and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands were brought within the scope of the Commission. Western Samoa, which attained independence in 1962, was accepted as a member Government in 1965 and formally acceded to the Agreement in July 1965. In 1962 the Netherlands, one of the original members, withdrew when it ceased to be responsible for a territory in the area.

Each territory has its own programme of economic and social development administered by one of the five participating governments in the Commission. The Commission assists these programmes by bringing people together for discussion and study, by research into some of the problems common to the region, by providing expert advice and assistance and by disseminating technical information.

ACTIVITIES

The Commission organises conferences of technical experts, seminars and training. It finances study tours by technical officers, promotes research and collects, prepares and distributes information. The work of the Commission falls within three fields.

Health: Public health, health education, maternal and child health, nutrition, epidemiology, medical statistics, training and research.

Social Development: Literature promotion, library development, education, community education and self-help, co-operatives, applied research, labour, housing

Economic Development: Plant and animal production improvement, plant and animal protection, extension of agriculture, training

UNION OF INTERNATIONAL FAIRS

(Union des Foires Internationales)

60 rue la Boétie, Paris 8e, France

The Union was founded in 1925 to increase co-operation between international fairs, safeguard their interests and extend their operations.

ORGANISATION

ANNUAL CONGRESS

The Annual Congress, which is the sovereign body of UFI, is held every year in a different town. The Congress lays down UFI policy, decides upon applications for membership and determines the programme of work for the coming year.

Each member fair of UFI is entitled to one vote in the Congress deliberations. Decisions are carried by an absolute majority of the total number of votes.

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: A. L. BLANCHOT (France).

Treasurer: C. BERTOLOTI (Italy).

STEERING COMMITTEE

The Steering Committee carries out the decisions of Congress. It also co-ordinates and supervises the activities of the Commissions and Technical Committees.

President: R. GORDILLO CARRANZA (Spain).

Vice-Presidents: M. G. FRANCI (Italy), K. E. MOSSNER (German Federal Republic), R. LEMSER (German Democratic Republic), M. GHIGLIONE (France).

AIMS

UFI has defined the conditions to be fulfilled to qualify as an "International Fair". It has drafted, in co-operation with the International Chamber of Commerce, a series of criteria applicable to international specialised displays. It seeks to discourage inferior displays.

Questions studied by UFI include.

1. Establishment of bonded warehouses within fair premises.
2. Facilitating customs formalities.

3. Authorisation of temporary imports.
4. Granting of special quotas for the sale of foreign goods exhibited at fairs.
5. Reduction of transport rates for visitors and for goods on display.
6. Granting of visas free of charge for users of fairs.
7. Allotment of foreign exchange quotas for exhibitors.
8. Protection of inventions on display.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

9 Grosvenor Place, London, S.W.1

Based on the Brussels Treaty of 1948, Western European Union was set up in 1955. Member States seek to co-ordinate their defence policy and equipment, and to co-operate in political, social, legal and cultural affairs.

MEMBERS

Belgium
France
Federal Republic of Germany
Italy
Luxembourg
Netherlands
United Kingdom

ORGANISATION

THE COUNCIL

The Council of Western European Union consists of the Foreign Ministers, or the Ambassadors resident in London and an Under-Secretary of the British Foreign Office, under the chairmanship of the Secretary-General. It is responsible for formulating policy and issuing directives to the Secretary-General and the agencies and commissions of the organisation.

The Council is charged with ensuring the closest co-operation with the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation, especially with regard to the Agency for the Control of Armaments and the Standing Armaments Committee.

PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVES

Belgium: J. DE THIER.
France: G. DE COURCEL
German Federal Republic: H. BLANKENHORN.
Italy: G. GUIDOTTI.
Luxembourg: A. CLASEN.
Netherlands: J. H. VAN ROIJEN
United Kingdom: Viscount HOOD

THE AGENCY FOR THE CONTROL OF ARMAMENTS

Director: Gen. L. LOMBARDI (Italy), 43 Avenue du Président Wilson, Paris 16e

The Agency is responsible to the Council for ensuring that the undertakings not to manufacture certain types of armaments are being observed and for the control of the level of stocks of armaments held by each member state on the mainland of Europe.

THE STANDING ARMAMENTS COMMITTEE

Chairman: MAXIME ROUX (France), 43 Avenue du Président Wilson, Paris 16e.

The Committee is responsible for developing the closest possible co-operation between the member countries in the field of armaments

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: M. IWEINS D'EECKHOUTTE (Belgium)
Deputy Secretary-General: Dr. L. KRAFFT VON DELLMEYER-SINGEN (Federal Republic of Germany).
Assistant Secretary-General: P. B. FRASER (United Kingdom).
Legal Adviser: J. WESTHOFF (Belgium)

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

THE ASSEMBLY

President: CARLO SCHMID (Federal Republic of Germany, S.P.D.).

Vice-Presidents: J. T. TJALMA (Netherlands, Anti-Revolution), C. SOAMES (United Kingdom, Conservative), V. BADINI CONFALONIERI (Italy, Liberal), R. RADIUS (France, U.N.R.), E. SCHAUS (Luxembourg, Democrat)

Chairman of the Christian Democrat Group: M. DE HODEY (Belgium).

Chairman of the Liberal Group: V. BADINI CONFALONIERI (Italy).

Chairman of the Socialist Group: SIR GEOFFREY DE FREITAS (United Kingdom)

Clerk: FRANCIS HUMBLET, 43 Avenue du Président Wilson, Paris 16e.

The Assembly of Western European Union consists of the delegates of the member countries to the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe and meets twice a year in Paris. The Assembly considers defence policy in Western Europe, besides other matters concerning Member States in common, and may make recommendations or transmit opinions to the Council, to national parliaments, governments and international organisations. An annual report, with special reference to the Agency for the Control of Armaments, is presented to the Assembly by the Council.

PERMANENT COMMITTEES OF THE ASSEMBLY

Defence Questions and Armaments: Chairman: GEORG KLIESING (Federal Republic of Germany).

General Affairs: Chairman: V. BADINI CONFALONIERI (Italy).

Budgetary Affairs and Administration: A. MOLTER (Belgium).

Rules of Procedure and Privileges: FRANZ SEIDL (Federal Republic of Germany)

HISTORY

Western European Union is a development of the Brussels Treaty signed by Belgium, France, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom in 1948. That Treaty provided for collective self-defence, mutual automatic military assistance in the event of a repetition of hostilities and for collaboration in economic, social and cultural matters between these five states. At the time of its signature, the Treaty was a unique instrument, creating the most closely-knit international co-operative association ever known. Furthermore, it contributed directly to the creation of larger similarly combined efforts: on the military side NATO, and on the civil side the Council of Europe.

As a sequel to the collapse in 1954 of the plans for creating a European Defence Community, a nine-power conference was convened in London in order to attempt to reach a new agreement. In particular some means had to be found of associating the defence effort of the Federal Republic of Germany with NATO. The conference was attended by Ministers representing Belgium, Canada, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom and the United States of America. A document was drawn up stating that the occupation régime in Germany would be ended and that Germany would join NATO; the former Brussels Treaty would be strengthened and extended, and Germany and Italy would be invited to accede to it.

These decisions were embodied in a series of agreements, signed in 1954, which form the substance of the seven-power Western European Union, the seven powers being Belgium, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and the United Kingdom. The ratification of these agreements was completed by May 6th, 1955, on which date Western European Union came into being.

On the ratification of the agreements, Western European Union was also charged with the specific task of settling the future of the Saar. Under a Franco-German agreement, the Saar was to have a European Statute within the framework of WEU, provided that this Statute was approved by a referendum. A Commission was set up in May 1955 to supervise the referendum, which was held on October 23rd, 1955. The result showed that the Saar majority had voted against the adoption of the European Statute and had furthermore expressed a wish to be incorporated in the Federal Republic of Germany. The Saar then became a Land of the Federal Republic of Germany, but remained linked economically to France. The final incorporation of the territory, now re-named Saarland, took place on July 5th, 1959.

The activities of the four main social and cultural committees were transferred to the Council of Europe in June 1960.

The Council of WEU has formally approved certain relaxations of the restrictions on German arms production imposed by Protocol III of the revised Brussels Treaty. They concern specified long-range and guided missiles, influence mines, and the construction of certain ships and submarines.

In June 1963, following the suspension of negotiations for Britain's entry into the Common Market, it was agreed that the WEU Council would meet at quarterly intervals and that the economic situation in Europe would be an item regularly on its agenda. The Commission of the EEC would be invited to be represented during the discussion of this point. These meetings have continued since October 1963.

THE BRUSSELS TREATY

(as amended by Protocol No. 1, signed in 1954, modifying and completing the Treaty)

ARTICLE I

Convinced of the close community of their interests and of the necessity of uniting in order to promote the economic recovery of Europe, the High Contracting Parties will so organise and co-ordinate their economic activities as to produce the best possible results, by the elimination of conflict in their economic policies, the co-ordination of production and the development of commercial exchanges.

The co-operation provided for in the preceding paragraph, which will be effected through the Council referred to in Article VIII as well as through other bodies, shall not involve any duplication of, or prejudice to, the work of other economic organisations in which the High Contracting Parties are or may be represented but shall on the contrary assist the work of those organisations.

ARTICLE II

The High Contracting Parties will make every effort in common, both by direct consultation and in specialised agencies, to promote the attainment of a higher standard of living by their peoples and to develop on corresponding lines the social and other related services of their countries.

The High Contracting Parties will consult with the object of achieving the earliest possible application of recommendations of immediate practical interest, relating to social matters, adopted with their approval in the specialised agencies.

They will endeavour to conclude as soon as possible conventions with each other in the sphere of social security.

ARTICLE III

The High Contracting Parties will make every effort in common to lead their peoples towards a better understanding of the principles which form the basis of their common civilisation and to promote cultural exchanges by conventions between themselves or by other means.

ARTICLE IV

In the execution of the Treaty the High Contracting Parties and any organs established by them under the Treaty shall work in close co-operation with the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation.

Recognising the undesirability of duplicating the military staffs of NATO, the Council and its Agency will rely on the appropriate military authorities of NATO for information and advice on military matters.

ARTICLE V

If any of the High Contracting Parties should be the object of an armed attack in Europe, the other High Contracting Parties will, in accordance with the provisions of Article 51 of the Charter of the United Nations, afford the Party so attacked all the military and other aid and assistance in their power.

ARTICLE VI

All measures taken as a result of the preceding Article shall be immediately reported to the Security Council. They shall be terminated as soon as the Security Council has taken the measures necessary to maintain or restore international peace and security.

The present Treaty does not prejudice in any way the obligations of the High Contracting Parties under the provisions of the Charter of the United Nations. It shall not be interpreted as affecting in any way the authority and responsibility of the Security Council under the Charter to take at any time such action as it deems necessary in order to maintain or restore international peace and security.

ARTICLE VII

The High Contracting Parties declare, each so far as he is concerned, that none of the international engagements now in force between him and any of the High Contracting Parties or any third State is in conflict with the provisions of the present Treaty.

None of the High Contracting Parties will conclude any alliance or participate in any coalition directed against any other of the High Contracting Parties.

ARTICLE VIII

1. For the purpose of strengthening peace and security and of promoting unity and of encouraging the progressive integration of Europe and closer co-operation between them and with other European organisations, the High Contracting Parties to the Brussels Treaty shall create a Council to consider matters concerning the execution of this Treaty and its Protocols and their Annexes.

2. This Council shall be known as the "Council of Western European Union"; it shall be so organised as to be able to exercise its functions continuously; it shall set up such subsidiary bodies as may be considered necessary: in particular it shall establish immediately an Agency for the Control of Armaments, whose functions are defined in Protocol No. IV.

At the request of any of the High Contracting Parties the Council shall be immediately convened in order to permit them to consult with regard to any situation which may constitute a threat to peace, in whatever area this threat should arise, or a danger to economic stability.

The Council shall decide by unanimous vote questions for which no other voting procedure has been or may be agreed. In the cases provided for in Protocols II, III and IV it will follow the various voting procedures, unanimity, two-thirds majority, simple majority, laid down therein. It will decide by simple majority questions submitted to it by the Agency for the Control of Armaments.

ARTICLE IX

The Council of Western European Union shall make an annual report on its activities and, in particular, concerning the control of armaments to an Assembly composed of representatives of the Brussels Treaty Powers to the Consultative Assembly of the Council of Europe.

ARTICLE X

In pursuance of their determination to settle disputes only by peaceful means, the High Contracting Parties will apply to disputes between themselves the following provisions:

The High Contracting Parties will, while the present Treaty remains in force, settle all disputes falling within the scope of Article 36, paragraph 2, of the Statute of the International Court of Justice by referring them to the Court, subject only, in the case of each of them, to any reservation already made by that Party when accepting this clause for compulsory jurisdiction, to the extent that that Party may maintain the reservation.

In addition, the High Contracting Parties will submit to conciliation all disputes outside the scope of Article 36, paragraph 2, of the Statute of the International Court of Justice.

In the case of a mixed dispute involving both questions for which conciliation is appropriate and other questions for which judicial settlement is appropriate, any Party to the dispute shall have the right to insist that the judicial settlement of the legal questions shall precede conciliation.

The preceding provisions of this Article in no way affect the application of relevant provisions or agreements prescribing some other method of pacific settlement.

ARTICLE XI

The High Contracting Parties may, by agreement, invite any other State to accede to the present Treaty on conditions to be agreed between them and the State so invited.

Any State so invited may become a Party to the Treaty by depositing an instrument of accession with the Belgian Government.

The Belgian Government will inform each of the High Contracting Parties of the deposit of each instrument of accession.

ARTICLE XII

The present Treaty shall be ratified and the instruments of ratification shall be deposited as soon as possible with the Belgian Government.

It shall enter into force on the date of the deposit of the last instrument of ratification and shall thereafter remain in force for fifty years.

After the expiry of the period of fifty years, each of the High Contracting Parties shall have the right to cease to be a party thereto provided that he shall have previously given one year's notice of denunciation to the Belgian Government.

The Belgian Government shall inform the Governments of the other High Contracting Parties of the deposit of each instrument of ratification and of each notice of denunciation.

WESTERN EUROPEAN UNION

SUMMARY OF PROTOCOLS

PROTOCOL No. I

This Protocol is incorporated in the text of the revised Treaty as printed above.

PROTOCOL No. II

This Protocol sets upper limits on the size of the land and air forces which the members of WEU maintain on the continent of Europe in peace-time and place under the command of the Supreme Allied Commander, Europe. For Belgium, France, the Federal Republic of Germany, Italy and the Netherlands these limits are the same as in the Annex to the EDC Treaty; for Luxembourg the limit is one regimental combat team, while for the United Kingdom it is four divisions and the Second Tactical Air Force. The level of naval forces are determined annually by NATO. These limits are not to be increased except by unanimous agreement, and the level of internal defence and police forces are also to be established by internal agreement. Finally, the United Kingdom agreed not to withdraw or diminish her forces in Europe against the wishes of the majority of her partners, except in the event of an acute overseas emergency.

PROTOCOL No. III

Under the third Protocol, the Federal Republic of Germany undertook not to manufacture atomic, chemical or biological weapons, or certain other weapons on a list (including guided missiles, warships and strategic bombers) which can be amended by the Council of WEU by a two-thirds majority. The Federal Republic agreed to supervision to ensure that these undertakings were respected and the other members agreed that their stocks of various weapons would be subject to control.

PROTOCOL No. IV

This Protocol provided for the setting up of the Agency for the Control of Armaments, which has the task of ensuring that the commitments contained in the third Protocol are observed. A Resolution was also passed setting up the Standing Armaments Committee. (See Organisation above.)

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Chairman: Rev. Dr. FRANKLIN CLARK FRY (U.S.A.)

Vice-Chairman: Rev. Dr. ERNEST PAYNE (U.K.).

Consists of fifteen members chosen by the Central Committee to prepare for and expedite its decisions. Meets every six months

SECRETARIAT

General Secretary: Dr. EUGENE CARSON BLAKE (U.S.A.).

PRINCIPAL ACTIVITIES

Studies Theological research work is undertaken, and conferences and commissions study the unity of Churches, evangelism and missionary work, the role of the Church in society, religious liberty, racial and cultural relations, and scriptural interpretation in the light of modern Biblical knowledge.

Inter-Church Aid. Transference of funds to Churches in need. In 1956 gifts of over $60,000,000 were distributed to Churches faced with a struggle for existence. An Ecumenical Church Loan Fund has been established to finance church building projects where initial funds are not available.

Relief and Service to Refugees. Provision of financial and material relief in disaster areas and distribution of food and clothing to the needy. More than 250,000 refugees have been re-settled by the Council, which also provides medical care, homes for aged refugees and educational facilities

Education. The Council provides scholarships for theological students to continue their education in other countries, largely in places provided by member Churches in their theological schools. At least two scholarships are awarded annually to advanced students or young professors. An Ecumenical Institute is maintained at Bossey, Switzerland, for educational courses, study conferences and a graduate course in ecumenical studies

WORLD COUNCIL OF CHURCHES

Health. Treatment and hospital care are available for needy pastors and church workers, and medical supplies are provided for East European countries.

International Affairs. A Commission on International Affairs represents the Council at conferences of international bodies and works for peace with justice and freedom.

Mission and Evangelism. The Council assists Churches to maintain missions and promotes co-operation in the common task of evangelism.

Youth Activities. The Council promotes World Youth projects and ecumenical work camps as well as providing opportunities for voluntary service by youth.

Ecumenical Work. A committee of six representatives of the Roman Catholic Church and eight of the WCC was established in May 1965 to examine the present relationships between the two bodies and to explore the possibilities of collaboration. In July 1965 the Ecumenical Centre, headquarters of the WCC and ten other international church bodies, was dedicated at Geneva.

SUMMARY OF THE CONSTITUTION

The World Federation of Trade Unions exists to improve the living and working conditions of the people of all lands and to unite them in pursuit of the objectives sought by all freedom-loving peoples as set forth in the Declarations of the London World Trade Union Conference in February 1945. (Followed by a proclamation of the prime purposes of WFTU and its working principles.)

ARTICLES 1-2. Composition: Bona fide union organisations. The Executive Committee shall make decisions about admission.

ARTICLE 3. Structure: World Trade Union Congress; General Council; Executive Committee; Executive Bureau.

ARTICLE 4. World Trade Union Congress: Congress, the sovereign authority of WFTU, shall be convened biennially.

ARTICLE 5. General Council: Elected by the World Congress.

ARTICLE 6. Executive Committee and Executive Bureau: The Executive Committee shall be directly elected by the Congress and shall consist of 26 members, whose proportions shall be assessed on a territorial basis.

ARTICLE 7. General Secretary: The principle administrative officer. He shall answer to the Executive Committee, but may only be removed by the General Council.

ARTICLES 8-9. Auditors, Budget and Funds: Funds are to be provided by affiliation fees given on a total membership basis and paid quarterly.

ARTICLES 10-11. Internal Administration and Headquarters.

ARTICLE 12. Discipline: Process of expulsion.

ARTICLE 13. Trade Departments.

Substantial amendments to the Constitution were adopted by the Fourth World Trade Union Congress in 1957. The main changes were: the Congress was to meet every four years instead of every two, the General Council to meet every two years instead of every year, the Secretariat was to consist of the General Secretary and Secretaries, and to be the permanent executive body of WFTU, and the Trade Unions Internationals were to replace the original Trade Departments.

WORLD FEDERATION OF UNITED NATIONS ASSOCIATIONS—WFUNA

65 rue de Lausanne, Geneva, Switzerland.

Founded in 1946 as a people's movement supporting the United Nations.
Members: United Nations Associations in 60 countries.

ORGANISATION

PLENARY ASSEMBLY

The supreme organ of the Federation, responsible for policy. Meets in ordinary session every 18 months. Delegates appointed by member Associations and the International Student Movement for the United Nations.
President: ADRIAN PELT (Netherlands)

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Consists of 13 representatives of the International Member Associations and one member from the Student Movement for the United Nations. Responsible for the execution of policy decisions, administration and finance Chairman: Dr. FRANCO A. CASADIO (Italy).

First Vice-Chairman: S. P. MOLODTSOV (U.S.S.R.).

Second Vice-Chairman: Mrs RAJAN NEHRU (India).

SECRETARIAT

Secretary-General: JAN G. G. DE GEER (Sweden).

Responsible for the day-to-day administration and the general affairs of the Federation

AIMS AND ACTIVITIES

The Federation aims to be a people's movement for the United Nations and to co-ordinate and further the activities of the United Nations Associations. It also seeks to promote tolerance, understanding, solidarity and international co-operation among all people regardless of race, religion, sex or language, to contribute to peaceful co-operation among nations, to strive for security, justice, disarmament and the recognition of human rights and to improve economic and social conditions. It conducts seminars, regional conferences and study courses about the United Nations. There have been seminars for school teachers on methods of teaching about the United Nations in Cuba, France, Lebanon, India, El Salvador, Liberia,

Somalia, Philippines, Uruguay, Germany, Denmark, Italy, Pakistan, Australia, Ghana and Malaysia. Seminars on adult education have been held in Thailand and Rumania. There have been several study courses on the various specialised agencies of the United Nations. The Federation has formal consultative relations with the United Nations Social and Economic Council, UNESCO, The World Health Organization, the International Labour Organization, UNICEF, the World Meteorological Organization, the Food and Agriculture Organization and the International Atomic Energy Agency. These relations enable the Federation to present the suggestions and views of its members to the specialised agencies

BUDGET

Annual dues paid by Member Associations in proportion to the contributions paid by their governments to the United Nations are the main source of revenue. The balance is provided by donations from Foundations and private individuals, and special projects are financed by UNESCO.

To promote the study of problems relating to the form and physics of the earth; to initiate, facilitate and co-ordinate research into, and investigation of, those problems of geodesy and geophysics which require international co-operation; to provide for discussion, comparison and publication. The Union is a federation of 7 associations representing Geodesy, Seismology and Physics of the Earth's Interior, Physical Oceanography, Volcanology, Scientific Hydrology, Meteorology and Atmospheric Physics, Geomagnetism and Aeronomy, which meet at the General Assemblies of the Union. In addition, there are Joint Committees of the various associations either among themselves or with other unions. The Union organises scientific meetings and also sponsors various permanent services, the object of which is to collect, analyse and publish geophysical data; 59 mem. countries.

Tunnel Company 25 per cent; French Channel Tunnel Company and the International Road Federation, Paris, 25 per cent; the Suez Financial Company 25 per cent; and Technical Studies Inc. (U.S.A.) 25 per cent. Three economic research organisations have submitted a detailed traffic and revenue survey. Preliminary geological and geophysical surveys have been entrusted to British, French and American contractors including boreholes on land and at sea, bottom sampling reflection sonic tests. Various consulting engineers firms have prepared a civil engineering project of the tunnel: all the findings of the Group were presented in April 1960 to both the U.K. and the French governments in the form of a report on the technical and economic feasibility of the construction of the tunnel and the possibility of financing it from private funds. This is now under study by the experts of both governments, who reported in favour of construction in September 1963. Agreement has now been reached in principle.

ALBANIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Albania is a small state bordered by Yugoslavia to the north and east and by Greece to the south. The Adriatic Sea lies to the west. The climate is Mediterranean with dry, hot summers. The language is Albanian. About 65 per cent of the population are Muslims, 25 per cent are Greek Orthodox and the remainder Roman Catholic. The flag is red with a black, two-headed eagle. The capital is Tirana.

Recent History

General Enver Hoxha, who led the Albanian National Liberation Army against Germany and Italy assumed civil power in 1946. In the immediate post-war period, Albania was largely a dependency of Yugoslavia, the two countries establishing a monetary and customs union. Yugoslavia's influence and aid was gradually replaced by that of the Soviet Union, and after the breach between Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union in 1949, Albania—though physically isolated—remained a firm ally of the Soviet Union. Following the death of Stalin the alliance weakened, to be replaced by alignment with China. In 1961 diplomatic relations with the U.S.S.R. were broken off. Albania is a member of COMECON and the Warsaw Pact but has ceased, since 1962, to take an active part in the operations of either organisation.

Government

Albania is a People's Democracy. The supreme legislative organ is the National Assembly, elected for a four-year term by all over 18 years of age. The Assembly elects a Presidium, the President of which is the Head of State. The Council of Ministers is appointed, and can be dismissed, by the National Assembly. The Albanian Party of Labour works closely with the Government and is the main policy-making body. The Party at its Congress elects a Central Committee which elects a Presidium. These two organs are responsible for Party activities between Congresses.

Defence

Albania remains a titular member of the Warsaw Pact but has not attended recent meetings. Military service is compulsory and lasts for two years in the Army and for three years in the Air Force and the Navy. Total armed forces strength is 38,000, comprising Army 30,000, Navy 3,000, Air Force 5,000. Defence expenditure for 1965 totalled an estimated 2,875 million leks.

Economic Affairs

Albania's economy is based mainly on agriculture with sheep, wool, hides and skins, tobacco and wine as important commodities in her external trade. The Third Five Year Plan (1961-65) aimed to raise the value of industrial output to over fifty per cent of total production, but the country remains generally poor and backward. The extent of mineral resources is largely unknown but chrome, coal, copper, iron, methane gas and some asphalt and bitumen have been extracted. Albania's breach with the Soviet Union has meant less trade with the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe. In the last four years, trade with China has been greatly increased. A joint Sino-Albanian shipping company has been formed, and in June 1965 an agreement was signed, providing Albania with Chinese financial, technical and material aid.

Transport and Communications

There are some 105 kilometres (65 miles) of railway track connecting Tirana, Dërres and Elbasan. Roads are few and bad. Dërres is the biggest port.

Social Welfare

Albania provides social security and welfare insurance administered by the State.

Education

There are some 3,000 elementary and primary schools with about 370,000 children in attendance. Higher education on a small scale is provided. There is a state university at Tirana and five other higher educational institutes.

Tourism

There has been little tourism during the post-war years, but in 1962 the Government launched a campaign to build a tourist trade with Durrës as the main resort.

Sport

Football is the principal sport.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), May 1 (Labour Day), November 28 (Independence Day), November 29 (Liberation Day).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Lek divided into 100 quintars.
Exchange rate: 140 leks = £1 sterling
50 leks = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

THE Constitution of the People's Republic of Albania was adopted in March 1946 and amended by the National Assembly on July 4th, 1950. By its terms Albania is a People's Republic, the supreme legislative organ being the National Assembly, which is elected for a term of four years by all citizens over 18 years of age, on the basis of one deputy to every 8,000 persons. The National Assembly elects a Presidium, which consists of a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Secretary, and ten members, the President of the Presidium is President of the Albanian People's Republic. The Presidium convokes the National Assembly for sessions twice a year, and exercises the functions of the latter between sessions. Laws and amendments to the Constitution are made valid by a majority vote of the National Assembly.

The Council of Ministers is, according to the Constitution, appointed and removed from office by the National Assembly.

The country is divided into twenty-six regions for the purpose of local administration. The local organs of State power are the People's Councils, elected for a three-year term.

AUSTRIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Austria lies in Central Europe, between Switzerland, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Italy. The climate varies sharply owing to great differences in elevation. The mean annual temperature lies between 45° and 48°F. (7° and 9°C.). The population is 98 per cent German-speaking, with small Croat, Czech and Slovene-speaking minorities. About 90 per cent are Roman Catholics, over 6 per cent Protestants, with about 10,500 Jews. Flag: three horizontal bands—red, white and red. Capital: Vienna.

Recent History

Austria was annexed by Germany in 1938. After the Second World War the country was divided into four Zones occupied by forces of the U.S.A., U.S.S.R., Britain and France. By the State Treaty of 1955 Austria regained independence as a neutral state. In 1960 Austria joined the European Free Trade Association and in 1961 applied for Associate Membership of the European Economic Community. A long-standing dispute with Italy over the Southern Tyrol remained unsettled in February 1966.

Franz Jonas was elected to the Presidency in May 1965 following the death in February of Dr. Adolf Schärf.

Government

Austria is a federal republic divided into nine provinces. There is a bi-cameral parliamentary system. The first chamber, the Nationalrat (National Council), is elected on a basis of proportional representation by universal adult suffrage. The second chamber, the Bundesrat (Federal Council), is composed of representatives of the Provincial Assemblies. Members of the Nationalrat are elected for four years. The President, elected for six years, is the Head of State.

Defence

Austria is pledged to neutrality by the Austrian State Treaty of 1955. A small army and air force are maintained.

Economic Affairs

Agriculture and forestry are leading industries. The crops include wheat, maize, barley, oats, sugar beet, potatoes and fruit. Wine and beer are produced in quantity. About 35 per cent of the land is forest, timber being exported as raw material and as paper and pulp. Iron and steel are important exports and heavy machinery, textiles and chemicals are manufactured. Austria possesses iron ore and oil deposits, brown coal, magnesite, lead and some copper. Hydro-electric power resources are being further developed and electricity is exported to neighbouring countries. Austria's principal markets are the German Federal Republic and Italy.

Tourism is a valuable source of income, winter and summer. The Danube is popular with excursionists and foreign tourists and is important commercially. Most river trade is with the German Federal Republic (about 5 million tons annually). A small but increasing traffic passes between Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Yugoslavia. Barges of up to 1,000 tons can be accommodated.

Transport

Austria has a highly developed system of public transport by road, rail, air and river. The Danube provides Austria with an artery particularly important for the transport of timber, steel and other raw materials. A passenger service is maintained on the Upper Danube and between Vienna and the Black Sea. There are six modern airports. Railways total 6,000 kilometres (3,720 miles), roads 31,000 kilometres (19,347 miles), and commercial waterways 320 kilometres (200 miles).

Social Welfare

A health scheme compulsory for all employees is operated by insurance corporations controlled by the state.

Education

Education is compulsory for all between the ages of 6 and 14 with extensive facilities for further education. There are universities in Vienna, Graz, Innsbruck and Salzburg, and important technological institutes in Vienna and Graz.

Tourism

Austria's mountains, forests and valleys make it an ideal resort in both summer and winter. Celebrated beauty spots are the Salzkammergut Lake District, the Tyrol and Vorarlberg valleys and the Vienna woodlands. Vienna is a centre for music and art lovers and historians with its opera houses and concert halls, art galleries and museums. In winter thousands of visitors go to Austrian skiing resorts. Festivals are held all over Austria in the summer. Internationally famous are the Vienna Festival (to be held May 21st–June 19th, 1966) and the Salzburg Music Festival (July 30th–August 31st, 1966).

Receipts from Tourism totalled $503 million in 1964, and expenditure was $118 million.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Algeria, Belgium, Denmark, El Salvador, Finland, France, Federal German Republic, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malta, Monaco, Morocco, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, Peru, Portugal, San Marino, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey (European), United Kingdom.

Sport

Skiing and football are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), Easter Monday, May 1, Ascension Day, Corpus Christi, Whit Monday, August 15 (The Assumption), November 1 (All Saints' Day), December 8 (Immaculate Conception), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Schilling divided into 100 Groschen.

Notes: Schilling 1,000, 500, 100, 50, 20.

Coins: Schilling 25, 10, 5, 2, 1; Groschen 50, 10, 5, 2.

Exchange rate: 17.38 Schilling = £1 sterling

26 Schilling = $1 U.S.

AUSTRIA—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

THE CONSTITUTION

AUSTRIA is a democratic republic, having a president (Bundespräsident) elected directly by the people, and a two-chamber government. The republic is organised on the federal system, comprising the provinces (Länder) of Burgenland, Carinthia, Lower Austria, Upper Austria, Salzburg, Styria, Tyrol, Vorarlberg and Vienna. There is universal suffrage for men and women over the age of 20.

The National Council (Nationalrat) consists of 165 members, elected by universal direct suffrage, according to a system of proportional representation. It functions for a period of four years.

The Federal Council (Bundesrat) represents the federal provinces. Vienna sends 12 members, Lower Austria 10, Styria 7, Upper Austria 6, and the other provinces 3 each, making 50 in all. They are elected by the provincial governments, and function during the life of the provincial government which they represent.

For certain matters of special importance the two chambers meet together; this is known as a Bundesversammlung.

The President is the head of the State, and he holds office for six years. His powers include appointing ambassadors, conferring honours, etc. Although he is invested with special emergency powers, he normally acts on the authority of the Government, and it is the Government which is responsible to the National Council for governmental policy.

The Government consists of the Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, and the other ministers, who may vary in number. The Chancellor is chosen by the President from the party with the strongest representation in the newly elected National Council, and the other ministers are then chosen by the President on the advice of the Chancellor.

All new acts must be read and put to the vote in both houses. A new bill goes first to the National Council, where it usually has three readings, and secondly to the Federal Council, where it can be held up, but not vetoed.

The Constitution also provides for appeals by the Government to the electorate on specific points by means of referendum. There is further provision that if 200,000 or more electors present a petition to the Government, the Government must lay it before the National Council.

The Provincial Diet (Landtag) exercises the same functions in each province as the National Council does in the State. The members of the Landtag elect a government (Landesregierung) consisting of a provincial governor (Landeshauptmann) and his councillors (Landesräte). They are responsible to the Landtag.

The spheres of legal and administrative competence of both national and Provincial governments are clearly defined. The constitution distinguishes four groups:

1. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the State: e.g. foreign affairs, justice and finance,

2. Law-making is the responsibility of the State, administration is the responsibility of the provinces: e.g. elections, population matters, and road traffic.

3. The State lays down the rudiments of the law, the provinces make the law and administer it: e.g. charity, rights of agricultural workers, land reform.

4. Law-making and administration are the responsibility of the provinces in all matters not expressly assigned to the state: e.g. municipal affairs, building, theatres and cinemas.

BELGIUM

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Kingdom of Belgium lies in north-west Europe bounded to the north by the Netherlands, to the east by Luxembourg and Germany, to the south by France and to the west by the North Sea. The climate is temperate. Flemish, spoken in the North, and French, spoken in the South, are the official languages. The linguistic dividing line was fixed in July 1963 and runs approximately east-west through Brussels which is bi-lingual. Approximately 55 per cent of the population are Flemish-speaking, 45 per cent French-speaking and some 100,000 speak German. The population is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic. The flag carries three vertical stripes—black, yellow and red. The capital is Brussels.

Recent History

Since the Second World War, Belgium has emerged as one of the leaders of international co-operation in Europe. It is a founder member of the Benelux Customs Union, of Western European Union, the Council of Europe, the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, the European Coal and Steel Community and the European Economic Community (the Common Market). Belgium granted independence to her former colony, the Belgian Congo, in 1960 and the Trusteeship Territory of Ruanda-Urundi became independent in 1962.

The Government of Pierre Harmel took office in July 1965 and pledged its support for constitutional changes to end the language dispute which has worsened in the early part of the year.

Government

Legislative power is vested in the King, the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies. The Senate has three classes of members: directly elected, elected by Provincial Councils and co-opted. Members of the Chamber of Deputies are elected directly by universal adult suffrage. Proportional representation is used. There are nine provinces.

Defence

Belgium is a member of NATO and maintains an army, navy and air force. Military service lasts 12–15 months and the total strength of the armed forces is 107,000, comprising Army 83,500, Navy 4,500, Air Force 19,000. Defence estimates for 1966 total 26,000 million francs.

Economic Affairs

Because of its geographical position, Belgium is well situated for international trade and is one of the most successful importers and exporters in the world, maintaining a large merchant fleet. Brussels has become an important European capital and is the headquarters of the European Economic Community (the Common Market). Since 1921 Belgium and Luxembourg have formed an Economic and Customs Union (BLEU), and in 1960 the Benelux Treaty came into force. The country is the most densely populated in Europe and is mainly industrial. Industrial activity has concentrated in recent years in the increasingly populous Flemish areas of the North. Major exports are iron and steel products, machinery, chemical and pharmaceutical goods and textiles. Coal is the only important mineral. Agriculture provides Belgium with about four-fifths of its food. Clerical and professional groups have become more prominent with the rapidly growing influence of Brussels.

Transport and Communications

The Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Belges maintains 4,500 kilometres (2,802 miles) of main line railway. On the roads, buses and trams (Société Nationale des Chemins de Fer Vicinaux) are much used; and inland waterways are extensive. The modernised port of Antwerp handles a large tonnage of inland and ocean cargo. SABENA is one of the oldest and largest airlines in the world. Internal services are provided by helicopter. Belgium's merchant fleet comprised 100 ships, totalling 727,851 tons, in 1965.

Social Welfare

Social Welfare is administered by the Central National Office of Social Security. Contributions are paid by employers towards family allowances, health insurance and pensions. Since 1963 widows, orphans and invalids have received free medical treatment. Other patients are repaid most medical expenses. Unemployment benefit is organised through a common fund which also provides re-employment while maintaining the dependent family.

Education

Education is free and compulsory. Schools are maintained municipally with provincial and state aid. The Roman Catholic Church also plays a large part in the provision of education. There are Universities at Ghent, Brussels, Louvain and Liège.

Tourism

Ostend and other seaside towns attract many visitors. The forest-covered Ardennes is excellent hill-walking country. There are towns of rich historic and cultural interest such as Bruges, Ghent and Antwerp.

Receipts from tourism for the Belgium-Luxembourg Economic Union totalled $174 million in 1964, and expenditure was $242 million.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Andorra, Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bolivia, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Colombia, Costa-Rica, Cyprus, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Guatemala,

THE CONSTITUTION

THE BELGIAN CONSTITUTION has been considerably modified by amendment since its origin in 1830. Belgium is a constitutional monarchy. The central legislature consists of a Chamber of Representatives, and a Senate. The Chamber of Representatives consists of 212 members, who are elected for four years unless the Chamber is dissolved before that time has elapsed.

ELECTORAL SYSTEM

Members must be twenty-five years of age, and they are elected by secret ballot according to the system of Proportional Representation. Suffrage is universal for citizens of twenty-one years or over. (A Bill giving all women electoral franchise was approved in March 1948.) Up to 1894 only 2 per cent of the people had the right to vote. In that year manhood suffrage at the age of twenty-five was enacted, and plural voting was established on grounds of income, marriage, and educational qualifications. In 1921 the age-limit for the male vote was reduced to twenty-one. Since 1893 voting has been compulsory, and abstentions from voting have fallen to 6 per cent.

The Senate, or Second Chamber, is chosen in the following manner. It is composed of:

- (1) Half as many members as the Chamber of Representatives, elected directly by the same electors.
- (2) Members chosen by the Provincial Councillors, in the proportion of one for every 200,000 population.
- (3) Members co-opted by groups (1) and (2), up to half the number of group (2).

There are now 178 Senators.

All Senators must be over 40, with the exception of a small number of members of the Royal Family, who become Senators by right at the age of 18. Members are elected for four years.

THE CROWN

The King has the right to veto legislation, but he does not exercise it. His place in the Belgian Constitution is very similar to the position of the Crown in Great Britain. Though he is, according to the terms of the Constitution, upreme Head of the Executive, he in fact exercises his control through the Cabinet, which is responsible for all acts of government to the Chamber of Representatives. Though the King, according to the Constitution, appoints his own ministers, in practice, since they are responsible to the Chamber of Representatives and need its confidence, they are generally the choice of the Representatives. Similarly, the Royal initiative is in the hands of the ministry.

LEGISLATION

Legislation is introduced either by the Government or the members in the two Houses, and as the party complexion of both Houses is generally almost the same, measures passed by the Chamber of Representatives are usually passed by the Senate. Each House elects its own President at the beginning of the session, who acts as an impartial Speaker, although he is a party nominee. The Houses elect their own committees, through which all legislation passes. They are so well organised that through them the Legislature has considerable power of control over the Cabinet. Nevertheless, according to the Constitution (Art. 68) certain treaties must be communicated to the Chamber only as soon as the "interest and safety of the State permit." Further, the Government possesses an important power of dissolution which it uses; a most unusual feature is that it may be applied to either House separately or to both together (Art. 71).

Revision of the Constitution is to be first settled by an ordinary majority vote of both Houses, specifying the article to be amended. The Houses are then automatically dissolved. The new Chambers then determine the amendments to be made, with the provision that in each House the presence of two-thirds of the members is necessary for a quorum, and a two-thirds majority of those voting is required.

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION

The system of local government conforms to the general European practice of being based on a combination of central officials as the executive agent and locally elected councillors as the deliberating body. The areas are the provinces and the communes, and the latter are empowered by Art. 108 of the Constitution to associate for the purposes of better government.

BULGARIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Bulgaria, in the eastern Balkans, is bounded to the north by Rumania and to the east by the Black Sea. Turkey and Greece lie to the south and Yugoslavia to the west. The climate is one of fairly sharp contrasts between winter and summer. The language is Bulgarian. Most people adhere to the Bulgarian Orthodox Church and there is a substantial minority of Moslems. The flag carries three horizontal stripes of white, green and red with the white uppermost. The capital is Sofia.

Recent History

Bulgaria was declared a People's Republic in 1946, Dimitrov becoming Prime Minister in a government of the Fatherland Front. In 1949, Bulgaria became a founder-member of the Council for Mutual Economic Aid (COMECON) and in 1955 she joined the Warsaw Pact. After the death of Stalin the country entered into a more liberal period. Bulgaria was admitted to the United Nations in 1955. Following the expulsion from the Communist Party of the two previous Prime Ministers, Mr. Zhivkov became Prime Minister in November 1962.

Government

Bulgaria is a People's Democracy modelled on the Soviet Union. The National Assembly is the supreme organ of state power. It is elected for a four-year term and meets twice yearly. It appoints the Presidium, initiates legislation and elects the Prime Minister. The Council of Ministers is the supreme executive organ and is responsible to the National Assembly or to the Presidium between sessions. The Communist Party is the main policy-making organ and plays a leading part in government. Between Party Congresses work is carried on by the Central Committee and the Political Bureau.

Defence

With the U.S.S.R. and the communist states of East Europe, Bulgaria is a signatory of The Eastern European Mutual Assistance Treaty (The Warsaw Pact). National Service is for two years in the Army and up to three years in the Navy. Total armed forces strength is 152,000, comprising Army 125,000, Air Force 20,000 and Navy 7,000. Para-military forces number 15,000. Defence expenditure for 1965 totalled an estimated 231 million Leva

Economic Affairs

Bulgaria is a fertile country agriculturally collectivised. Chief crops are wheat, maize and barley. There is a substantial export of meat and dairy products to other member states of COMECON. Industry is publicly owned and being rapidly expanded. Coal, iron ore, copper, lead and zinc are mined. Some oil is extracted on the Black Sea coast. Foreign trade is a state monopoly.

Transport and Communications

Inland transport is by rail, road and waterway. There are about 3,600 miles of railway track and 6,200 miles of paved roads. The Danube is the main waterway used by some 97 vessels with an average tonnage of 990 tons. External services link Black Sea ports to Russia, the Mediterranean and West Europe. TABSO the state airline maintains services with East European capitals and other capitals in Europe and the Middle East

Social Welfare

Bulgaria provides comprehensive social security and state insurance for all workers.

Education

More than 1,540,000 pupils are receiving primary and secondary education. Bulgaria has one university, at Sofia, and 24 institutes of higher education.

Tourism

Black Sea resorts are very popular, visitors coming from Russia and East Europe. In 1962 the Government launched a campaign to attract tourists from the West and tourism, particularly from the United Kingdom, has increased. The tourist exchange rate is 5.6 Leva to £1 sterling.

Visas are required for nationals of all countries

Sport

Sport receives state encouragement, football being the most popular game.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), May 1, 2 (Labour Days), May 24 (Education Day), September 9, 10 (National Days), November 7 (October Revolution).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Leva which is divided into 100 Stotinki.

Notes: Leva 20, 10, 5, 2, 1.

Coins: Leva 1; Stotinki 50, 20, 10, 5, 2, 1.

Exchange rate: 3.28 Leva = £1 sterling

1.17 Leva = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

BULGARIA was formerly a monarchy, but on September 15th, 1946 King Simeon was deposed and Bulgaria was declared a Republic. On December 4th, 1947, a new Constitution was approved by the National Assembly. The following are its salient features:

Bulgaria is a People's Republic with a representative Government. All power derives from the people and belongs to the people, being exercised through freely elected representative organs and referenda.

All citizens of over 18 years of age, irrespective of sex, race, religion or social status, are eligible to vote and to be elected.

All representative organs of the State are elected by a general, equal, direct and secret ballot. Representatives are responsible to their electors and may be recalled.

SOCIAL-ECONOMIC ORGANISATION

National property is the main basis of the country's economic development. The State can itself manage or concede to another the management of the means of production at its disposal.

All mineral and other underground natural resources, forests, waters, railway and air communications, posts, telegraphs, telephones, and radio broadcasting are State (national) property. All economic activity is directed by the State, and co-ordinated by a State Economic Plan.

Private property and its inheritance together with private enterprise in economy, are recognised and protected by law, but no one can exercise his right of ownership to the detriment of the public interest, and private property may be subject to compulsory restrictions or expropriation for State or public use, and against fair indemnity.

Foreign and home trade are directed and controlled by the State. The State aids and fosters co-operative associations.

The State can nationalise fully or in part certain branches of individual enterprise or industry, trade, transport and credit, and may reserve to itself the exclusive right to produce or trade in any goods which are of particular importance to national economy. Private monopoly agreements and associations such as Cartels and Trusts are prohibited.

The land belongs to those who till it. The law determines how much land private persons may own, and large landed estates are not permitted.

Co-operative farms are fostered and aided by the State and enjoy its special protection. The State may also organise State farms. Labour is the object of the State's care in every aspect, and is directly assisted by the general economic and social policy, cheap credits, tax systems and co-operative associations.

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY

The National Assembly is the supreme organ of State power, and the only legislative organ of the People's Republic. It is composed of elected representatives of the Peoples—one for every 30,000 inhabitants. It is elected for a term of four years, and is convened at least twice a year. Representatives may be recalled before their term of office has expired. The powers of the National Assembly are very far-reaching, it elects the Presidium of the National Assembly, consisting of the President, two vice presidents, fifteen members and a secretary; passes all laws; elects the Prime Minister; decides on the holding of referenda; votes on the general economic plan of the country and the budget; decides questions of war and peace; grants amnesties; elects the President of the Supreme Court and the Public Prosecutor; and can amend the Constitution by a two-thirds majority of the whole Assembly.

Legislative initiative belongs to the Government and to the People's Representatives, who can introduce Bills. Half the total number of representatives constitutes a quorum, and decisions are then taken by a simple majority.

THE PRESIDIUM

The Presidium is invested with the following powers. to represent the Republic in its international relations; to appoint ministers plenipotentiary; to appoint the ministers indicated by the Prime Minister; to decide the date of a general election; to convene and adjourn the National Assembly; to ratify international treaties made by the Government; to exercise the right of pardon; to exercise general control over the activities of the ministers, by requiring and receiving reports, and in case of disagreement by referring back for further consideration the orders of individual ministers or of the Council of Ministers, and to repeal all decisions and directives of the Council of Ministers which do not conform with the Constitution and the Laws.

THE GOVERNMENT

The Government (Council of Ministers) is the supreme executive administrative organ of the State. It is composed of the Prime Minister and Deputy Prime Ministers of the Council of Ministers, the Ministers, the Chairmen of the State Planning Commission and of the Committee for State Control, and the chairmen of various Committees at the Council of Ministers. The Government is responsible and gives account to the National Assembly, or to the Presidium when the Assembly is not in session. Persons who are not Representatives may be members of the Government. The Government controls the administration of the State and of its branches, is responsible for carrying through the general economic plan, and for securing public order and the observance of the laws. The Council of Ministers may take under its direct control certain branches of the administration by forming for the purpose commissions, committees, etc., and services directly subordinate to it. The members of the Government are jointly responsible for the general policy of the Government, and are individually responsible for their respective actions.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT

The territory of the Republic is divided for administrative purposes into Municipalities and Counties, which are governed by Municipal and County People's Councils, elected by the local population for a period of three years. Their function is to implement all economic, social and cultural undertakings of local significance in conformity with the laws of the country. They prepare the economic plan and budget of the Municipality and the County within the framework of the State Economic Plan and the State Budget, and direct its execution. They are responsible for the correct administration of State property and economic enterprises in their areas, and for the maintenance of law and order. These councils report at least once a year to their electors on their activities.

BULGARIA—(THE CONSTITUTION, THE GOVERNMENT)

JUSTICE

The judicial authorities apply the law. Justice is independent and subject only to the law. Lay judges (Assessors) also take part in the dispensation of justice. Judges of all ranks and assessors are elected except in special cases fixed by law. Supreme judicial control over every kind of court is exercised by the Supreme Court of the People's Republic, which is elected by the National Assembly for a term of five years.

The Chief Prosecutor, who is also elected by the National Assembly for five years, and is answerable to it alone, has supreme supervision over the correct observance of the law by Government organs, officials, and all citizens. It is his particular duty to attend to the prosecution and punishment of crimes which are detrimental to the national and economic interests of the Republic or affect its independence.

THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF CITIZENS

All citizens are equal before the law. No privileges based on national origin, religion, sex or property are recognised. All preaching of racial, national or religious hatred is punishable by law.

Women have equal rights with men in all spheres, including equal pay for equal work. The State pays special attention to the needs of mothers and children. Marriage and the family are under State protection, although only civil marriage is legally valid. Children born out of wedlock have equal rights with legitimate offspring.

Labour is recognised as the basic factor of public and economic life. All citizens have the right to work, and it is their duty to engage in socially useful labour, according to their abilities. Holidays, limited working hours, pensions and medical treatment are guaranteed.

All citizens have the right to education, which is secular and democratic. Elementary education is free and compulsory. National minorities have the right to be educated in their own tongue, and to develop their national culture, although the study of Bulgarian is compulsory.

The Church is separate from the State. Citizens have freedom of religion and conscience. However, misuse of the Church and religion for political ends for the formation of political organisations with a religious basis is prohibited.

Citizens are guaranteed freedom of speech and of the Press, secrecy of correspondence, inviolability of persons and dwellings, and the right of association and assembly, except for fascist and certain other meetings.

Military service is compulsory for all male citizens

CYPRUS

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of Cyprus is an island in the eastern Mediterranean about 60 miles south of Turkey. It is the third largest Mediterranean island after Sicily and Sardinia. Climate is mild though snow falls in the mountainous south-west between December and March. About four-fifths of the people speak modern Greek and the remainder Turkish. The Greek-speaking community adhere to the Greek Orthodox Church while most of the Turks are Muslims. The flag is white with a map of Cyprus in gold in the centre garlanded by olive leaves. The capital is Nicosia.

Recent History

Cyprus was created a British Crown Colony in 1925. In 1955 Greek-Cypriot nationalists seeking independence and unification with Greece resisted British rule by force. The civil war ended in 1959 with the granting of independence. Unification with Greece and the Turkish-Cypriot demand for partition were both rejected. Britain remained in certain agreed areas to be used as military bases. Cyprus was admitted to the United Nations in 1960 and joined the Commonwealth in 1961. Serious fighting broke out between Greek and Turkish Cypriots in late 1963 and in April 1964 a United Nations Peace-Keeping force was set up and a UN Mediator appointed. As yet, no proposed solution has been acceptable to both Greek and Turkish communities.

The fifteen Turkish members of the House of Representatives have not attended sessions since January 1964, and in their absence a number of measures have been passed which, without amending the Constitution, make temporary provisions for the administration of the country (see below, Constitution)

Government

According to the Constitution, legislative authority is vested in a House of Representatives elected by adult universal suffrage for a five-year term and consisting of 35 members from the Greek community and 15 from the Turkish community. The House exercises authority on all matters save those reserved for the Communal Chambers. These bodies, elected by both communities, deal with communal affairs such as religion, teaching and culture. Executive authority is vested in the President who is Greek-speaking and the Vice-President who is from the Turkish community. They are assisted by a Council of Ministers composed of seven Greek and three Turkish members.

Note: Turkish participation in government and legislation was withdrawn in January 1964. In March 1965 the Greek Communal Chamber was abolished and its functions taken over by the Ministry of Education.

Defence

The Armed Forces and Security Police have been greatly increased since 1963 but no figures are available. Military service in the National Guard is compulsory for all Greek-Cypriots between the ages of eighteen and fifty.

Economic Affairs

The economy is based mainly on agriculture. Principal crops are wheat, barley, vegetables and citrus fruits. Vines are cultivated and wine produced. Mining provides two-thirds of the island's exports. The most important minerals are cupreous and iron pyrites, asbestos, copper and gypsum. There is no heavy industry and manufactures are limited to food processing, textiles and woodworking. The Five-Year Plan 1962-66 originally aimed to raise the gross national product to more than £100 million but its execution has been retarded by political and military troubles.

Transport and Communications

There are no railways in Cyprus. Towns and villages are linked by asphalted roads with frequent bus services. The three main ports are Famagusta, Limassol and Larnaca which provide cargo and passenger services to Greek and other Mediterranean ports. There is an international airport at Nicosia.

Social Welfare

There is compulsory social insurance for specified groups employed under contract. Others gainfully employed can join voluntarily. Benefits cover unemployment, sickness, maternity, widows, orphans, old age and death.

Education

Elementary education is free but not compulsory. Secondary schools charge fees but the state-aided ones are obliged to provide a fifth of their places free. There are about 760 elementary schools and 58 secondary schools.

Tourism

There are many beaches providing excellent sea bathing during the long, dry summer. Skiing is possible in the mountains during winter.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Federal Republic of Germany, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, San Marino, Sweden, Switzerland, United Kingdom and British Commonwealth, U.S.A.

Sport

Football, hockey, gymnastics and athletics are the most popular sports.

Public Holidays

The main public holidays are: January 1 (New Year's Day), January 6 (Epiphany), Good Friday, Easter Monday, August 16 (Independence Day), December 25 (Christmas Day), December 26 (Boxing Day).

CYPRUS—(INTRODUCTORY SURVEY, STATISTICAL SURVEY)

Weights and Measures

Weights and measures follow the standard British weights and measures (see under United Kingdom). The Metric System may also be used. There is also a special internal system as follows:

1 pic = $\frac{1}{4}$ yard; 1 oke = 2.8 pounds; 1 kilé = 8 Imperial gallons.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Cyprus Pound which is divided into 1,000 mils.

Notes: £5, £1, 500 mils, 250 mils.

Coins: Mils 100, 50, 25, 5, 3.

Exchange rate: £1 Cyprus = £1 sterling

357.1 mils = $1 US

THE CONSTITUTION

SUMMARY

(The Constitution entered into force on August 16th, 1960, on which date Cyprus became an Independent Republic. In March 1961 Cyprus was accepted as a member of the Commonwealth.)

ARTICLE I

The State of Cyprus is an independent and sovereign Republic with a presidential régime, the President being Greek and the Vice-President being Turkish, elected by the Greek and the Turkish Communities of Cyprus respectively as hereinafter in this Constitution provided.

ARTICLES 2-5

The Greek Community comprises all citizens of the Republic who are of Greek origin and whose mother tongue is Greek or who share the Greek cultural traditions or who are members of the Greek Orthodox Church.

The Turkish Community comprises all citizens of the Republic who are of Turkish origin and whose mother tongue is Turkish or who share the Turkish cultural traditions or who are Moslems.

Citizens of the Republic who do not come within the above provisions shall, within three months of the date of the coming into operation of this Constitution, opt to belong to either the Greek or the Turkish Community as individuals, but, if they belong to a religious group, shall opt as a religious group and upon such option they shall be deemed to be members of such Community.

The official languages of the Republic are Greek and Turkish.

The Republic shall have its own flag of neutral design and colour, chosen jointly by the President and the Vice-President of the Republic.

The Greek and the Turkish Communities shall have the right to celebrate respectively the Greek and the Turkish national holidays.

ARTICLES 6-35

Fundamental Rights and Liberties

ARTICLES 36-53

President and Vice-President

The President of the Republic as Head of the State represents the Republic in all its official functions; signs the credentials of diplomatic envoys and receives the credentials of foreign diplomatic envoys; signs the credentials of delegates for the negotiation of international treaties, conventions or other agreements, signs the letter relating to the transmission of the instruments of ratification of any international treaties, conventions or agreements; confers the honours of the Republic.

The Vice-President of the Republic as Vice-Head of the State has the right to be present at all official functions, at the presentation of the credentials of foreign diplomatic envoys; to recommend to the President the conferment of honours on members of the Turkish Community which recommendation the President shall accept unless there are grave reasons to the contrary. The honours so conferred will be presented to the recipient by the Vice-President if he so desires.

The election of the President and the Vice-President of the Republic shall be direct, by universal suffrage and secret ballot, and shall, except in the case of a by-election, take place on the same day but separately.

The office of the President and of the Vice-President shall be incompatible with that of a Minister or of a Representative or of a member of a Communal Chamber or of a member of any municipal council including a Mayor or of a member of the armed or security forces of the Republic or with a public or municipal office.

The President and Vice-President of the Republic are invested by the House of Representatives.

The President and the Vice-President shall hold office for a period of five years.

The Executive power is ensured by the President and the Vice-President of the Republic.

The President and the Vice-President of the Republic in order to ensure the executive power shall have a Council of Ministers composed of seven Greek Ministers and three Turkish Ministers. The Ministers shall be designated respectively by the President and the Vice-President of the Republic who shall appoint them by an instrument signed by them both.

The decisions of the Council of Ministers shall be taken by an absolute majority and shall, unless the right of final veto or return is exercised by the President or the Vice-President of the Republic or both, be promulgated immediately by them.

The executive power exercised by the President and the Vice-President of the Republic conjointly consists of:

Determining the design and colour of the flag.

Creation or establishment of honours.

Appointment of the members of the Council of Ministers.

Promulgation by publication of the decisions of the Council of Ministers.

Promulgation by publication of any law or decision passed by the House of Representatives.

CYPRUS—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Appointments and termination of appointments as in Articles provided.

Institution of compulsory military service.

Reduction or increase of the security forces.

Exercise of the prerogative of mercy in capital cases.

Remission, suspension and commutation of sentences.

Right of references to the Supreme Constitutional Court and publication of Court decisions.

Address of messages to the House of Representatives.

The executive power exercised by the President consists of.

Designation and termination of appointment of Greek Ministers.

Convening and presiding of the meetings of the Council of Ministers.

Right of final veto on Council decisions and on laws or decisions of the House of Representatives concerning foreign affairs, defence or security.

Right of recourse to the Supreme Constitutional Court.

Publication of the communal laws and decisions of the Greek Communal Chamber.

Prerogative of mercy in capital cases.

General direction and control of the government of the Republic and the direction of general policy.

Foreign affairs, defence and security.

Co-ordination and supervision of all public services.

Supervision and disposition of property belonging to the Republic.

Consideration of Bills to be introduced to the House of Representatives by a Minister.

Making of any order or regulation for the carrying into effect of any law as provided by such law.

Consideration of the Budget of the Republic to be introduced to the House of Representatives

ARTICLES 61-85

House of Representatives

The legislative power of the Republic shall be exercised by the House of Representatives in all matters except those expressly reserved to the Communal Chambers.

The number of Representatives shall be fifty.

Provided that such number may be altered by a resolution of the House of Representatives carried by a majority comprising two-thirds of the Representatives elected by the Greek Community and two-thirds of the Representatives elected by the Turkish Community.

Out of the number of Representatives 70 per cent shall be elected by the Greek Community and 30 per cent by the Turkish Community separately from amongst their members respectively, and, in the case of a contested election, by universal suffrage and by direct and secret ballot held on the same day.

The term of office of the House of Representatives shall be for a period of five years.

The President of the House of Representatives shall be a Greek, and shall be elected by the Representatives elected by the Greek Community, and the Vice-President shall be a Turk and shall be elected by the Representatives elected by the Turkish Community.

ARTICLES 86-111

Communal Chambers

The Greek and the Turkish Communities respectively shall elect from amongst their own members a Communal Chamber.

The Communal Chambers shall, in relation to their respective Community, have competence to exercise legislative power solely with regard to the following.

All religious, educational, cultural and teaching matters.

Personal status; composition and instances of courts dealing with civil disputes relating to personal status and to religious matters

Imposition of personal taxes and fees on members of their respective Community in order to provide for their respective needs.

UNITED NATIONS PEACE-KEEPING FORCE IN CYPRUS

UNFICYP

P.O. Box 1642, Nicosia, Cyprus

Set up for three months in March 1964 (subsequently extended to March 1966) to keep the peace between the Greek and Turkish communities and resolve outstanding issues between them.

Commander (Acting): Brig. A. J. WILSON, C B E, M C. (United Kingdom).

Mediator: (Vacant).

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

Supreme Court: Nicosia.

President: Hon. Mr. Justice M. ZEKIA.

Judges: Hon. Mr. Justice G. S. VASSILIADES, Hon. Mr. Justice M. A. TRIANTAFYLIDIS, Hon. Mr. Justice M. N. MUNIR, Hon. Mr. Justice J. P. JOSEPHIDES.

The Supreme Court is the final appellate court in the Republic and the final adjudicator in matters of constitutional and administrative law, including recourses on conflict of competence between state organs on questions of the constitutionality of laws, etc. It deals with appeals from Assize Courts and District Courts as well as from the decisions of its own single judges when exercising original jurisdiction in certain matters such as prerogative orders of habeus corpus, mandamus, certiorari, etc., and in admiralty and certain matrimonial causes.

Assize Courts and District Courts:

As provided by the Constitution a law was passed in 1960 providing for the establishment, jurisdiction and powers of courts of civil and criminal jurisdiction, i.e. of six District Courts and six Assize Courts.

Ecclesiastical and Communal Courts:

There is a Greek Orthodox Church tribunal having exclusive jurisdiction in matrimonial causes between members of the Greek Orthodox Church. Appeals go from this tribunal to the appellate tribunal of the Church.

Civil disputes relating to personal status of members of the Turkish Community are dealt with by two Communal Courts. There is also a communal appellate court to which appeals may be made from the decisions of the courts of first instance.

Supreme Council of Judicature: Nicosia

The Supreme Council of Judicature is composed of the Attorney-General, the President and the two senior Judges of the Supreme Court, the senior District Court President, the senior District Court Judge and a practising advocate of at least twelve years experience.

It is responsible for the appointment, promotion, transfer, etc., of the judges exercising civil and criminal jurisdiction in the District Courts and the Assize Courts.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Czechoslovak Socialist Republic lies in Central Europe between 48°-51° N latitude and 12°-23° E longitude. Its neighbours are Poland to the north, the German Democratic Republic to the north-west, the German Federal Republic in the west, Austria to the south west, Hungary to the south east and the U.S.S.R. in the extreme east. The climate is continental with warm summers and cold winters, average mean temperature 9°C (49°F). Czech and Slovak are the official languages. About 70 per cent of the people are Roman Catholics, 15 per cent Protestants and the remainder unstated. The flag is divided horizontally red and white with a blue triangle superimposed. The capital is Prague.

Recent History

The 1946 post-war elections returned the Communists as the strongest single party and in 1948 they assumed full power. The country aligned itself with the Soviet-led East European bloc and joined the Council of Mutual Economic Aid (COMECON) and the Warsaw Pact military alliance. Government followed a rigid Stalinist pattern until 1963 when a new Government under Josef Lenart was formed. Antonín Novotný was re-elected for a five year term as President in November 1964.

Government

Czechoslovakia consists of the Slav nations, the Czechs and the Slovaks, united in one state and sharing equal rights.

The Head of State is the President, elected for a five-year term by the National Assembly, to whom he is accountable. The Government is the supreme executive organ and also responsible to the National Assembly which is elected for a four-year term by universal suffrage over the age of 18.

The national organ of state power in Slovakia is the Slovak National Council, elected in a manner similar to the National Assembly and it combines both legislative and executive powers.

Defence

Czechoslovakia is a member of the Eastern European Mutual Assistance Treaty, the "Warsaw Pact". Military service is compulsory for two years, and service with the reserve lasts until the age of 50 years. The total strength of the Regular Forces is about 235,000 men, Army 200,000, Air Force 35,000. The Border and Security Guards number 35,000. Defence estimates totalled 10,270 million koruna in 1965.

Economic Affairs

Industry is state-owned and was organised until 1963 on a basis of Five-Year Plans. Until 1961 heavy industry received precedence but under the third Five-Year Plan, 1961-65, greater stress was laid on light industry. This Plan had to be abandoned due to economic difficulties. Czechoslovakia is an important engineering nation with a considerable output of motor cars and motor cycles. Other important industries are glass, beer, ceramics and textiles.

Agriculture has been collectivised and about 90 per cent of the land is in Agricultural Co-operatives, State Farms or Communal Enterprises. Under the third Five-Year Plan an increase in farm production of 23 per cent over 1960 was forecast, but it is not known whether this increase has been attained (February 1966).

Transport and Communications

About 60 per cent of all freight traffic is carried by the railways and the main lines are being electrified. Roads carry about 70 per cent of the passenger transport. The Elbe and Danube are navigable and Czechoslovakia's overseas trade passes through East German, Polish and Black Sea ports. Civil aviation is important and there are about 60 regular internal services.

Social Welfare

The Social Security system includes health and pensions insurance. Health insurance is administered through the Trade Unions and the National Insurance Commissions. Old Age pensions are administered by the State Social Security Board. All persons are eligible for pensions and family allowances are granted.

Education

Education is free and compulsory and consists of a basic nine-year schooling from the ages of 6-15 years, from which children may go either to secondary school or vocational or apprentice training centres. Secondary education lasts for three years and includes about 40 per cent of the children from the basic schools. After matriculation students may graduate to the universities, of which there are 9, or join a Technological Institute.

Tourism

Czechoslovakia has magnificent scenery, with winter sports facilities. Prague is the best known of the historic cities and there are famous castles and cathedrals and numerous resorts and spas, notably Mariánské Lázně (Marienbad) and Karlovy Vary (Karlsbad). 3,600,000 tourists visited Czechoslovakia in 1964.

Visas are required by nationals of all countries.

Sport

There are more than 7,000 sports clubs with a membership of over 1½ million. Football is the most popular game, followed by ice hockey, basket ball, handball and volleyball. Other recreations include athletics, canoeing, motor-cycle racing and winter sports.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), Easter Monday, May 1 (Labour Day), May 9 (Liberation Day), October 28 (Nationalisation Day), December 25, 26 (Christmas).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The principal unit of currency is the koruna (kčs), which is divided into 100 heller.

Notes: 100, 50, 25, 10 Kčs

Coins: 1 Kčs, 25, 10, 5, 3, 1 heller

Exchange rate: 20.16 Kčs. = £1 sterling
7.20 Kčs. = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

(Proclaimed on July 11th, 1960)

The Czechoslovak Socialist Republic is a unitary State of two fraternal nations possessing equal rights, the Czechs and the Slovaks.

According to the Constitution, work in the interests of the community is a primary duty and the right to work a primary right of every citizen. All citizens have equal rights and equal duties with out regard to nationality and race. Remuneration for workdone is based on its quantity, quality and social importance. Men and women have equal status. All citizens have the right to health protection, education and leisure after work including paid holidays. Other rights include: freedom of expression, assembly, inviolability of the person, the home, mails, etc. Everyone has the right to profess any religious faith or to be without religious conviction.

The economic foundation of the State is the Socialist economic system which excludes every form of exploitation of man by man. The means of production are socially owned and the entire national economy is directed by plan. Socialist ownership includes both national property such as mineral wealth, the means of industrial production, banks, etc., and co-operative property. The land of members of agricultural co-operatives remains the personal property of the individual members, but is jointly farmed by the co-operative. Small private enterprises based on the labour of the owner himself and excluding exploitation of another's labour power are permitted. Personal ownership of consumer goods, family houses and savings derived from labour is inviolable. Inheritance of such personal property is guaranteed.

The supreme organs of state power are the National Assembly, consisting of 300 deputies elected for a term of four years, the President of the Republic, elected by the National Assembly for a term of five years and accountable to it, and the Government.

The National Assembly is the supreme legislative body which enacts the Constitution and other laws and also supervises their implementation. The President of the Republic is the head of the State. He represents the State in foreign relations, negotiates and ratifies international treaties, summons and prorogues sessions of the National Assembly, signs laws, appoints and recalls the Premier and other members of the Government and is Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces. The Government is the supreme executive organ and comes under the constant supervision of the National Assembly. Although there is a system of three supreme organs of state power there is no question of a division of this power among them although there is a division of work.

The national organ of state power in Slovakia is the Slovak National Council elected in a manner similar to that of the National Assembly. The Slovak National Council combines legislative and executive powers, because this elected body itself elects commissions headed by commissioners who have the task of ensuring the implementation of laws adopted by the Slovak National Council. The standing of the Slovak national organs is determined on the one hand by the unity of the State, which is reflected in the existence of joint supreme organs, joint citizenship, a common Constitution, etc., and on the other hand by the powers of the Slovak National Council to deal independently with matters of a national and regional nature within the limits of the Constitution.

National committees are the organs of popular self-government in the regions, districts and localities. They rely on the active participation of the working people of their area and co-operate with other organisations of the people. They direct local economic and cultural development, ensure the protection of socialist ownership and the maintenance of socialist order in society, see to the implementation and observance of laws, etc. They take part in drafting and carrying out the State plan for the development of the national economy and draw up their own budgets which form a part of the State budget. Commissions elected by the national committees are charged with various aspects of public work and carry out their tasks with the aid of a large number of citizens who need not be elected members of the national committees.

All representative bodies are elected, and the right to elect is universal, equal and by secret ballot. Every citizen has the right to vote on reaching the age of 18, and is eligible for election on reaching the age of 21. Deputies must maintain constant contacts with their constituents, heed their suggestions and be accountable to them for their activity. A member of any representative body may be recalled by his constituents at any time.

The execution of justice is vested in elected and independent people's courts. Benches are composed of professional judges and of judges who carry out their function in addition to their regular employment. Both categories are equal in making decisions. Judges are independent in the discharge of their office and bound solely by the legal order of the socialist State. The supervision of the observance of the laws and other legal regulations by public bodies and by individual citizens rests with the Office of the Procurator. The Procurator-General is appointed and recalled by the President of the Republic and is accountable to the National Assembly.

The Czechoslovak Constitution does not restrict itself to laying down a system of state organs but also sets forth the principles by which the life of society is to be guided. It is not just a Constitution of the State but a constitution for the whole of society. In economic, political and cultural life, in questions of social security and many other spheres it emphasises the participation of citizens in the administration of public affairs and even transfers a number of functions that have hitherto pertained to state organs to the working people and their voluntary organisations.

The guiding force in society and in the State is the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia, a voluntary militant alliance of the most active and politically conscious citizens. It is associated with the other political parties, the Trade Union Movement and other people's organisations in the National Front of Czechs and Slovaks.

DENMARK

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Kingdom of Denmark consists of the peninsula of Jutland, the islands of Zealand, Funen and Bornholm and about 400 smaller islands between the North Sea and the Baltic. Outlying possessions are Greenland, and the Faroe Islands in the North Atlantic. Denmark is low-lying and the climate is temperate with cold winters. The language is Danish. The Danish Lutheran Church is the established Church and there are small communities of Roman Catholic, Baptists and Jews. The flag carries a white cross on a red background. The capital is Copenhagen.

Recent History

In 1948 Home Rule was granted to the Faroe Islands. In 1953 Greenland became an integral part of the Danish Kingdom. In the same year the Constitution of Denmark was radically revised. The major provisions of the new Constitution were to allow female succession to the throne, abolition of the Upper House and changes in the Court of the Realm, definition of Ministerial responsibility and changes in the franchise, including provision for referenda.

Denmark is a founder member of NATO and in 1953 joined the Nordic Council. In 1961 she joined the European Free Trade Association. Following a General Election in September 1964, the Social Democrats, who had previously led a Coalition, formed a minority Government.

Government

Denmark is a constitutional monarchy, legislative power being vested in the King in conjunction with the Folketing (Parliament). Executive power is exercised by the King through his ministers. The Folketing is unicameral, elected by and from Danish subjects of 21 and over. The Faroe Islands and Greenland are each represented by two members.

Defence

Denmark maintains an Army of 33,000 men, a Navy of 8,000 men and an Air Force of 10,000 men. The Army consists of field forces and a home guard. The Navy has frigates, escort vessels, submarines, minelayers, minesweepers and fast patrol craft. The Air Force has fighters and fighter-bombers of American and British types. National Service lasts for 14-16 months. Denmark has been a member of NATO since 1949. Defence estimates total 1,709 million Kroner for 1965-66.

Economic Affairs

Danish agriculture is internationally competitive and is organised on a co-operative basis. Farmers and small-holders are grouped in co-operative societies which market the produce and conduct scientific research. The co-operatives are united in national federations. Butter, eggs and bacon are the main exports, for which the principal markets are the United Kingdom and the German Federal Republic. Major industries are shipbuilding, engineering, chemicals, brewing, fishing and food processing. Danish-designed furniture, porcelain, textiles and metal goods are finding a widening foreign market. Denmark maintains a considerable merchant fleet. It is a member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA).

Transport and Communications

There are about 2,500 miles of railways, half of them operated by the State and the rest by companies in which the State or public authorities have a financial interest. There is an extensive bus service using many bridges. Ferry services connect the principal islands and Jutland and there are services to Sweden, Norway and Germany. Danish ships, local and ocean-going, have a tonnage of 2½ million.

Social Welfare

Denmark was one of the first countries to introduce State social welfare schemes. Principal services cover unemployment, sickness, old age and disability and are financed largely by State subventions. Health insurance is compulsory for all citizens over 21.

Education

Education is compulsory and free at the primary stage between 7 and 14 years. Secondary education is also given free as, on the whole, is university and other higher education. There are two universities, a technical university and a network of Folk High Schools for adults, chiefly young farmers.

Tourism

Tourism is organised by the National Travel Association of Denmark. Receipts from tourism totalled $164 million in 1964, and expenditure was $135 million.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Algeria, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Canada, Cyprus, Finland, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Iceland, Ireland, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Kenya, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Malaysia, Mexico, Monaco, Morocco, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Norway, Pakistan, Portugal, San Marino, Sierra Leone, Singapore, South Africa, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Tanzania, Thailand, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, Uganda, United Kingdom and Dependencies, U.S.A., Yugoslavia, and all countries of South and Central America.

Sport

Practically all sport is amateur. The national game is football. Rowing, swimming and sailing are popular.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, Easter Monday, Store Bededag (fourth Friday after Easter), Ascension Day, Whit Monday, June 5 (Constitution Day), December 25, 26 (Christmas).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The monetary unit is the Krone which is divided into 100 øre.

Notes: Kroner 500, 100, 50, 10, 5.

Coins: Kroner 5, 2, 1; Øre 25, 10, 5, 2, 1.

Exchange rate: 19.3 Kroner = £1 sterling
6.6 Kroner = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

The main features of the 1953 Constitution are:

- (1) Changes in the succession law allowing a daughter to succeed to the throne in the absence of sons;
- (2) Abolition of the Upper House and the introduction of single-chamber government;
- (3) The enfranchisement of Greenland, which will in future send two members to Parliament; and
- (4) Clause 20, which enables Parliament to assign some of its rights to an international body in the interest of international co-operation

The form of government is a limited (constitutional) monarchy. The legislative authority rests jointly with the Crown and Parliament. Executive power is vested in the Crown, and the administration of justice is exercised by the courts. The King can constitutionally "do no wrong". He exercises his authority through the Ministers appointed by him. The Ministers are responsible for the government of the country. The Constitution establishes the principle of Parliamentaryism under which individual Ministers of the whole Cabinet must retire when defeated in Parliament by a vote of no confidence.

The King acts on behalf of the State in international affairs. Except with the consent of the Parliament, he cannot, however, take any action which increases or reduces the area of the Realm or undertake any obligation, the fulfilment of which requires the co-operation of the Parliament or which is of major importance. Nor can the King, without the consent of the Parliament, terminate any international agreement which has been concluded with the consent of the Parliament.

Apart from defence against armed attack on the Realm or on Danish forces, the King cannot, without the consent of the Parliament, employ military force against any foreign power.

The Parliament is an assembly consisting of not more than 179 members, two of whom are elected in the Faroe Islands and two in Greenland. It is called the Folketing. Danish nationals, having attained 21 years of age, with permanent residence in Denmark, have the franchise and are eligible. The members of the Folketing are elected for four years. Election is by a system of proportional representation, with direct and secret ballot on lists in large constituencies. A bill adopted by the Folketing may be submitted to referendum, when such referendum is claimed by not less than one-third of the members of the Folketing and not later than three days after the adoption. The bill is void if rejected by a majority of the votes cast, representing not less than 30 per cent of all electors.

OUTLYING POSSESSIONS

THE FAROE ISLANDS

The Faroes are a group of islands in the Atlantic north-west of Scotland and constitute a self-governing community within the Danish State. There are 19 islands altogether, 18 of which are inhabited. The capital is Thorshavn. A separate administration governs the Faroe Islands. The highest authority of this administration is the county prefect; there are, besides, a magistrate and a chief constable, together with 6 sheriffs who attend to local police matters. Local administration and legislation are carried out by a publicly elected body called the "Lagting", which has 29 members. The Islands elects two members to the Danish Folketing.

The economy of the islands depends chiefly on fishing and in March 1964 the islands' fishing limits were extended to 12 miles.

GREENLAND

Greenland is the largest island in the world, with a total area of 840,000 square miles.

All matters relating to the administration of Greenland come under the Ministry for Greenland. There are also, in West Greenland, a National Council (Landsraad) of which the Government Representative is Chairman, and a number of Local Councils. Other parts of Greenland have local administration by sheriffs. Under the 1953 Constitution, Greenland became part of the Danish Kingdom and has two seats in the Folketing.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Socialdemokratiske Parti (The Social-Democratic Party): Rosenørns Allé 14, Copenhagen V; founded in 1871, finds its chief adherents among the industrial and farm workers; it took office in 1924, fell at the General Election in 1926, but assumed office again, in coalition with the Radical-Liberal Party, in 1929. The Social Democrat, VILHELM BÜHL, headed the coalition government from May to November 1945. The Party assumed office again in 1947-50, 1953-57. From 1957-64 it headed a coalition government, from 1964 a minority government. The Party's political creed is a modified form of the ordinary continental Socialist programme. Number of members 260,000. Chair. JENS OTTO KRAG; Sec. NIELS MATTHIASSEN. Party organs: Aktuelt and Verdens Gang (monthly).

Leading members in the Folketing: JENS OTTO KRAG, POUL HANSEN, PER HÆKKERUP.

Venstre (The Moderate-Liberal Party): Hammerichsgade 14, Copenhagen V; founded in 1870, split and reunited several times up to 1905. Its main adherents have been farmers who, from 1870 to 1901, in opposition to the Conservative Party, successfully vindicated the predominance of the Folketing over the Landsting, placing the Liberals in power 1901-09, 1910-13, 1920-24, 1926-29, 1945-47, and 1950-53 in a Liberal-Conservative-Coalition Government. At the last General Election the Party received 547,770 votes, distributed almost equally between the rural districts, the towns and built-up areas, so that it may claim to have adherents in all classes of the community. The main planks in the Party platform are free trade, a minimum of State interference, and the adoption, in matters of social expenditure, of a modern general social security system. Pres. Federation of Liberal-Democratic Associations and Chair Parliamentary Group POUL HARTLING; Sec.-Gen. of the Party KURT SORENSEN. Chief party organs: Fyns Tidende, Vestkysten, Frederiksborg Amts Avis, Venstres Maanedssblad (monthly), Den Liberale Venstretalmanak (yearbook).

Konservative Folkeparti (Conservative Party): Nyropsgade 19, Copenhagen; founded in 1916, replacing the former Højreparti (the Right-Wing or old Conservative Party). Between 1870 and 1901 the old Conservative Party formed a number of cabinets, mainly under J. B. S. ESTRUP. The Party advocates free initiative and the maintenance of private property, but recognises the right of the State to take action in periods of depression and for the sake of the whole country. From 1950-53 formed coalition government with the Moderate-Liberal Party. The parties still co-operate. Chair. POUL SORENSEN; Gen. Sec. MOGENS OLSEN; Political Spokesman POUL MÖLLER. Chief party organs: Berlingske Tidende, Aarhuus Stiftstidende, Fyens Stiftstidende.

Leading members in the Folketing: POUL SORENSEN, POUL MÖLLER, K. THESTRUP, H. C. TOFT, OVE WEIKOP, HANNE BUDTZ.

Socialistisk Folkeparti (Socialist People's Party): Folketinget, Christiansborg, Copenhagen; f. 1959, with Socialist aims, by AKSEL LARSEN, formerly Chairman of the Communist Party; Chair. AKSEL LARSEN; Sec. FREDDY BRECH. Chief party organ: S.F. (weekly).

Leading members in the Folketing: AKSEL LARSEN, MORTEN LANGE.

Radikale Venstre Parti (The Social Liberal Party): Det radikale Venstres kontor, Christiansborg Slot, Copenhagen K.; founded in 1905. Its chief adherents are the smallholders and certain intellectuals. It held office

DENMARK—(POLITICAL PARTIES, JUDICIAL SYSTEM, RELIGION)

1909-10, 1913-20, and has taken part in the coalition governments of 1929-40, 1940-43, May-Nov. 1945, May 1957-Nov. 1960, and the government formed in Nov. 1960. The main points in its programme are reduction of armaments, supporting peace, international co-operation and the United Nations, arbitration in conflicts between workers and employers, the establishment of small-holdings, social reform, and State control of trusts and monopolies. Advocates strengthening of private enterprise. Chair. SØREN BJERREGAARD. Chief party organs: Politiken, Skive Folkeblad, Holbak Amts Venstreblad, Roskilde Tidende.

Leading members in the Folketing: KARL SKYTTE, HILMER BAUNSGAARD, K. HELVEG PETERSEN.

De Uafhængige (Independent Party): Christiansborg Slot, Copenhagen K.; f. 1953; Chair. IVER POULSEN.

Danmarks Retsforbund: Ved Stranden 8, Copenhagen K., made its appearance in active politics about 1920. Its programme is closely allied to Henry George's teachings (single tax, free trade). Chair. KISTIAN KRISTENSEN. Party Organ: Ret og Frihed (monthly).

Danmarks Kommunistiske Parti (Danish Communist Party): Copenhagen K., Dr. Tvaergade 3; f. 1919. At the 1932 election it was for the first time represented in the Folketing, and in May 1945 for the first time in a (coalition) government. Leader KNUD JESPERSEN. Chief party organ Land og Folk.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

In Denmark the judiciary is independent of the Government. Judges are appointed by the Crown on the recommendation of the Minister of Justice and cannot be dismissed except by judicial sentence.

The judicial system in Denmark consists of three "Instances": (1) Supreme Court (a President and 14 judges); (2) two High Courts, "Landsretter", the Eastern for the islands, the Western for Jutland; (3) about 100 "lower courts" spread over the country. Appeal from the lower courts is to the High Court. Important cases, however, are commenced in the High Court, from which the Supreme Court is the court of appeal. There is a special Maritime and Commercial Court in Copenhagen, consisting of a President and Vice-President with legal training and a number of commercial and nautical assessors; and also a Permanent Arbitration Court, which deals with labour disputes.

An Ombudsman is appointed by Parliament, after each general election, and is concerned with defects in the laws or administrative provisions. He must render to Parliament an annual report.

CIVIL AVIATION

Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS):

On February 8th, 1951, an agreement was signed at Oslo, merging the three Scandinavian national airlines—Denmark's DDL, Norway's DNL, and Sweden's ABA—into one company, the Consortium Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS). The agreement was retroactively effective from October 1st, 1950.

The Board of the new consortium consists of the Boards of the three holding partners, with two from each country having voting power. Chairman of the Board is JENS CHR. HAUGE (Norway). The Management consists of a President, KARL NILSSON, and two Executive Vice-Presidents, KNUD HAGRUP and ARNE WICKBERG.

FINLAND

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

Finland is a republic in Northern Europe bordered in the far north by Norway and in the north-west by Sweden. The U.S.S.R. runs along the whole of the eastern frontier. Its western and southern shores are washed by the Baltic. The climate varies sharply with warm summers and very cold winters. The annual mean temperature is 5.2° (41°F) in Helsinki and -0.4° (31°F) in the far north. The official languages are Finnish and Swedish. Most people belong to the Evangelical Lutheran Church of Finland but there are small groups of Roman Catholics, Methodists and Jews. The flag carries a blue cross on a white background. The capital is Helsinki.

Recent History

After the Second World War Finland ceded a tenth of its territory to the U.S.S.R. and agreed to pay reparations. In 1948 President Paasikivi and Stalin signed the Finno-Soviet Pact of Friendship, which was extended for twenty years from 1956, when the U.S.S.R. relinquished its military post on the Porkkala promontory. In every other respect Finland, has maintained a policy of strict neutrality, refusing to be compromised by its proximity to the U.S.S.R. In 1961 Finland joined the Nordic Council, and in the same year became an associate member of the European Free Trade Association (EFTA).

Government

Parliament is unicameral and elected for four years by the system of proportional representation. The President of the Republic is voted for a six-year term by an electoral college elected by the citizens. The Council of State is the executive organ and members are appointed by the President.

Defence

The armed forces of Finland are restricted by treaty to about 42,000, mostly conscripts serving up to 11 months.

Economic Affairs

Finland's economy is based on coniferous forests which cover 70 per cent of the land. The country is one of the world's leading producers of timber, pulp and paper. The manufacture of furniture is important. Since the war the metal-working industry has prospered and Finnish-designed cutlery and other tableware are finding a widening market. Cereal and dairy farming are highly mechanised.

Transport and Communications

There are about 5,474 kilometres (3,421 miles) of railways connecting Finland with Sweden and the Soviet Union. The railways are mainly state operated, most of the trains being run on diesel engines. There are about 110,000 kilometres (68,750 miles) of highway, but traffic is relatively light. Extensive use is made of the canals which connect Finland's innumerable lakes, these waterways are navigable by ships for over 4,000 miles. The Water Bus is a characteristic feature. In winter, water communications are paralysed by the severe frost, but ice-breakers are used to open up channels for commercial traffic.

Social Welfare

The Ministry of Social Affairs administers social security to cover unemployment, sickness, retirement and family benefits. Medical care is private but state hospitals charge only moderate fees.

Education

Primary education is compulsory and free between the ages of 7 and 15. In 1964 there were 550 secondary schools with 249,327 pupils, and five universities including a Swedish-speaking one at Turku.

Tourism

Vast forests, numerous lakes, magnificent unspoilt scenery and the possibility of holiday seclusion are the chief attractions for the visitor to Finland. In the towns there are medieval churches and castles. The winter sports season is prolonged, and visitors enjoy trying the famous Finnish Sauna Bath. In 1963, 660,000 tourists visited Finland, mostly from Sweden.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Australia, Belgium, Canada, Denmark, France, German Federal Republic, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Japan, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, United Kingdom, U.S.A.

Sport

The national game is pesäpallo, a form of baseball. Football, skiing, skating and ice hockey are popular sports.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), Epiphany, Good Friday, Easter Monday, May 1 (Labour Day), Ascension Day, Whit Monday, Midsummer Day, All Saints' Day, December 6 (Independence Day), December 25 and 26 (Christmas).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Mark = 100 Penni. On January 1, 1963 the currency was reformed and the new Mark is equal to 100 of the old.

Notes: Mark 100, 50, 10, 5, 1.

Coins: Mark 1. Penni 50, 20, 10, 5, 1.

Exchange rate: 9.02 Mark = £1 sterling
3.22 Mark = $1 U.S.

THE CONSTITUTION

ON December 6th, 1917, the Finnish Parliament approved a manifesto proclaiming the independence of the country. Recognition of this independence was received in December 1917 from the Russian Government; in January 1918 from France, Sweden and Germany; and later from other countries.

During the interregnum that ensued, the Parliament, having decided to exercise temporarily the authority belonging to the ruler of the State, on May 18th, 1918, authorised the Chairman of the Senate to exercise sovereign power, and thereafter, on December 12th, 1918, elected a Regent. Opinions were divided as to whether Finland should be a kingdom or a republic. But at the election of representatives in March 1919 the parties voting for a republic received a substantial majority, and a republican form of government was approved and proclaimed on July 17th, 1919.

THE PRESIDENT OF THE REPUBLIC

The President is elected for a term of six years by 300 electors. The electors are chosen by public vote in the same manner as members of the Parliament.

The President of the Republic is entrusted with supreme executive power. Legislative power is exercised by the Parliament in conjunction with the President. Both the President and the Parliament have the right of initiative in legislation. Laws passed by the Parliament are submitted to the President, who has the right of veto. If the President has not within three months assented to a law, this is tantamount to a refusal of his assent. A law to which the President has not given his assent will nevertheless come into force, if the Parliament elected at the next general election adopts it without alteration.

The President has also the right to issue decrees in certain events, to convene extraordinary meetings of the Parliament, to dissolve the Parliament, to order new elections to the Parliament, to grant pardons and dispensations, and to grant Finnish citizenship to foreigners.

The President's approval is necessary in all matters concerning the relations of Finland with foreign countries, and he is Supreme Commander of the Defence Forces of the Republic.

Such decisions as are arrived at by the President are made by him in the Council of State, except in matters pertaining to military functions and appointments.

GOVERNMENT

For the general administration of the country there is a Council of State, appointed by the President, and composed of the Prime Minister and the Ministers of the various Ministries. The members of the Council, who must enjoy the confidence of the Parliament, are collectively responsible to it for their conduct of affairs, and for the general policy of the administration; while each member is responsible for the administration of his own Ministry.

To this Council or Cabinet the President can appoint supernumerary Ministers, who serve either as assistant Ministers or as Ministers without portfolio. The President also appoints a Chancellor of Justice, who must see that the Council and its members act within the law. If in his opinion the Council of State or an individual Minister has acted in a manner contrary to the law, the Chancellor of Justice must report the matter to the President of the Republic or in certain cases to the Parliament. In this way Ministers are rendered legally as well as politically responsible for their official acts.

THE PARLIAMENT (EDUSKUNTA-RIKSDAG)

The Parliament is an assembly of one chamber with 200 members elected for four years by universal suffrage on a system of proportional representation, every man and woman who is twenty-one or over being entitled to vote. It assembles yearly without special summons. The ordinary duration of a session is 120 days, but the Parliament can at its pleasure extend or shorten its session. The opposition of one-third of the members can cause ordinary legislative proposals to be deferred till after the next elections. Discussion of questions relating to the constitutional laws belongs also to the Parliament, but for the settlement of such questions certain delaying conditions (fixed majorities) are prescribed. The Parliament, besides taking part in legislation, has the right to determine the estimates, which, though not technically a law, are published as a law.

Furthermore, the Parliament has the right, in a large measure to supervise the administration of the Government. For this purpose it receives special reports, the Government also submitting an account of its administration every year, and a special account of the administration of national finances. The Chancellor of Justice submits a yearly report on the administration of the Council of State. The Parliament elects five auditors, who submit to it annual reports of their work, to see that the estimates have been adhered to. The Parliament also appoints every four years an Ombudsman (Solicitor-General), who submits to it a report, to supervise the observance of the laws.

The Parliament has the right to interrogate the Government. It can impeach a member of the Council of State or the Chancellor of Justice for not having conformed to the law in the discharge of his duties. Trials are conducted at a special court, known as the Court of the Realm, of which one-half of the members, that is to say, six, are elected by the Parliament for a term of three years.

FRANCE

INTRODUCTORY SURVEY

Location, Climate, Language, Religion, Flag, Capital

The Republic of France is situated in Western Europe and bounded to the north by the English Channel, to the east by Belgium, Luxembourg, the German Federal Republic, Switzerland and Italy, to the south by the Mediterranean and Spain and to the west by the Atlantic Ocean. Climate is temperate throughout most of the country but in the south it is of the Mediterranean type with warm summers and mild winters. The language is French. Out of a total population of some 46 million, 12 million are Roman Catholics. There are numerous other Christian, Jewish and Muslim communities. The flag carries three vertical bands of blue, white and red. The capital is Paris.

Recent History

After the liberation in 1945 there was unicameral parliamentary government under General de Gaulle. In 1946, following a referendum, the Fourth Republic was set up with the legislature composed of the Constituent Assembly and the Council of the Republic. General de Gaulle retired from public life. Twenty-six cabinets were formed during the life of the Fourth Republic which came to an end in 1958 with an insurrection in Algiers and the threat of civil war facing the country. Invited by President Coty to form a government, General de Gaulle was invested as Prime Minister to rule by decree for six months. In September 1958, by an overwhelming majority in a referendum, a new constitution introducing important changes was adopted and the Fifth Republic came into being with General de Gaulle as its President. In 1962 General de Gaulle's decision to have future Presidents of the Republic elected by direct universal suffrage was taken as a breach of the Constitution. The Government was defeated by a no-confidence vote and resigned. A referendum to decide the Presidential issue and the elections for a new government were held in the autumn of 1962. They resulted in victory for de Gaulle and his supporters. In the Presidential election of December 1965, President de Gaulle was returned to power at the second ballot.

Overseas, France granted independence to her former colonies after the Second World War. In Indo-China, after prolonged fighting, Laos became independent in 1949, Viet-Nam in 1954 and Cambodia in 1955. In Africa most of the French colonies in the West and Equatorial regions attained independence between 1960 and 1961. Algeria became independent after a war lasting seven years, from 1955 to 1962, between French forces and the Front de Libération Nationale (FLN) based on Tunis. In 1962 an agreement was finally signed at Evian between France and the Algerian nationalist leaders. French forces were withdrawn from Algeria and nearly all the many French settlers decided to leave the country. France has, however, continued to give Algeria economic aid.

All the former colonies in Africa, excepting only Guinea, continue their close association with France, many as members of the French Community. They receive considerable economic aid and technical assistance from France as well as a guaranteed market for their exports. Much aid is also channelled to these territories through the Overseas Development Fund of the European Economic Community (the Common Market).

In 1958 France became a founder member of the European Economic Community, and in 1963 President de Gaulle and Dr. Adenauer signed the Franco-German Pact. France has been following an increasingly independent policy while remaining in partnership with her allies, and in 1964 she recognised the People's Republic of China. Since July 1965, French opposition to the proposals for financing and administering the Common Agricultural Policy of the European Common Market has restricted the progress of that organisation.

Government

According to the Constitution of 1958 the executive is composed of the President of the Republic and of a Council of Ministers headed by the Prime Minister. Legislative power is exercised by Parliament composed of a National Assembly and a Senate. The National Assembly is elected by direct adult suffrage for a term of five years. Senators are elected for a nine-year term by an electoral college. One third of the Senate membership is renewable every three years. By an amendment following a national referendum in 1962 the President is henceforth elected not by an electoral college as hitherto but by direct universal suffrage for seven years. Local government was reformed in March 1964, when the country was divided into 21 administrative regions containing 88 departments.

Defence

French military policy is decided by the Supreme Defence Council. Under a decree of January 1964, President de Gaulle, as Chairman of the Council, assumed direct responsibility for command of the French nuclear forces in case of atomic warfare. Military service is compulsory and lasts for fifteen months. Liability for service lasts from the twentieth to the thirty-seventh year. At the end of 1965, the strength of the armed forces stood at 557,000, comprising: Army 350,000, Navy 72,500, and Air Force 122,500. Nuclear tests have been carried out in the Sahara. France is a member of NATO. Defence estimates total 22,015 million francs for 1966.

Economic Affairs

France is West Europe's leading agricultural country with more than three-quarters of its area under cultivation. Cereals, fruit, vegetables, livestock, butter and cheese are abundantly produced, and national consumption of these commodities is very high. French wines are an important export. More than half of the land is worked by owner-occupiers, and a third by tenant-farmers.

Since the Second World War French industry has expanded extremely rapidly. In 1946 the Commissariat Général du Plan (General Planning Office) was set up, the rôle of which is to co-ordinate projects initiated by other departments. Subsidiary to the General Commissariat are the Modernisation Commissions which elaborate individual plans. Every major field of industry is affected by the Commissions and particular progress has been made in electronics, transport, the processing industries and housing. To encourage expansion the Government offers public loans, tax relief and development incentives in certain areas.

The principal French industries are steel (over 17 million tons per year), motor vehicles (over a million passenger cars a year), aircraft, mechanical and electrical engineering, textiles and chemicals. Large quantities of coal and iron ore are mined. France possesses valuable oil interests in the Sahara (now a part of Algeria) and an agreement between France and Algeria to exploit these deposits was signed in July 1965.

France has greatly increased its exports in recent years and also supplies much technical advice, sending experts all over the world to advise on development projects. It provides massive grants and loans to underdeveloped countries.

A wide variety of services such as fashion, catering and tourism play an important part in the French economy.

Transport

After the last war France had to reconstruct much of its railway system. Now there are about 40,000 kilometres of lines and French trains hold world records for speed. There are some 600,000 kilometres of highway, including 80,000 kilometres of national roads. A network of motorways is under construction and in 1965 the tunnel under Mont Blanc, linking France and Italy, was officially opened. Air France, one of the world's largest airlines, maintains many internal and external services. The French merchant marine totals over 800 vessels of 5,000,000 tons.

Social Welfare

France has evolved an outstandingly comprehensive system of social security which is compulsory for all wage-earners, and latterly for farmers. State insurance requires contributions from both employers and employees, and provides for sickness, unemployment, maternity, disability through industrial accident and substantial allowances for large families. War veterans receive pensions and certain privileges, and widows the equivalent of three months' salary and a pension.

Education

Education is compulsory and free from the age of 6 to 14. An "observation" period begins at the eleventh year to decide the most appropriate type of education to be followed by the pupil after the fourteenth year. This is given either in the classical, modern or technical lycées leading to university study or in the collèges which prepare skilled workers and office staff. There are 19 universities.

Tourism

France draws tourists from all over the world. Paris is famous for its boulevards, historic buildings, theatres, art treasures, fashion houses and restaurants, and for its many music halls and night clubs. The Mediterranean and Atlantic coasts and the French Alps are the most popular tourist resorts but holidaymakers are to be found during the summer nearly everywhere. There are many ancient towns, the châteaux of the Loire, the fishing villages of Brittany and Normandy, and thousands of other attractive places. In 1964, 10,250,000 tourists visited France.

Receipts from tourism were $808 million in 1964, and expenditure totalled $785 million.

Visas are not required for nationals of the following countries: Algeria, Argentina, Andorra, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Brazil, Cameroon, Canada, Central African Republic, Ceylon, Chad, Chile, Colombia, Congo (Brazzaville), Costa Rica, Cuba, Cyprus, Dahomey, Denmark, Dominican Republic, Ecuador, El Salvador, Finland, Gabon, German Federal Republic, Greece, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, Ireland, Ivory Coast, Italy, Jamaica, Japan, Laos, Liechtenstein, Luxembourg, Madagascar, Malaysia, Mali, Mauritania, Mexico, Monaco, Morocco, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Niger, Norway, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Peru, Portugal, San Marino, Senegal, South Africa, Singapore, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Togo, Trinidad and Tobago, Tunisia, Turkey, United Kingdom and Dependencies, U.S.A., Upper Volta, Uruguay, Vatican.

Sport

There is a National Sports Council to advise the Government on policy regarding sport. The State makes its contribution to the development of popular education and sport through the High Commission for Youth and Sports. There are 20,000 sports clubs with over two million members. Football and rugby are the two most popular games.

Public Holidays

January 1 (New Year's Day), Easter Monday, May 1 (Labour Day), Ascension Day, Whit Monday, July 14 (Fall of the Bastille), August 15 (The Assumption), November 1 (All Saints' Day), November 11 (Armistice Day), December 25 (Christmas Day).

Weights and Measures

The Metric System is in force.

Currency and Exchange Rates

The currency unit is the Franc divided into 100 centimes.

Notes: Francs 500, 100, 50, 10, 5.

Coins: Francs, 5, 1.

Exchange rate: 13.69 Francs = £1 sterling

THE CONSTITUTION OF THE FIFTH REPUBLIC

Adopted by referendum, September 28th, 1958.

Preamble

The French people hereby solemnly proclaims its attachment to the Rights of Man and to the principles of national sovereignty as defined by the Declaration of 1789, confirmed and complemented by the Preamble of the Constitution of 1946.

By virtue of these principles and that of the free determination of peoples, the Republic hereby offers to the Overseas Territories that express the desire to adhere to them, new institutions based on the common ideal of liberty, equality and fraternity and conceived with a view to their democratic evolution.

Article 1. The Republic and the peoples of the Overseas Territories who, by an act of free determination, adopt the present Constitution thereby institute a Community.

The Community shall be based on the equality and the solidarity of the peoples composing it.

Chapter I.—On Sovereignty

Article 2. France shall be a Republic, indivisible, secular, democratic and social. It shall ensure the equality of all citizens before the law, without distinction of origin, race or religion. It shall respect all beliefs.

The national emblem shall be the tricolor flag, blue, white and red.

The national anthem shall be the "Marseillaise".

The motto of the Republic shall be "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity".

Its principle shall be government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

Article 3. National sovereignty belongs to the people, which shall exercise this sovereignty through its representatives and through the referendum.

No section of the people, nor any individual, may attribute to themselves or himself the exercise thereof.

Suffrage may be direct or indirect under the conditions stipulated by the Constitution. It shall always be universal, equal and secret.

All French citizens of both sexes who have reached their majority and who enjoy civil and political rights may vote under the conditions to be determined by law.

Article 4. Political parties and groups may compete for votes. They may form and carry on their activities freely. They must respect the principles of national sovereignty and of democracy.

Chapter II.—The President of the Republic

Article 5. The President of the Republic shall see that the Constitution is respected. He shall ensure, by his arbitration, the regular functioning of the public powers, as well as the continuity of the State.

He shall be the guarantor of national independence, of the integrity of the territory, and of respect for Community agreements and for treaties.

Article 6. The President of the Republic shall be elected for seven years by direct universal suffrage. The method of implementation of the present article shall be determined by an organic law.

Article 7. The President of the Republic shall be elected by an absolute majority of the votes cast. If such a majority is not obtained at the first ballot, a second ballot shall take place on the second following Sunday. Those who may stand for the second ballot shall be only the two candidates who, after the possible withdrawal of candidates with more votes, have gained the largest number of votes on the first ballot.

Voting shall begin at the summons of the Government. The election of the new President of the Republic shall take place not less than twenty days and not more than thirty-five days before the expiration of the powers of the President in office. In the event that the Presidency of the Republic has been vacated for any reason whatever, or impeded in its functioning as officially declared by the Constitutional Council, after the matter has been referred to it by the Government and which shall give its ruling by an absolute majority of its members, the functions of the President of the Republic, with the exception of those covered by Articles 11 and 12 hereunder, shall be temporarily exercised by the President of the Senate and, if the latter is in his turn unable to exercise his functions, by the Government.

In the case of vacancy or when the impediment is declared to be final by the Constitutional Council, the voting for the new President shall take place, except in case of force majeure officially noted by the Constitutional Council, not less than twenty days and not more than thirty-five days after the beginning of the vacancy or of the declaration of the final nature of the impediment.

Articles 49 and 50 and Article 89 of the Constitution may not be put into application during the vacancy of the Presidency of the Republic or during the period between the declaration of the final nature of the impediment of the President of the Republic and the election of his successor.

Article 8. The President of the Republic shall appoint the Premier. He shall terminate the functions of the Premier when the latter presents the resignation of the Government.

At the suggestion of the Premier, he shall appoint the other members of the Government and shall terminate their functions.

Article 9. The President of the Republic shall preside over the Council of Ministers.

Article 10. The President of the Republic shall promulgate the laws within fifteen days following the transmission to the Government of the finally adopted law.

He may, before the expiration of this time limit, ask Parliament for a reconsideration of the law or of certain of its articles. This reconsideration may not be refused.

Article 11. The President of the Republic, on the proposal of the Government during [Parliamentary] sessions, or on joint motion of the two Assemblies published in the Journal Officiel, may submit to a referendum any bill dealing with the organisation of the public powers, entailing approval of a Community agreement, or providing for authorisation to ratify a treaty that, without being contrary to the Constitution, might affect the functioning of the institutions.

When the referendum decides in favour of the bill, the President of the Republic shall promulgate it within the time limit stipulated in the preceding article.

Article 12. The President of the Republic may, after consultation with the Premier and the Presidents of the Assemblies, declare the dissolution of the National Assembly.

General elections shall take place twenty days at the least and forty days at the most after the dissolution.

The National Assembly shall convene by right on the second Thursday following its election. If this meeting takes place between the periods provided for ordinary sessions, a session shall, by right, be opened for a fifteen-day period.

There may be no further dissolution within a year following these elections.

Article 13. The President of the Republic shall sign the ordinances and decrees decided upon in the Council of Ministers.

He shall make appointments to the civil and military posts of the State.

Councillors of State, the Grand Chancellor of the Legion of Honour, Ambassadors and Envoys Extraordinary, Master Councillors of the Audit Office, prefects, representatives of the Government in the Overseas Territories, general officers, rectors of academies [regional divisions of the public educational system] and directors of central administrations shall be appointed in meetings of the Council of Ministers.

An organic law shall determine the other posts to be filled in meetings of the Council of Ministers, as well as the conditions under which the power of the President of the Republic to make appointments to office may be delegated by him to be exercised in his name.

Article 14. The President of the Republic shall accredit Ambassadors and Envoys Extraordinary to foreign powers; foreign Ambassadors and Envoys Extraordinary shall be accredited to him.

Article 15. The President of the Republic shall be commander of the armed forces. He shall preside over the higher councils and committees of national defence.

Article 16. When the institutions of the Republic, the independence of the nation, the integrity of its territory or the fulfilment of its international commitments are threatened in a grave and immediate manner and the regular functioning of the constitutional public powers is interrupted, the President of the Republic shall take the measures required by these circumstances, after official consultation with the Premier and the Presidents of the Assemblies, as well as with the Constitutional Council.

He shall inform the nation of these measures in a message.

These measures must be prompted by the desire to ensure to the constitutional public powers, in the shortest possible time, the means of accomplishing their mission. The Constitutional Council shall be consulted with regard to such measures.

Parliament shall meet by right.

The National Assembly may not be dissolved during the exercise of exceptional powers.

Article 17. The President of the Republic shall have the right of pardon.

Article 18. The President of the Republic shall communicate with the two Assemblies of Parliament by means of messages, which he shall cause to be read, and which shall not be the occasion for any debate.

Between sessions, the Parliament shall be convened especially to this end.

Article 19. The acts of the President of the Republic, other than those provided for under Articles 8 (first paragraph), 11, 12, 16, 18, 54, 56 and 61, shall be countersigned by the Premier and, should circumstances so require, by the appropriate ministers.

Chapter III.—The Government

Article 20. The Government shall determine and conduct the policy of the nation.

It shall have at its disposal the administration and the armed forces.

It shall be responsible to the Parliament under the conditions and according to the procedures stipulated in Articles 49 and 50.

Article 21. The Premier shall direct the operation of the Government. He shall be responsible for national defence. He shall ensure the execution of the laws. Subject to the provisions of Article 13, he shall have regulatory powers and shall make appointments to civil and military posts.

He may delegate certain of his powers to the ministers.

He shall replace, should the occasion arise, the President of the Republic as the Chairman of the councils and committees provided for under Article 15.

He may, in exceptional instances, replace him as the chairman of a meeting of the Council of Ministers by virtue of an explicit delegation and for a specific agenda.

Article 22. The acts of the Premier shall be countersigned, when circumstances so require, by the ministers responsible for their execution.

Article 23. The functions of Member of the Government shall be incompatible with the exercise of any parliamentary mandate, with the holding of any office, at the national level, in business, professional or labour organisations, and with any public employment or professional activity.

An organic law shall determine the conditions under which the holders of such mandates, functions or employments shall be replaced.

The replacement of the members of Parliament shall take place in accordance with the provisions of Article 25.

Chapter IV.—The Parliament

Article 24. The Parliament shall comprise the National Assembly and the Senate.

The deputies to the National Assembly shall be elected by direct suffrage.

The Senate shall be elected by indirect suffrage. It shall ensure the representation of the territorial units of the Republic. Frenchmen living outside France shall be represented in the Senate.

Article 25. An organic law shall determine the term for which each Assembly is elected, the number of its members, their emoluments, the conditions of eligibility, and the system of ineligibilities and incompatibilities.

It shall likewise determine the conditions under which, in the case of a vacancy in either Assembly, persons shall be elected to replace the deputy or senator whose seat has been vacated until the holding of new complete or partial elections to the Assembly concerned.

Article 26. No Member of Parliament may be prosecuted, searched for, arrested, detained or tried as a result of the opinions or votes expressed by him in the exercise of his functions.

No Member of Parliament may, during parliamentary session, be prosecuted or arrested for criminal or minor offences without the authorisation of the Assembly of which he is a member except in the case of flagrant delicto.

When Parliament is not in session, no Member of Parliament may be arrested without the authorisation of the Secretariat of the Assembly of which he is a member, except in the case of flagrant delicto, of authorised prosecution or of final conviction.

FRANCE—(THE CONSTITUTION)

The detention or prosecution of a Member of Parliament shall be suspended if the Assembly of which he is a member so demands.

Article 27. Any compulsory vote shall be null and void.

The right to vote of the members of Parliament shall be personal.

The organic law may, under exceptional circumstances, authorise the delegation of a vote. In this case, no member may be delegated more than one vote.

Article 28. Parliament shall convene by right in two ordinary sessions a year.

The first session shall begin on the first Tuesday of October and shall end on the third Friday of December.

The second session shall open on the last Tuesday of April; it may not last longer than three months.

Article 29. Parliament shall convene in extraordinary session at the request of the Premier or of the majority of the members comprising the National Assembly, to consider a specific agenda.

When an extraordinary session is held at the request of the members of the National Assembly, the closure decree shall take effect as soon as the Parliament has exhausted the agenda for which it was called, and at the latest twelve days from the date of its meeting.

Only the Premier may ask for a new session before the end of the month following the closure decree.

Article 30. Apart from cases in which Parliament meets by right, extraordinary sessions shall be opened and closed by decree of the President of the Republic.

Article 31. The members of the Government shall have access to the two Assemblies. They shall be heard when they so request.

They may call for the assistance of Commissioners of the Government.

Article 32. The President of the National Assembly shall be elected for the duration of the legislature. The President of the Senate shall be elected after each partial re-election [of the Senate].

Article 33. The meetings of the two Assemblies shall be public. An in extenso report of the debates shall be published in the Journal Officiel.

Each Assembly may sit in secret committee at the request of the Premier or of one-tenth of its members.

Chapter V.—On Relations Between Parliament and the Government

Article 34. Laws shall be voted by Parliament.

They shall establish the regulations concerning:

Civil rights and the fundamental guarantees granted to the citizens for the exercise of their public liberties; the obligations imposed by the national defence upon the person and property of citizens;

Nationality, status and legal capacity of persons, marriage contracts, inheritance and gifts;

Determination of crimes and misdemeanours as well as the penalties imposed therefor; criminal procedure; amnesty, the creation of new juridical systems and the status of magistrates;

The basis, the rate and the methods of collecting taxes of all types; the issue of currency.

They likewise shall determine the regulations concerning

The electoral system of the Parliamentary Assemblies and the local assemblies;

The establishment of categories of public institutions;

The fundamental guarantees granted to civil and military personnel employed by the State.

The nationalisation of enterprises and the transfers of the property of enterprises from the public to the private sector.

Laws shall determine the fundamental principles of:

The general organisation of national defence,

The free administration of local communities, of their competencies and their resources;

Education;

Property rights, civil and commercial obligations,

Legislation pertaining to employment, unions and social security

The financial laws shall determine the financial resources and obligations of the State under the conditions and with the reservations to be provided for by an organic law.

Laws pertaining to national planning shall determine the objectives of the economic and social action of the State.

The provisions of the present article may be detailed and supplemented by an organic law.

Article 35 Parliament shall authorise the declaration of war.

Article 36 Martial law shall be decreed in a meeting of the Council of Ministers

Its prorogation beyond twelve days may be authorised only by Parliament.

Article 37. Matters other than those that fall within the domain of law shall be of a regulatory character.

Legislative texts concerning these matters may be modified by decrees issued after consultation with the Council of State. Those legislative texts which shall be passed after the entry into force of the present Constitution shall be modified by decree only if the Constitutional Council has stated that they have a regulatory character as defined in the preceding paragraph Article 38 The Government may, in order to carry out its programme, ask Parliament for authorisation to take through ordinances, during a limited period, measures that are normally within the domain of law.

The ordinances shall be enacted in meetings of Ministers after consultation with the Council of State. They shall come into force upon their publication but shall become null and void if the bill for their ratification is not submitted to Parliament before the date set by the enabling act.

At the expiration of the time limit referred to in the first paragraph of the present article, the ordinances may be modified only by the law in those matters which are within the legislative domain.

Article 39. The Premier and the Members of Parliament alike shall have the right to initiate legislation.

Government bills shall be discussed in the Council of Ministers after consultation with the Council of State and shall be filed with the secretariat of one of the two Assemblies. Finance bills shall be submitted first to the National Assembly.

Article 40. The bills and amendments introduced by the Members of Parliament shall be inadmissible when their adoption would have as a consequence either a diminution of public financial resources or an increase in public expenditure.

Article 41. If it shall appear in the course of the legislative procedure that a Parliamentary bill or an amendment is not within the domain of law or is contrary to a delegation granted by virtue of Article 38, the Government may declare its inadmissibility

FRANCE—(THE CONSTITUTION)

In case of disagreement between the Government and the President of the Assembly concerned, the Constitutional Council, upon the request of one or the other, shall rule within a time limit of eight days.

Article 42. The discussion of bills shall pertain, in the first Assembly to which they have been referred, to the text presented by the Government.

An Assembly given a text passed by the other Assembly shall deliberate on the text that is transmitted to it.

Article 43. Government and Parliamentary bills shall, at the request of the Government or of the Assembly concerned, be sent for study to committees especially designated for this purpose.

Government and Parliamentary bills for which such a request has not been made shall be sent to one of the permanent committees, the number of which is limited to six in each Assembly.

Article 44. Members of Parliament and of the Government have the right of amendment.

After the opening of the debate, the Government may oppose the examination of any amendment which has not previously been submitted to committee.

If the Government so requests, the Assembly concerned shall decide, by a single vote, on all or part of the text under discussion, retaining only the amendments proposed or accepted by the Government.

Article 45. Every Government or Parliamentary bill shall be examined successively in the two Assemblies of Parliament with a view to the adoption of an identical text.

When, as a result of disagreement between the two Assemblies, it has been impossible to adopt a Government or Parliamentary bill after two readings by each Assembly, or, if the Government has declared the matter urgent, after a single reading by each of them, the Premier shall have the right to bring about a meeting of a joint committee composed of an equal number from both Assemblies charged with the task of proposing a text on the matters still under discussion.

The text elaborated by the joint committee may be submitted by the Government for approval of the two Assemblies. No amendment shall be admissible except by agreement with the Government.

If the joint committee does not succeed in adopting a common text, or if this text is not adopted under the conditions set forth in the preceding paragraph, the Government may, after a new reading by the National Assembly and by the Senate, ask the National Assembly to rule definitively. In this case, the National Assembly may reconsider either the text elaborated by the joint committee, or the last text voted by it, modified when circumstances so require by one or several of the amendments adopted by the Senate.

Article 46. The laws that the Constitution characterises as organic shall be passed and amended under the following conditions:

A Government or Parliamentary bill shall be submitted to the deliberation and to the vote of the first Assembly notified only at the expiration of a period of fifteen days following its introduction;

The procedure of Article 45 shall be applicable. Nevertheless, lacking an agreement between the two Assemblies, the text may be adopted by the National Assembly on final reading only by an absolute majority of its members;

The organic laws relative to the Senate must be passed in the same manner by the two Assemblies;

The organic laws may be promulgated only after a declaration by the Constitutional Council on their constitutionality.

Article 47. The Parliament shall pass finance bills under the conditions to be stipulated by an organic law.

Should the National Assembly fail to reach a decision on first reading within a time limit of forty days after a bill has been filed, the Government shall refer it to the Senate, which must rule within a time limit of fifteen days. The procedure set forth in Article 45 shall then be followed.

Should Parliament fail to reach a decision within a time limit of seventy days, the provisions of the bill may be enforced by ordinance.

Should the finance bill establishing the resources and expenditures of a fiscal year not be filed in time for it to be promulgated before the beginning of that fiscal year, the Government shall urgently request Parliament for the authorisation to collect the taxes and shall make available by decree the funds needed to meet the Government commitments already voted.

The time limits stipulated in the present article shall be suspended when the Parliament is not in session.

The Audit Office shall assist Parliament and the Government in supervising the implementation of the finance laws.

Article 48. The discussion of the bills filed or agreed upon by the Government shall have priority on the agenda of the Assemblies in the order determined by the Government.

One meeting a week shall be reserved, by priority, for questions asked by Members of Parliament and for answers by the Government.

Article 49. The Premier, after deliberation by the Council of Ministers, shall make the Government responsible, before the National Assembly, for its programme or, should the occasion arise, for a declaration of general policy.

When the National Assembly adopts a motion of censure, the responsibility of the Government shall thereby be questioned. Such a motion is admissible only if it is signed by at least one-tenth of the members of the National Assembly. The vote may not take place before forty-eight hours after the motion has been filed. Only the votes that are favourable to a motion of censure shall be counted; the motion of censure may be adopted only by a majority of the members comprising the Assembly. Should the motion of censure be rejected, its signatories may not introduce another motion of censure during the same session, except in the case provided for in the paragraph below.

The Premier may, after deliberation by the Council of Ministers, make the Government responsible before the National Assembly for the adoption of a vote of confidence. In this case, this vote of confidence shall be considered as adopted unless a motion of censure, filed during the twenty-four hours that follow, is carried under the conditions provided for in the preceding paragraph.

The Premier shall have the right to request the Senate for approval of a declaration of general policy.

Article 50. When the National Assembly adopts a motion of censure, or when it disapproves the programme or a declaration of general policy of the Government, the Premier must hand the resignation of the Government to the President of the Republic.

Article 51. The closure of ordinary or extraordinary sessions shall by right be delayed, should the occasion arise, in order to permit the application of the provisions of Article 49.

FRANCE—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Chapter VI.—On Treaties and International Agreements

Article 52. The President of the Republic shall negotiate and ratify treaties.

He shall be informed of all negotiations leading to the conclusion of an international agreement not subject to ratification.

Article 53. Peace treaties, commercial treaties, treaties or agreements relative to international organisation, those that commit the finances of the State, those that modify provisions of a legislative nature, those relative to the status of persons, those that call for the cession, exchange or addition of territory may be ratified or approved only by a law.

They shall go into effect only after having been ratified or approved.

No cession, no exchange, no addition of territory shall be valid without the consent of the populations concerned.

Article 54. If the Constitutional Council, the matter having been referred to it by the President of the Republic, by the Premier, or by the President of one or the other Assembly, shall declare that an international commitment contains a clause contrary to the Constitution, the authorisation to ratify or approve this commitment may be given only after amendment of the Constitution.

Article 55. Treaties or agreements duly ratified or approved shall, upon their publication, have an authority superior to that of laws, subject, for each agreement or treaty, to its application by the other party.

Chapter VII.—The Constitutional Council

Article 56. The Constitutional Council shall consist of nine members, whose mandates shall last nine years and shall not be renewable. One-third of the membership of the Constitutional Council shall be renewed every three years. Three of its members shall be appointed by the President of the Republic, three by the President of the National Assembly, three by the President of the Senate.

In addition to the nine members provided for above, former Presidents of the Republic shall be members ex officio for life of the Constitutional Council.

The President shall be appointed by the President of the Republic. He shall have the deciding vote in case of a tie.

Article 57. The office of member of the Constitutional Council shall be incompatible with that of minister or Member of Parliament. Other incompatibilities shall be determined by an organic law.

Article 58. The Constitutional Council shall ensure the regularity of the election of the President of the Republic.

It shall examine complaints and shall announce the results of the vote.

Article 59. The Constitutional Council shall rule in the case of disagreement, on the regularity of the election of deputies and senators.

Article 60. The Constitutional Council shall ensure the regularity of the referendum procedure and shall announce the results thereof.

Article 61. Organic laws, before their promulgation and regulations of the parliamentary Assemblies, before they come into application, must be submitted to the Constitutional Council, which shall rule on their constitutionality.

To the same end, laws may be submitted to the Constitutional Council, before their promulgation, by the President of the Republic, the Premier or the President of one or the other Assembly.

In the cases provided for by the two preceding paragraphs, the Constitutional Council must make its ruling within a time limit of one month. Nevertheless, at the request of the Government, in case of urgency, this period shall be reduced to eight days.

In these same cases, referral to the Constitutional Council shall suspend the time limit for promulgation.

Article 62. A provision declared unconstitutional may not be promulgated or implemented.

The decisions of the Constitutional Council may not be appealed to any jurisdiction whatsoever. They must be recognised by the public powers and by all administrative and juridical authorities.

Article 63. An organic law shall determine the rules of organisation and functioning of the Constitutional Council, the procedure to be followed before it, and in particular of the periods of time allowed for laying disputes before it.

Chapter VIII.—On Judicial Authority

Article 64. The President of the Republic shall be the guarantor of the independence of the judicial authority.

He shall be assisted by the High Council of the Judiciary.

An organic law shall determine the status of magistrates. Magistrates may not be removed from office.

Article 65. The High Council of the Judiciary shall be presided over by the President of the Republic. The Minister of Justice shall be its Vice-President ex officio. He may preside in place of the President of the Republic.

The High Council shall, in addition, include nine members appointed by the President of the Republic in conformity with the conditions to be determined by an organic law.

The High Council of the Judiciary shall present nominations for judges of the Court of Cassation (Supreme Court of Appeal) and for First Presidents of courts of appeal. It shall give its opinion under the conditions to be determined by an organic law on proposals of the Minister of Justice relative to the nominations of the other judges. It shall be consulted on questions of pardon under conditions to be determined by an organic law.

The High Council of the Judiciary shall act as a disciplinary council for judges. In such cases, it shall be presided over by the First President of the Court of Cassation.

Article 66. No one may be arbitrarily detained.

The judicial authority, guardian of individual liberty, shall ensure the respect of this principle under the conditions stipulated by law.

Chapter IX.—The High Court of Justice

Article 67. A High Court of Justice shall be instituted.

It shall be composed, in equal number, of members elected, from among their membership, by the National Assembly and by the Senate after each general or partial election to these Assemblies. It shall elect its President from among its members.

An organic law shall determine the composition of the High Court, its rules, as well as the procedure to be applied before it.

Article 68. The President of the Republic shall not be held accountable for actions performed in the exercise of his office except in the case of high treason. He may be indicted only by the two Assemblies ruling by identical vote in open balloting and by an absolute majority of the members of said Assemblies. He shall be tried by the High Court of Justice.

The members of the Government shall be criminally liable for actions performed in the exercise of their office and rated as crimes or misdemeanours at the time they were committed. The procedure defined above shall be applied to them, as well as to their accomplices, in case of a conspiracy against the security of the State. In the cases provided for by the present paragraph, the High Court shall be bound by the definition of crimes and misdemeanours, as well as by the determination of penalties, as they are established by the criminal laws in force when the acts are committed.

Chapter X.—The Economic and Social Council

Article 69 The Economic and Social Council, at the referral of the Government, shall give its opinion on the Government bills, ordinances and decrees, as well as on the Parliamentary bills submitted to it.

A member of the Economic and Social Council may be designated by the latter to present, before the Parliamentary Assemblies, the opinion of the Council on the Government or Parliamentary bills that have been submitted to it Article 70 The Economic and Social Council may likewise be consulted by the Government on any problem of an economic or social character of interest to the Republic or to the Community. Any plan, or any bill dealing with a plan, of an economic or social character shall be submitted to it for its advice.

Article 71. The composition of the Economic and Social Council and its rules of procedure shall be determined by an organic law.

Chapter XI.—On Territorial Units

Article 72. The territorial units of the Republic shall be the communes, the Departments, and the Overseas Territories. Any other territorial unit shall be created by law.

These units shall be free to govern themselves through elected councils and under the conditions stipulated by law.

In the Departments and the Territories, the Delegate of the Government shall be responsible for the national interests, for administrative supervision, and for seeing that the laws are respected.

Article 73. Measures of adjustment required by the particular situation of the Overseas Departments may be taken with regard to the legislative system and administrative organisation of those Departments

Article 74. The Overseas Territories of the Republic shall have a particular organisation, taking account of their own interests within the general interests of the Republic. This organisation shall be defined and modified by law after consultation with the Territorial Assembly concerned.

Article 75. Citizens of the Republic who do not have ordinary civil status, the only status referred to in Article 34, may keep their personal status as long as they have not renounced it.

Article 76. The Overseas Territories may retain their status within the Republic.

If they express the desire to do so by decision of their Territorial Assemblies taken within the time limit set in the first paragraph of Article 91, they shall become either Overseas Departments of the Republic or, organised into groups among themselves or singly, member States of the Community.

Chapter XII.—On the Community

Article 77. In the Community instituted by the present Constitution, the States shall enjoy autonomy; they shall administer themselves and, democratically and freely, manage their own affairs.

There shall be only one citizenship in the Community. All citizens shall be equal before the law, whatever their origin, their race and their religion. They shall have the same duties.

Article 78. The Community shall have jurisdiction over foreign policy, defence, the monetary system, common economic and financial policy, as well as the policy on strategic raw materials.

In addition, except by special agreement, control of justice, higher education, the general organisation of external and common transport, and telecommunications shall be within its jurisdiction.

Special agreements may establish other common jurisdictions or regulate the transfer of jurisdiction from the Community to one of its members.

Article 79 The member States shall benefit from the provisions of Article 77 as soon as they have exercised the choice provided for in Article 76.

Until the measures required for implementation of the present title go into force, matters within the common jurisdiction shall be regulated by the Republic.

Article 80. The President of the Republic shall preside over and represent the Community.

The Community shall have, as organs, an Executive Council, a Senate and a Court of Arbitration.

Article 81. The member States of the Community shall participate in the election of the President according to the conditions stipulated in Article 6

The President of the Republic, in his capacity as President of the Community, shall be represented in each State of the Community.

Article 82. The Executive Council of the Community shall be presided over by the President of the Community. It shall consist of the Premier of the Republic, the heads of Government of each of the member States of the Community, and of the ministers responsible for the common affairs of the Community.

The Executive Council shall organise the co-operation of members of the Community at Government and administrative levels.

The organisation and procedure of the Executive Council shall be determined by an organic law.

Article 83. The Senate of the Community shall be composed of delegates whom the Parliament of the Republic and the legislative assemblies of the other members of the Community shall choose from among their own membership. The number of delegates of each State shall be determined, taking into account its population and the responsibilities it assumes in the Community.

The Senate of the Community shall hold two sessions a year, which shall be opened and closed by the President of the Community and may not last more than one month each

The Senate of the Community, upon referral by the President of the Community, shall deliberate on the common economic and financial policy, before laws in these matters are voted upon by the Parliament of the Republic, and, should circumstances so require, by the legislative assemblies of the other members of the Community.

The Senate of the Community shall examine the acts and treaties or international agreements, which are specified in Articles 35 and 53, and which commit the Community.

The Senate of the Community shall take enforceable decisions in the domains in which it has received delegation of power from the legislative assemblies of the members of the Community. These decisions shall be promulgated in the same form as the law in the territory of each of the States concerned.

An organic law shall determine the composition of the Senate and its rules of procedure.

FRANCE—(THE CONSTITUTION)

Article 84. A Court of Arbitration of the Community shall rule on litigations occurring among members of the Community.

Its composition and its competence shall be determined by an organic law.

Article 85. By derogation from the procedure provided for in Article 89, the provisions of the present title that concern the functioning of the common institutions shall be amendable by identical laws passed by the Parliament of the Republic and by the Senate of the Community.

The provisions of the present title may also be revised by agreements concluded between all states of the Community: the new provisions are enforced in the conditions laid down by the Constitution of each state.

Article 86. A change of status of a member State of the Community may be requested, either by the Republic, or by a resolution of the legislative assembly of the State concerned confirmed by a local referendum, the organisation and supervision of which shall be ensured by the institutions of the Community. The procedures governing this change shall be determined by an agreement approved by the Parliament of the Republic and the legislative assembly concerned.

Under the same conditions, a Member State of the Community may become independent. It shall thereby cease to belong to the Community.

A Member State of the Community may also, by means of agreement, become independent without thereby ceasing to belong to the Community.

An independent State which is not a member of the Community may, by means of agreements, adhere to the Community without ceasing to be independent.

The position of these States within the Community is determined by the agreements concluded for that purpose, in particular the agreements mentioned in the preceding paragraphs as well as, where applicable, the agreements provided for in the second paragraph of article 85.

Article 87. The particular agreements made for the implementation of the present title shall be approved by the Parliament of the Republic and the legislative assembly concerned.

Chapter XIII.—On Agreements of Association

Article 88. The Republic or the Community may make agreements with States that wish to associate themselves with the Community in order to develop their own civilisations.

Chapter XIV.—On Amendment

Article 89. The initiative for amending the Constitution shall belong both to the President of the Republic on the proposal of the Premier and to the Members of Parliament.

The Government or Parliamentary bill for amendment must be passed by the two Assemblies in identical terms. The amendment shall become definitive after approval by a referendum.

Nevertheless, the proposed amendment shall not be submitted to a referendum when the President of the Republic decides to submit it to Parliament convened in Congress; in this case, the proposed amendment shall be approved only if it is accepted by a three-fifths majority of the votes cast. The Secretariat of the Congress shall be that of the National Assembly.

No amendment procedure may be undertaken or followed if it is prejudicial to the integrity of the territory.

The republican form of government shall not be the object of an amendment.

Chapter XV.—Temporary Provisions

Article 90. The ordinary session of Parliament is suspended. The mandate of the members of the present National Assembly shall expire on the day that the Assembly elected under the present Constitution convenes.

Until this meeting, the Government alone shall have the authority to convene Parliament.

The mandate of the members of the Assembly of the French Union shall expire at the same time as the mandate of the members of the present National Assembly.

Article 91. The institutions of the Republic, provided for by the present Constitution, shall be established within four months counting from the time of its promulgation.

This period shall be extended to six months for the institutions of the Community.

The powers of the President of the Republic now in office shall expire only when the results of the election provided for in Articles 6 and 7 of the present Constitution are proclaimed.

The member States of the Community shall participate in this first election under the conditions derived from their status at the date of the promulgation of the Constitution.

The established authorities shall continue in the exercise of their functions in these States according to the laws and regulations applicable when the Constitution goes into force, until the establishment of the authorities provided for by their new regimes.

Until its definitive constitution, the Senate shall consist of the present members of the Council of the Republic. The organic laws that shall determine the definitive constitution of the Senate must be passed before July 31st, 1959.

The powers conferred on the Constitutional Council by Articles 58 and 59 of the Constitution shall be exercised, until the establishment of this Council, by a committee composed of the Vice-President of the Council of State, as Chairman, the First President of the Court of Cassation, and the First President of the Audit Office.

The peoples of the member States of the Community shall continue to be represented in Parliament until the entry into force of the measures necessary to the implementation of Chapter XII.

Article 92. The legislative measures necessary to the establishment of the institutions and, until they are established, to the functioning of the public powers, shall be taken in meetings of the Council of Ministers, after consultation with the Council of State, in the form of ordinances having the force of law.

During the time limit set in the first paragraph of Article 91, the Government shall be authorised to determine, by ordinances having the force of law and passed in the same way, the system of elections to the Assemblies provided for by the Constitution.

During the same period and under the same conditions, the Government may also adopt measures, in all domains, which it may deem necessary to the life of the nation, the protection of citizens or the safeguarding of liberties.

ELECTORAL LAW, 1958

The Deputies of the National Assembly for Metropolitan France are elected under a single-member constituency system, with two ballots where the first does not produce an absolute majority. A candidate requires a relative majority in the second ballot to be successful. There are 465 individual constituencies, each with approximately 93,000 electors. Any candidate polling less than 5 per cent of the votes loses his deposit.

The Overseas Territories elect their representatives under the old system of proportional representation.

Publ.: La Nation (daily), Notre République (weekly), Nouvelle Frontière (every two months)

Section Française de l'Internationale Ouvrière (SFIO) (Socialist Party): 12 Cité Malesherbes, Paris 9e, the chief opposition party; obtained 66 seats in the National Assembly at the 1962 election thus rising from fourth to second place in the Chamber since the 1958 election

Policies: Belief in a planned economy, full employment and the eventual attainment of socialism by abolishing the private ownership of property.

Leaders: GUY MOLLET (Sec.-Gen.), PIERRE MAUROY, PIERRE HERBAUT, ERNEST CAZELLES (Deputy Secs.), CLAUDE FUZIER, GEORGES GUILLE, VICTOR PROVO, ANDRÉ BIDET, AUGUSTIN LAURENT, ANDRÉ LE FLOCH, ANDRÉ RAUST.

Parti Communiste Français (PCF) (Communist Party): 44 rue le Peletier, Paris 9e; at the 1962 election increased its seats in the National Assembly from 10 to 41, coming third after the Socialists. Policies: Thoroughgoing Marxism, unification of working, democratic and national forces, the settlement of international disputes by negotiation, independent and positive rôle by France in the United Nations

Leaders: WALDECK ROCHET (Sec.-Gen.), FRANÇOIS BILLOUX, ETIENNE FAJON, LÉON FÉIX, RAYMOND GUYOT, MARIE-CLAUDE VAILLANT-COUTURIER, ROBERT BALLANGER, ARTHUR RABINETTE, JACQUES DUCLOS.

Mouvement Républicain Populaire (MRP) (Popular Republican Movement): 7 rue de Poissy, Paris 9e; supported chiefly by the traditional Roman Catholic areas in France; after the 1962 election its strength in the National Assembly declined from 43 seats (1958) to 36; takes part in the Centre Démocratique, a parliamentary group including members of the Centre Gauche and Indépendants. In 1966, a number of members left the MRP to form the Centre Démocratique Party. Policies: Socialist-inclined economic ideas, pro-NATO and pro-Europe and for State aid to church schools

Leaders: JOSEPH FONTANET (Sec.-Gen.), PIERRE PFLIMLIN, ANDRÉ COLIN, MAURICE-RENÉ SIMONET, ANDRÉ DILIGENT, HENRI DORFY

Centre de Liaison et d'Etudes des Républicains Indépendants (Independent Republicans): 130 rue de Rivoli, Paris 1er; a new grouping formed by right-wing elements who broke away from the Centre National des Indépendants and supports the Gaullist party in power, 35 seats in the National Assembly. Policies: To take active part in the "work of renewal pursued by the Fifth Republic under the authority of the Head of State"; pro-NATO and pro-Europe

Leaders: RAYMOND MONDON (Pres.), MARCEL ANTHONIOZ, ANDRÉ BETTENCOURT (Vice-Pres.), AIMÉ PAQUET (Sec.-Gen.).

Centre National des Indépendants (National Independents' Centre): 106 rue de l'Université, Paris 7e; an amorphous group of independents whose share in the 1962 poll dropped to 7.4 per cent from the 15.4 per cent in 1958; their strength was much reduced when the right wing broke away to form the Républicains Indépendants, 15 members in the National Assembly: 7 participate in the Centre Démocratique group headed by former Premiers Pierre Pflimlin and René Pleven, and 4 others in the Rassemblement Démocratique group headed by Maurice Faure

Leaders: CAMILLE LAURENS (Sec.-Gen.), ANTOINE PINAY, BARRACHIN, MOTTE, JAPIOT, BARRIÈRE, SALLENAVE, BAUDIS, ACHILLE FOUD, MENARD, CHARVET, DENIS BAUDOUIN (Sec.).

Parti Republicain Radical et Radical-Socialiste (Radical Party): 1 Place de Valois, Paris 1er, great traditional centre party of the Third Republic but much weakened by internal dissension during the Fourth Republic (the Dissident Radicals broke away in 1956 after disagreement with M. Mendès-France who himself withdrew in 1959 after failing to re-shape the party), polled 4.5 per cent of the votes at the 1962 election; takes the leading part in the National Assembly group Rassemblement Démocratique. Policies: Liberal economic thinking, pro-NATO and pro-Europe, inclined to support the opposition groups in the National Assembly

Leaders: RENÉ BILLÈRES (Pres.), FRANÇOIS GIACOBBI, PIERRE BROUSSE (Secs.-Gen.), Mme THOMÉ-PATÉNOTRE, MICHEL SOULIÉ, AUGUSTE PINTON, EMILE HUGHES, M. BILLIENAZ, GUY PASCAUD, MAURICE BOURGÈS-MANOURY, PIERRE DE LA SIVOIE, GEORGES BÉRARD-QUELIN

Leaders: EDOUARD DEPREUX (National Secretary), GILLES MARTINET (Asst. National Secretary), PIERRE BEREGOVY, CLAUDE BOURDET, MARC HEURGON, DANIEL MAYER, PIERRE MENDES-FRANCE, JEAN POPEREN, HARRIS PUISAIS, TANGUY-PRIGENT, ROBERT VERDIER.

Publ.: Tribune Socialiste

Union Démocratique et Socialiste de la Résistance (UDSR) (Democratic and Socialist Union of the Resistance): 21 rue du Mont Thabor, Paris 1er; small left-of-centre party formed after the war; won one seat in the 1962 election and takes part in the Rassemblement Démocratique group in the National Assembly. Policies: Socialist-inclined economic theories, pro-NATO and pro-Europe.

Leader: FRANÇOIS MITTERRAND

Centre Républicain (Dissident Radicals): 229 Bvd. St. Germain, Paris 7e; founded in 1956 by those who broke away from the Radical Party because of disagreement with M. Mendès-France; obtained one seat in the 1962 election and takes part in the Rassemblement Démocratique group in the National Assembly. Policies: Liberal economic theory and in general pro-NATO and pro-Europe.

Leaders: ANDRÉ MORICE (Nat. Pres.), BERNARD LAFAY, ANDRÉ MARIE.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM

The Judiciary is independent of the Government. Judges of the Court of Cassation and the First President of the Court of Appeal are appointed by the executive from nominations of the High Council of the Judiciary.

Justices of the Peace (juges de paix) were abolished by the reforms of December 1958. Subordinate cases are now heard by Tribunals of Instance (tribunaux d'instance), of which there are 455, and more serious cases by Tribunals of Great Instance (tribunaux de grande instance), of which there are 172. Parallel to these Great Tribunals are the Tribunals of Commerce (tribunaux de commerce), for commercial cases, composed of judges elected by tradesmen and manufacturers among themselves. These do not exist in every district. Where there is no Tribunal of Commerce, commercial disputes are judged by Tribunals of Great Instance.

The Correctional Courts (Tribunaux correctionnels) for criminal cases corresponded to the Tribunal of Great Instance for civil cases. They pronounce on all graver offences (délits), including those involving imprisonment.

From the Tribunals of Great Instance, Tribunals of Commerce and Correctional Courts appeal lies to the Courts of Appeal (Cours d'Appel).

The Courts of Assize (Cours d'Assises) have no regular sitting, but are called when necessary to try very important cases, for example, murder. They are presided over by judges who are members of the Courts of Appeal and composed of elected judges (jury). Their decision is final, except where shown to be wrong in law, and then recourse is had to the Court of Cassation (Cour de Cassation).

The Court of Cassation is not a supreme court of appeal, but a higher authority for the proper application of the law. Its duty is to see that judgments are not contrary either to the letter or the spirit of the law; any judgment annulled by the Court of Cassation involves the trying of the case anew by a court of the same category as that which made the original decision.

ADMINISTRATIVE JURISDICTION

Certain cases arising between civil servants (when on duty) and the government, or between any citizen and the Government are judged by special administrative courts. In the capital of each department there is an Administrative Tribunal (Tribunal Administratif), and in Paris the Council of State (Conseil d'Etat below).

Tribunal of Disputes (Tribunal des Conflits): Decides whether cases shall be submitted to the ordinary or the administrative courts. It is composed of: Pres. THE MINISTER OF JUSTICE; Vice-Pres. M. ODENT, Counsellor of State; four Counsellors of the Court of Cassation and three Counsellors of State.

Cour des Comptes (Court of Accounts): Is an administrative tribunal charged with judging the correctness of public accounts. It is the judge of common law of all public accounts laid before it. The judgments of the Court of Accounts may be annulled by the Council of State.

First President: M. LÉONARD.

Presidents: MM. DE MIRIMONDE, HERVÉ-GRUYER, LORAIN, ESTRESSE DE LANZAC DE LABORIE, LICHTENBERGER, BURNOD.

Attorney-General: M. BOURREL.

Solicitors-General: MM. AUMAGE, NOIRET.

COUNCIL OF STATE

Palais-Royal, Paris

Conseil d'Etat (Council of State): Has a double rôle: it is a council of the central power and an administrative tribunal. As the consultative organ of the government, it gives opinions in the legislative and administrative domain (interior, finance, public works and social section). In administrative jurisdiction it has three functions: to judge in the first and last resort such cases as appeals against excess of power laid against official decrees or individuals; to judge appeals against judgments made by administrative tribunals and resolutions of courts of litigation; and to annul decisions made by various specialised administrative authorities which adjudicate without appeal, such as the Court of Accounts.

President of the Council: THE PRIME MINISTER.

Vice-President: A. PARODI.

Presidents of Sections: MM. LATOURNERIE, DEVENY, JOSSE, CHASSERAT, RENAUDIN.

General Secretary: M. LASRY.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

Office de Radiodiffusion et Télévision Française (ORTF): Maison de la Radio-Télévision, 116 avenue du Président Kennedy, Paris 16e; f. 1939 as Radiodiffusion-Télévision Française (RTF), present name 1964, governed by an administrative Council of 16 members, 8 of whom are appointed by the Government; Pres. M. W. d'ORMESSON; Dir.-Gen. of Radio and Television JACQUES-BERNARD DUPONT; Asst. Dirs.-Gen. ANDRÉ ASTOUX, CLAUDE CONTAMINE.

The RTF was granted, in February 1959, a statute providing it with financial and administrative autonomy as a State public service under the Ministry of Information. By the reform of July 1964, the ORTF is no longer directly controlled by the Ministry of Information, though remaining under its tutelage. It holds a monopoly of all broadcasting in France and in the French Departments and Territories overseas.
